High Roads High Roads 1:

Survey of the High Roads of England and Wales. Part the First Edward S. Mogg, 2019-12-19 Edward S Mogg's Survey of the High Roads of England and Wales Part the First emerges as a seminal contribution to the genre of travel literature in the early 19th century intricately mapping the thoroughfares that connect England and Wales Mogg employs a vivid descriptive prose style intertwining his observations of the landscapes and communities alongside practical travel information thus serving both the literary and utilitarian needs of the burgeoning middle class of the period His meticulous attention to detail and the insightful commentary on local customs and history situate this work within the broader context of Romanticism where nature and human experience are deeply interwoven Mogg a prominent figure in the cartographic and travel writing domains hails from an era when industrialization transformed the British landscape His experiences traveling the nation and his fascination with its intricate geography and cultural variations inspired his desire to document the high roads systematically Mogg's background in commerce and his commitment to improving travel conditions reflect his understanding of the practical needs of contemporary society making his insights all the more significant This book is a must read for anyone interested in the history of travel in Britain offering a rich tapestry of geographic and cultural insights Whether you are a scholar of geography or a casual traveler Mogg's nuanced observations provide a compelling glimpse into the early 19th century inviting readers to reflect on the roots of modern travel and road networks

Taking the High Road David B. Reynolds, 2002 This work examines the continued reality of social democracy in Europe and what lessons can be learned for the US It shows how progressive economic change is already being fought for by labour and community groups throughout America in such efforts as the Living Wage Movement

Highest Roads Yves Earhart, AI, 2025-02-12

Highest Roads explores humanity's drive to build roads in challenging high altitude environments. It examines the engineering feats, environmental hurdles, and socio-economic impacts of these routes. The book highlights how these roads, often built in areas with thin air and scarce resources, serve as vital links for isolated communities. Discover the ingenuity required to overcome geographical obstacles and extreme weather, turning logistical nightmares into testaments of human resilience. This book uniquely blends technical details with human stories, providing a holistic view of high altitude road construction. It delves into case studies of prominent roads worldwide, from the Andes to the Himalayas, analyzing construction techniques and their impact on local communities. Each chapter builds upon fundamental concepts of engineering, climatology, and socio-economic development, culminating in an analysis of the future of high altitude transportation amid climate change and technological advancements. By examining the historical context, engineering challenges, and societal consequences, Highest Roads provides a nuanced perspective on sustainable development, climate change adaptation, and infrastructure's role in social progress. It's an interdisciplinary exploration suitable for students, professionals, and anyone fascinated by travel, geography, and the intersection of human ambition and environmental responsibility.

The High Road Pete Young, 2018-10-16 A native of Long Island, New York, Pete Young first grew cannabis on the roof of a friend's apartment building when he was fifteen years of age. A fascination with marijuana cultivation quickly followed, with Young mastering the specifics of HID lighting, hydroponics, water polymers, genetics, organic fertilization, soil mix, outdoor growing, and seed generation. After permanently relocating to southwestern Ontario in the late 1980s, Young took part in one of the first constitutional challenges to Canada's drug laws following a police raid on the Great Canadian Hemporium, a head shop in London, Ontario. Around this time, Young befriended a young man whose severe cystic fibrosis was aided by one thing only: marijuana consumption. Young started growing marijuana for medical users, and over the next twenty years, became one of the biggest producers and distributors of illicit medical marijuana in Canada. A once frequent contributor to High Times magazine and a regular medal winner at the international Cannabis Cup, Young has had to overcome every obstacle facing the guerilla grower, including crop theft, forest fire, police arrest, bankruptcy, home invasion, physical assault, and perhaps most intimidating of all, hungry male deer. In 2015, Young stepped onto the right side of the law when he was named master grower at Indiva, a licensed government-sanctioned producer of medical marijuana. Riveting, funny, and unsparingly truthful, Master Grower recalls one man's transformation from renegade gardener to boardroom participant, a high-octane voyage that also captures the way in which a culture's attitude toward its illegal substances can and will evolve.

Taking the High Road Bruce Katz, Robert Puentes, 2006-05-25 Since the early 1990s, federal transportation laws have slowly started to level the playing field between highway and alternative transportation strategies, as well as between older and newer communities. The Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 and the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century made substantial changes in transportation practices. These laws devolved greater responsibility for planning and implementation to urban development organizations and introduced more flexibility in the spending of federal highway and transit funds They also created a series of special programs to carry out important national objectives and they tightened the linkages between transportation spending and issues such as metropolitan air quality Taking the High Road examines the most pressing transportation challenges facing American cities suburbs and metropolitan areas The authors focus on the central issues in the ongoing debate and deliberations about the nation's transportation policy They go beyond the federal debate however to lay out an agenda for reform that responds directly to those responsible for putting these policies into practice leaders at the state metropolitan and local levels This book presents public officials with options for reform Hoping to build upon the progress and momentum of earlier transportation laws it ensures a better understanding of the problems and provides policymakers journalists and the public with a comprehensive guide to the numerous issues that must be addressed Topics include A wide ranging policy framework that addresses the reauthorization debate An examination of transportation finance and how it affects cities and suburbs An analysis of metropolitan decisionmaking in transportation The challenges of transportation access for working families and the elderly The problems of increasing traffic congestion and the lack of adequate alternatives Contributors include Scot

Quarterly Essay 80 The High Road Laura Tingle,2020-11-28 Australia and New Zealand are often considered close cousins But why despite being so close do we know so little about each other And now in the wake of COVID 19 is it time to change that In this wise and illuminating essay Laura Tingle looks at leadership character and two nations in transition In the past half century both countries have remade themselves amid shifting economic fortunes New Zealand has been held up as a model for everything from privatisation to the conduct of politics to the response to COVID Tingle considers how both countries have been governed and the different way each has dealt with its colonial legacy What could Australia learn from New Zealand And New Zealand from Australia This is a perceptive often amusing introduction to two countries alike in some ways but quite different in others Jacinda Ardern is not the first reason we have had to look across the Tasman and wonder whether there is another way of doing things New Zealand perhaps the only place in the world that has suffered isolation and the tyranny of distance more than Australia has repeatedly jumped out of its comfort zone and changed direction harder faster and for longer than Australia has done in the past half century Laura Tingle The High Road
