Housing Affordability and Housing Investment

Opportunity in Australia Muharem Karamujic, 2015-08-18 Contrary to other developed economies Australia has experienced a long term deterioration in housing affordability even between housing price booms The house price boom that came after the global financial crisis has intensified the stress on Australian housing affordability to yet higher levels and is likely to continue to be a concern for some time to come This book reviews a range of available approaches for the measurement of housing affordability and examines recent empirical evidence on housing affordability in Australia It begins by explaining the relevance of housing to governments at different levels the emergence of the housing affordability problem and the global importance of housing affordability It then explores the causes of the recent explosion in the number of institutions offering home loan products analysing features such as the size composition and changes in total lending and home lending in Australia The author goes on to investigate the consequences of the two most recent rounds of financial deregulation as well as the trends in interest rate and property prices and recent changes in typical borrower behaviour The book concludes by reviewing a range of available approaches in the measurement of housing affordability It assesses whether there is a level of adjustment in housing affordability and finally analyses which housing market segment represents the better investment opportunity during housing boom periods

Housing in 21st-Century Australia Rae Dufty-Jones, Dallas Rogers, 2016-03-09 Over the last two decades new and significant demographic economic social and environmental changes and challenges have shaped the production and consumption of housing in Australia and the policy settings that attempt to guide these processes These changes and challenges as outlined in this book are many and varied While these issues are new they raise timeless questions around affordability access density quantity type and location of housing needed in Australian towns and cities The studies presented in this text also provide a unique insight into a range of housing production consumption and policy issues that while based in Australia have implications that go beyond this national context For instance how do suburban based societies adjust to the realities of aging populations anthropogenic climate change and the significant implications such change has for housing How has policy been translated and assembled in specific national contexts Similarly what are the significantly different policy settings the production and consumption of housing in a post Global Financial Crisis period require Framed in this way this book accounts for and responds to some of the key housing issues of the 21st century

The Private Rental Sector in Australia Alan Morris,Kath Hulse,Hal Pawson,2021-05-15 This book explores the decline and growth of the private rental sector in Australia delving into the changing dynamics of landlord investment and tenant profile over the course of the twentieth century and into the present period It explains why over one in four Australian households are now private renters and investigates the contemporary legal and regulatory frameworks governing the sector The reform discourses in Australia and comparator countries and debates around key concerns such as Australia s advantageous tax treatment of investors in rental property and the power imbalance between tenants and landlords are highlighted The book draws on rich data 600 surveys and close to 100 in depth interviews with tenants in high medium and low rent areas in Sydney and Melbourne and regional New South Wales The book provides in depth insights into this large and expanding component of Australia s housing market and shows how being a private renter shapes the everyday lives and wellbeing of people and households who rent their housing including short and long term renters those on low and higher incomes and older as well as younger people

Australia's Unintended Cities Richard Tomlinson,2012-11-23 Australia s Unintended Cities identifies and researches housing and housing related urban outcomes that are unintended consequences of other policies the structure of incentives and disincentives for the housing market and governance arrangements for metropolitan areas and planning and service delivery It is argued that unintended consequences have a greater impact on the housing market and Australia s cities and their future than policies directly concerned with housing urban policy and metropolitan strategic planning The book will inform policy makers including government officials consultants and politicians It will also be used by academics and students in various areas of urban policy such as housing and urban planning as well as environment public policy and economics

The Routledge Handbook of Housing and Welfare Martin Grander,Mark Stephens,2023-12-22 This handbook takes on one of the most pressing issues of today s society the question of housing It is a cutting edge edited volume about the disputed interrelationship between housing and the wider welfare state Although housing scholars generally agree that housing should be regarded as part of such a wider welfare system it has proven hard to pinpoint and operationalize its position within it Moreover the relationship became considerably more complex as a result of the period of intense globalization and the integration of national housing finance systems into world finance markets Furthermore welfare systems reflect economic as well as social models and these too have changed as countries have responded to globalization and traditional ideological frameworks have become less distinct

