Intellectual Property Rights and Economic Development Carlos Alberto Primo Braga, Carsten Fink, Claudia Paz Sepulveda, 2000 Over the course of history different legal instruments for protecting intellectual property have emerged These instruments differ in their subject matter extent of protection and field of application reflecting society's objective to balance the interests of creators and consumers for different types of intellectual works These legal instruments are just one of the pieces that form a national system of intellectual property protection Also crucial to the system's overall effectiveness are the institutions administering these instruments the mechanisms available for enforcing IPRs and the rules regarding the treatment of non-nationals To address some of the issues concerning IPRs this paper defines what they are and attempts to evaluate the relationship between the protection of intellectual property and economic activity in developing countries It also summarizes the economic effects of IPRs in terms of creation and diffusion of knowledge and information and market structure and prices Furthermore it discusses the reformation of IPRs regimes and makes recommendations for their administration and enforcement This paper consolidates some of the research from the World Development Report 1998 1999 Knowledge for Development and some contributions made at an Internet moderated conference conducted by the Bank's TechNet program It will be of interest to governments investors and international organizations

Intellectual Property and Development Keith E. Maskus, Carsten Fink, 2005-01-01 International policies toward protecting intellectual property rights have seen profound changes over the past two decades Rules on how to protect patents copyright trademarks and other forms of intellectual property have become a standard component of international trade agreements Most significantly during the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations 1986 94 members of what is today the World Trade Organization WTO concluded the Agreement on Trade Related Intellectual Property Rights TRIPS which sets out minimum standards of protection that most of the world's economies have to respect How will developing countries fare in this new international environment Intellectual Property and Development brings together empirical research that assesses the effects of changing intellectual property regimes on various measures of economic and social performance ranging from international trade foreign investment and competition to innovation and access to new technologies The studies presented point to an important development dimension to the protection of intellectual property But a one size fits all approach to intellectual property is unlikely to work There is need to adjust intellectual property norms to domestic needs taking into account developing countries capacity to innovate technological needs and institutional capabilities In addition governments need to consider a range of complementary policies to maximize the benefits and reduce the costs of reformed intellectual property regulations This book will be of interest to students and scholars of international law particularly in the area of intellectual property rights international trade and public policy

Protecting Foreign Investment Carlos M. Correa, Nagesh Kumar, 2013-07-04 Despite the mounting criticism that globalization is encountering the developed countries continue to lose no opportunity to change the rules of the global economy in their favour regardless of the impact on developing countries and the poor This book examines one of the most important instances of this the rich countries insistence that the WTO not only launch a new round of world trade negotiations but that rules which were supposed to be confined to trade issues now be extended by means of new agreements protecting foreign direct investment What is being proposed would be at the expense of the freedom of developing countries to determine their own policies towards foreign capital in tune with their development policy objectives The two authors of this book have an intimate knowledge of WTO negotiating processes They explain in detail the North's relentless determination to give privileged protection to the overseas investments of its transnational corporations These initiatives have included inter alia the OECD's failed MAI initiative the World Bank sponsored Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency and the WTO's General Agreement on Trade in Services GATS and Agreement on Trade related Investment Measures TRIMS The authors spell out their consequences for developing countries They examine whether there is any real case for a new multilateral framework on investment within the WTO And they propose various options for developing countries to resist what amounts to a new form of Western protectionism including how a development dimension could be incorporated in any new agreement should the member countries of the WTO decide to proceed with negotiations This book provides invaluable information and analysis for diplomats and trade negotiators policy makers and scholars as well as civil society activists concerned with the impact of TNC investments on development
