House Prices and the Macroeconomy Charles Goodhart, Boris Hofmann, 2007 House price bubbles and their aftermath have become a focus of macro economic policy concern in most developed countries This book elucidates the two way relationship between house price fluctuations and economic fundamentals Housing has many features which make it distinct from other assets like equity Real estate is not only an asset but also a durable consumption good for households providing shelter and other housing services As a result a house is often the largest and most important asset of households and therefore accounts for a major share of household wealth Similarly a large share of bank assets is tied to housing values House price fluctuations may therefore have a major effect on economic activity and the soundness of the financial system Following an introductory chapter the book is structured into three parts The first demonstrates the importance of house prices as determinants or indicators of inflation and economic activity The second focuses on the inter relationships between bank credit extension and housing prices and how bubbles can lead to financial crises The third discusses resultant public policy issues such as whether and how to include housing prices in a general inflation index and how to restrain the housing bank credit cycle

Inflation Mark Blyth, Nicolò Fraccaroli, 2025-05-06 One of the Financial Times s Best Summer Books of 2025 An essential dose of clear thinking on one of the most contentious issues in economic policy Adam Tooze A fresh revealing and myth busting guide to the ins and outs of inflation from two leading political economists Inflation is back and its impact can be felt everywhere from the grocery store to the mortgage market to the results of elections around the world What s more tariffs and trade wars threaten to accelerate inflation again Yet the conventional wisdom about inflation is stuck in the past Since the 1970s there has only really been one playbook for fighting inflation raise interest rates thereby creating unemployment and a recession which will lower prices But this simple story hides a multitude of beliefs about why prices go up and how policymakers can wrestle them back down beliefs that are often wrong damaging and have little empirical basis Leading political economists Mark Blyth and Nicol Fraccaroli reveal why inflation really happens challenge how we think about it and argue for fresh approaches to combat it With accessible and engaging commentary and a good dose of humor Blyth and Fraccaroli bring the complexities of economic policy and inflation indices down to earth Policymakers around the world may have pulled off a so called soft landing but Inflation warns they must update their thinking Now tariffs climate shocks demographic change geopolitical tensions and politicians promising to upend the global order are all combining to create a more inflationary future making a new paradigm for understanding inflation urgently necessary Astute timely and engaging Inflation is a must read for anyone seeking to understand the forces shaping our economy and politics

Global Liquidity, House Prices, and the Macroeconomy Ambrogio Cesa-Bianchi, Luis Felipe Céspedes, Mr. Alessandro Rebucci, 2015-01-29 In this paper we first compare house price cycles in advanced and emerging economies using a new quarterly house price data set covering the period 1990-2012. We find that house prices in emerging economies grow faster, are more volatile, less persistent, and less synchronized across countries than in advanced economies. We also find that they correlate with capital flows more closely than in advanced economies. We then condition the analysis on an exogenous change to a particular component of capital flows. We find that a global liquidity shock identified by aggregating bank-to-bank cross-border flows and by using the external instrumental variable approach of Stock and Watson (2012) and Mertens and Ravn (2013) has a much stronger impact on house prices and consumption in emerging markets than in advanced economies. In our empirical model, holding house prices or the exchange rate constant in response to this shock tends to dampen its effects on consumption in emerging economies.

Urban Morphology and Housing Market Yang Xiao, 2016-11-21. This book is devoted to filling the urban economics niche and conceptualize a framework for valuing the urban configuration via the local housing market. Advanced network analysis techniques are employed to capture the centrality features hindered in street layout. The author explores the several effects of urban morphology via the housing market over two distinct contexts: UK and China. This work will appeal to a wide readership from scholars and practitioners to policy makers within the fields of real estate analysis, urban and regional studies, urban planning, urban design, and economic geography.

The Global Financial Crisis and Housing Susan Wachter, Man Cho, Moo Joong Tcha, 2014-02-28. This innovative book analyses the role played by real estate markets in global financial stability and examines the fragile link between the two. Through what transmission channels do housing market cycles influence broader economic systems? How?

Handbook on Residential Property Price Indices OECD, Eurostat, International Labour Organization, International Monetary Fund, The World Bank, United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, 2013-04-22. This Handbook provides for the first time comprehensive guidelines for the compilation of Residential Property Price Indexes and explains in depth the methods and best practices used to calculate an RPPI.

Boom Bust Fred Harrison, 2010-01-01. Not employment or inflation as argued during the Great Depression and years of Reaganomics: the mechanism that drives the business cycle is proven to be the housing and property market. In this analysis of the instability of financial markets, the consequences of how neoclassical economics ignores the importance of land are presented in a discussion of the dot-com crash. Agricultural, industrial, and commercial property and the housing market are examined to suggest that policymakers must revise their treatment of land in economic decisions to avoid the next economic crash predicted for 2010.

Why House Price Indexes Differ Mick Silver, 2012-05-01. A key element in the build-up to the global recession and subsequently was the movement in house price indexes (HPIs). These indexes are particularly prone to methodological and coverage differences which can undermine both within-country and cross-country economic analysis. The paper outlines key measurement issues and reports on empirical work using an international panel data set that considers whether differences in HPI measurement matter and if so in what way, and ii revisits the measurement of global house price inflation and the modeling of the determinants of house price inflation using HPIs corrected for differences in measurement.