Thus there is a need to redefine the connection between housing and welfare in light of changes in both welfare and housing systems. By investigating the current situation and historical development of housing provision and welfare distribution in different contexts worldwide, this book aims to contribute to an expanded understanding of housing and welfare. The book brings together 25 international housing researchers covering 15 countries worldwide. With such a global approach, the book aims to provide an updated empirical picture and analysis of different housing systems and their connection to the welfare regime in different national contexts. The book moves beyond the usual focus on affordable housing provision in the context of well-developed welfare regimes and includes countries from the global south, incorporating regions where it is debatable whether there are welfare systems present at all. Thus, the book aims to provide the reader with an insight into the large differences in housing provision in international contexts with large differences regarding how the welfare state is comprised. From these insights, we reflect on whether regime approaches continue to provide a suitable theoretical framework for understanding the relationship between housing and the wider welfare state. This handbook is essential reading for researchers, students, policymakers, and other professionals in the fields of housing studies, welfare studies, economics, urban studies, social work, social and public policy, and sociology.

Global Housing Markets Ashok Bardhan, Robert H. Edelstein, Cynthia A. Kroll, 2011-10-27

A global look at the reasons behind the recent economic collapse and the responses to it. The speculative bubble in the housing market began to burst in the United States in 2007 and has been followed by ruptures in virtually every asset market in almost every country in the world. Each country proposed a range of policy initiatives to deal with its crisis. Policies that focused upon stabilizing the housing market formed the cornerstone of many of these proposals. This internationally focused book evaluates the genesis of the housing market bubble, the global viral contagion of the crisis, and the policy initiatives undertaken in some of the major economies of the world to counteract its disastrous effects. Unlike other books on the global crisis, this guide deals with the housing sector in addition to the financial sector of individual economies. Countries in many parts of the world were players in either the financial bubble or the housing bubble or both, but the degree of impact, outcome, and responses varied widely. This is an appropriate time to pull together the lessons from these various experiences. Reveals the housing crisis in the United States as the core of the meltdown Describes the evolution of housing markets and policies in the run up to the crisis their impacts and the responses in European and Asian countries Compares experiences and linkages across countries and points to policy implications and research lessons drawn from these experiences Filled with the insights of well known contributors with strong contacts in practice and academia this timely guide discusses the history and evolution of the recent crisis as local to each contributor s part of the world and examines its distinctive and common features with that of the U S the trajectory of its evolution and the similarities and differences in policy response Making Progress in Housing Sean McNelis, 2014-01-21 This book presents a new approach to housing research one that is relevant to all the social sciences Housing research is diverse and operates across many disciplines approaches and methods making collaboration difficult This book outlines a methodological framework that enables researchers from many different fields to collaborate in solving complex and seemingly intractable housing problems It shows how we can make progress in housing research and deliver better housing outcomes through an integrated approach Drawing on the work of renowned Canadian methodologist philosopher theologian and economist Bernard Lonergan 1904 1984 McNelis outlines a framework for collaborative research Functional Collaboration This new form of collaboration divides up the work of housing research into functional specialties These distinguish eight inter related questions that arise in the process of moving from the current housing situation through to providing practical advice to decision makers To answer each question a different method is required Making progress in housing is the result of finding new answers to this complete set of eight inter related questions This approach to collaboration opens up a new discourse on method in housing and social research as well as new debates on progress and the nature of science British Emigration to Australia R.T. Appleyard, 1964-12-15 Each year nearly 30 000 Britons emigrate to Australia under the Assisted Passages Scheme In return for near free transport they are required only to stay a minimum of two years in Australia Are these persons the ne er do wells of British society the unskilled misfits who have not been able to succeed in Britain Do they base their decisions to emigrate on reliable information and study economic opportunities in other overseas countries before choosing Australia To what extent do relatives and friends in Australia and the fact that it is a British country influence their decisions Why do they leave their homeland inequality of opportunity a hostile class structure the climate What do they know about the country many of them will never leave and what do they hope to achieve by going there In 1959 Dr Appleyard and a team of interviewers set out to find the answers to these questions They conducted long interviews with nine hundred British families and single persons just before they sailed for Australia This book contains the results of the interviews set in the background of post war emigration to Australia demographic and economic conditions in each country government policies which have been formulated to meet these conditions and actual differences in wage social services and the ownership of houses and consumer durables between the United Kingdom and Australia Housing Policy in the United States Alex F. Australia International Monetary Fund, International Monetary Fund, Asia and Pacific Dept, 2023-02. A strong post-pandemic recovery and favorable terms of trade have led Australia to a stronger cyclical position than most advanced economies. Tight labor markets reflect the strength of the recovery with labor and skills shortages, although wage growth has remained more subdued than in many other advanced economies. Inflation has risen to significantly above target, prompting decisive monetary policy tightening. Financial conditions have since tightened and housing prices started declining from their peak.

