Community Organizing for Urban School Reform Dennis Shirley, 2010-01-01 Observers of all political persuasions agree that our urban schools are in a state of crisis Yet most efforts at school reform treat schools as isolated institutions disconnected from the communities in which they are embedded and insulated from the political realities which surround them Community Organizing for Urban School Reform tells the story of a radically different approach to educational change Using a case study approach Dennis Shirley describes how working class parents public school teachers clergy social workers business partners and a host of other engaged citizens have worked to improve education in inner city schools Their combined efforts are linked through the community organizations of the Industrial Areas Foundation which have developed a network of over seventy Alliance Schools in poor and working class neighborhoods throughout Texas This deeply democratic struggle for school reform contains important lessons for all of the nation's urban areas. It provides a striking point of contrast to orthodox models of change and places the political empowerment of low income parents at the heart of genuine school improvement and civic renewal. Racial Isolation in the Public Schools United States Commission on Civil Rights, 1967

The Praeger Handbook of Urban Education Philip M. Anderson, Kecia Hayes, Joe Kincheloe, Karel Rose, 2006-03-30 Maintaining that urban teaching and learning is characterized by many contradictions this work proposes that there is a wide range of social cultural psychological and pedagogical knowledge urban educators must possess in order to engage in effective and transformative practice. It is necessary for those teaching in urban schools to be scholar practitioners rather than bureaucrats who can only follow rather than analyze, understand and create. Ten major sections cover the myriad issues of urban education as it exists today.

When Middle-Class Parents Choose Urban Schools Linn Posey-Maddox, 2014-03-18 In recent decades a growing number of middle class parents have considered sending their children to and often end up becoming active in urban public schools. Their presence can bring long needed material resources to such schools but as Linn Posey Maddox shows in this study it can also introduce new class and race tensions and even exacerbate inequalities. Sensitively navigating the pros and cons of middle class transformation When Middle Class Parents Choose Urban Schools asks whether it is possible for our urban public schools to have both financial security and equitable diversity. Drawing on in depth research at an urban elementary school Posey Maddox examines parents efforts to support the school through their outreach, marketing and volunteerism. She shows that when middle class parents engage in urban school communities they can bring a host of positive benefits including new educational opportunities and greater diversity. But their involvement can also unintentionally marginalize less affluent parents and diminish low income students access to the improving schools. In response Posey Maddox argues that school reform efforts which usually equate improvement with rising test scores and increased enrollment need to have more equity focused policies in place to ensure that low income families also benefit from and participate in school change.

Racism in the Neoliberal Era Randolph Hohle, 2017-11-03 Racism in the Neoliberal Era explains how simple racial binaries like black white are no longer sufficient to explain the persistence of racism, capitalism and elite white power. The neoliberal era features the largest black middle class in US history and extreme racial marginalization. Hohle focuses on how the origins and expansion of neoliberalism depended on language or semiotic assemblage of white private and black public. The language of neoliberalism explains how the white racial frame operates like a web of racial meanings that connect social groups with economic policy, geography and police brutality. When America was racially segregated elites consented to political pressure to develop and fund white public institutions. The black civil rights movement eliminated legal barriers that prevented racial integration. In response to black civic inclusion elite whites used a language of white private black public to deregulate the Voting Rights Act and banking They privatized neighborhoods schools and social welfare creating markets around poverty They oversaw the mass incarceration and systemic police brutality against people of color Citizenship was recast as a privilege instead of a right Neoliberalism is the result of the latest elite white strategy to maintain political and economic power
