Urban Growth and Development in Asia Graham P. Chapman, Ashok K. Dutt, 2019-01-15 First published in 1999 this volume begins with a panoramic survey by Nigel Harris of the drama of Asian Urbanization based on the inaugural plenary lecture he gave to the 5th Asian Urbanization Conference held in London In the following chapters many experts and practitioners from different countries and cities provide a stimulating portrayal of the processes and outcomes of one of the greatest shifts of population not just absolutely but proportionately as well ever to have occurred in human history Asia includes more than half the world s population but apart from the Tiger economies and Japan it is still overwhelmingly rural In the last decade or so urbanization has really begun to take off and the shift of population to the cities represents one of the greatest population movements the planet has ever seen By 2030 more than 50% of Asia s population will be urban and between now and then more than 500 million people in Asia will have moved looking for jobs housing food and water They will be both part of a problem and most of the solution building around them the cities they will live in

Economic Development and Urbanisation Satish Sharma, 2002 In Indian context Urbanization and Economic Growth Vibhooiti Shukla, 1996 This volume brings together the late Vibhooiti Shukla's writings on urbanization and economic development covering a vast canvas of interconnected issues Her pioneering analysis with Indian data strongly indicates that the positive correlation between productivity and city sizes holds for India as well as for developed countries In a well knit framework Dr Shukla addresses the problem of city size and the implications for industrial dispersal policies and the phenomenon of rural urban migrations She goes on to discuss the spatial dimension of rural non farm employment infrastructure investment and the government's role in these It is her concern with policy issues which takes her to the subject of infrastructure investment especially its spatial dimension Dr Shukla demonstrates that better water supply asphalt roads and increased drainage capacity can have a great impact on productivity Her essays underline the fact that economic infrastructure is not enough Social infrastructure such as investment in health and education not only creates a healthier enlightened population but can result in higher industrial productivity Urbanization and Migration as Factors Affecting Global Economic Development Ushakov, Denis, 2014-11-30 International migration and urbanization are potential solutions for stabilizing the global economy and bolstering local and regional economies However if unregulated they can also put market stability at risk and cause new social problems in both developed and developing countries Urbanization and Migration as Factors Affecting Global Economic Development takes a close look at the impact of urbanization and international migration on the global economy Studying the dynamics of these two phenomena in countries across the world as well as the varying successes of regional regulations this publication is a valuable resource for academics interested in further research in urbanization migration and global economic efficiency as well as policymakers involved in regulating international migration and urbanization Metropolitan Economic Development Alejandra Trejo Nieto, José L. Niño-Amézquita, 2019-08-28 Metropolitan areas are home to a significant proportion of the world's population and its economic output Taking Mexico as a case study and weaving in comparisons from Latin America and developed countries this book explores current trends and policy issues around urbanisation metropolisation economic development and city region governance Despite their fundamental economic relevance the analysis and monitoring of metropolitan economies in Mexico and other countries in the Global South under a comparative perspective are relatively scarce This volume contains empirical analysis based on comparative perspectives with relation to international experiences It will be of interest to advanced students researchers and policymakers in urban policy urban economics regional studies economic geography and Latin American studies Urbanization and Socio-Economic Development in Africa Steve Kayizzi-Mugerwa, Abebe Shimeles, Nadège Désirée Yaméogo, 2014-05-16 The main goal of this book is to put urbanization and its challenges squarely on Africa's development agenda Planned urbanization can improve living conditions for the majority help in the expansion of the middle class and create conditions for economic transformation However many African cities have developed haphazardly resulting in the decline of public services in slum proliferation and increases in poverty African cities thrive on activities characterized by easy entry and low productivity generally referred to as the informal sector Indeed today some urban dwellers are poorer than their cousins in the countryside In spite of reform attempts many governments have not been able to create an enabling environment with adequate infrastructure and institutions to sustain markets for easy exchange and production This study argues that with careful policies and planning the situation can be changed If the recent natural resource led economic boom that we have seen in many African countries is used for structural reforms and urban renewal African cities could become centers of economic opportunity The challenge for African policymakers is to ensure that urban development is orderly and that the process is inclusive and emphasizes the protection of the environment hence green growth