Politics, Planning and Housing Supply in Australia, England and Hong Kong Nicole Gurran, Nick Gallent, Rebecca Chiu, 2016-07-15. In recent years, many nations have asked why not enough housing is being built or when it is built why it isn't of the highest quality or in the best most sustainable locations. Politics, Planning and Housing Supply in Australia, England and Hong Kong examines the politics and planning of new homes in three very different settings but with shared political traditions in Australia, in England, and in Hong Kong. It investigates the power relationships and politics that underpin the allocation of land for large-scale residential schemes and the processes and politics that lead to particular development outcomes. Using a comparative framework, it asks how different systems of urban governance and planning mediate the supply of land for housing, whether and how these system differences influence the location, quantity, and price of residential land, and the implications for housing outcomes. What can be learned from these different systems for allocating land, building consensus between different stakeholders, and delivering a steady supply of high-quality and well-located homes accessible to and appropriate for diverse housing needs? This book frames each case study in a comprehensive examination of national and territorial frameworks before dissecting key local cases. These local cases—urban renewal and greenfield growth centres in Australia, new towns and strategic sites in England, and major development schemes in Hong Kong—explore how broader urban planning and housing policy goals play out at the local level. While the book highlights a number of potential strategies for improving planning and housing delivery processes, the real challenge is to give voice to a broader array of interests, reconstituting the political process surrounding planning and housing development to prioritise homes in well planned places for the many rather than simply facilitating investment opportunities for the few A Transition to Sustainable Housing Trivess Moore,Andréanne Doyon,2023-06-30 This open access book explores the environmental social and financial challenges of housing provision and the urgent need for a sustainable housing transition The authors explore how market failures have impacted the scaling up of sustainable housing and the various policy attempts to address this Going beyond an environmental focus the book explores a range of housing related challenges including social justice and equity issues Sustainability transitions theory is presented as a framework to help facilitate a sustainable housing transition and a range of contemporary case studies are explored on issues including high performing housing small housing shared housing neighbourhood scale housing circular housing and innovative financing for housing It is an important new resource that challenges policy makers planners housing construction industry stakeholders and researchers to rethink what housing is how we design and construct it and how we can better integrate impacts on households to wider policy development Australian National Bibliography: 1992 National Library of Australia,1988 Housing, Citizenship, and Communities for People with Serious Mental Illness John Sylvestre,Geoffrey Brian Nelson,Tim Aubry,2017 Housing Citizenship and Communities for People with Serious Mental Illness provides the first comprehensive overview of the field The book covers theory research practice and policy issues related to the provision of housing and the supports that people rely on to get and keep their housing Housing, Neoliberalism and the Archive Kathleen Flanagan,2019-09-09 From the mid 1940s state housing authorities in Australia built large housing estates to enable home ownership by working class families but the public housing system they created is now regarded as broken Contemporary problems with the sustainability effectiveness and reputation of the Australian public housing system are usually attributed to the influence of neoliberalism Housing Neoliberalism and the Archive offers a challenge to this established rise and fall narrative of post war housing policy Kathleen Flanagan uses Foucauldian archaeology to analyse archival evidence from the Australian state of Tasmania Through this she reveals that the difference between past and present knowledge about the value role and purpose of public housing results from a significant discontinuity in the way we think and act in relation to housing policy Flanagan describes the complex system of ideas and events that underpinned policy change in Tasmania while telling a story about state housing policy neoliberalism and history that has resonance for many other places and times In the process she shows that the story of public housing is more complicated than the taken for granted neoliberal narrative and that this finding has real significance for the dilemmas in public housing policy that face us in the here and now Bioclimatic Housing Richard Hyde,2012-04-27 In the search for sustainable architecture there is growing interest in the relationship between nature and design In this vital new book the term bioclimatic relating to the dynamic between climate and living organisms is applied by the authors in focusing on countries where housing requires cooling for a significant part of the year In this context Bioclimatic Housing covers creative vernacular architecture to
