Savage Portrayals Natalie Byfield, 2014-01-20 In 1989 the rape and beating of a white female jogger in Central Park made international headlines Many accounts reported the incident as an example of wilding episodes of poor minority youths roaming the streets looking for trouble Police intent on immediate justice for the victim coerced five African American and Latino boys to plead guilty The teenage boys were quickly convicted and imprisoned Natalie Byfield who covered the case for the New York Daily News now revisits the story of the Central Park Five from her perspective as a black female reporter in Savage Portrayals Byfield illuminates the race class and gender bias in the massive media coverage of the crime and the prosecution of the now exonerated defendants Her sociological analysis and first person account persuasively argue that the racialized reportage of the case buttressed efforts to try juveniles as adults across the nation Savage Portrayals casts new light on this famous crime and its far reaching consequences for the wrongly accused and the justice system

Humphries, 2009 Generally Speaking Eviatar Zerubavel, 2021 In this invitation to concept driven sociology defying the conventional split between theory and methodology as well as between quantitative and qualitative research Eviatar Zerubavel introduces a yet unarticulated Simmelian method of theorizing specifically designed to reveal fundamental often hidden social patterns Insisting that it can actually be taught he examines the theoretico methodological process revolving around the epistemic and analytical acts of focusing generalizing exemplifying and analogizing by which concept driven researchers can distill generic social patterns from the culturally historically and domain specific contexts in which they encounter them empirically Disregarding conventionally noted substantive variability in order to uncover conventionally disregarded formal commonalities Generally Speaking draws on cross cultural cross historical cross domain and cross level analogies in an effort to reveal formal parallels across disparate contexts Using numerous examples from culturally and historically diverse contexts and a wide range of social domains while also disregarding scale Zerubavel thus introduces a pronouncedly transcontextual generic sociology

Motherhood in the Media Barbara Barnett, 2016-02-19 This book examines contemporary media stories about women who kill their children By analyzing media texts motherhood blogs and journalistic interviews the book seeks to understand better maternal violence and the factors that lead women to harm their children The central thesis of this book is that media practices have changed dramatically during the past 50 years as has society's views on appropriate feminine behavior yet definitions of characteristics of good mothers remain largely defined by 1950s sitcoms Victorian ideals and Christian theology The book contends that in spite of media saturation in American society and the media's increased opportunities to tell complex and nuanced stories news media narratives continue to situate maternal violence as rare unfathomable and unpredictable The news media's shift in focus from public service to profit making industry has encouraged superficial coverage of maternal violence as reporters look for stories that sell not stories that explain Motherhood blogs in contrast offer an opportunity for women to tell their own stories about motherhood based on experience Interviews with journalists offer insights into how the structure of their jobs dictates media coverage of this intimate form of violence
