Hospital Architecture Guidelines For Design And Renovation:

Hospital Architecture David R. Porter, 1982 This book has attempted to devise a common language for hospital planning programming architecture engineering and construction A complete hospital project should be based upon a series of clear tasks and a straightforward schedule that is understood by the hospital consultant architect engineer and contractor An important feature of this book is the presentation of operational programming ratios The use of these ratios as a basis for sizing hospital department would give all of us a common method of reviewing hospital utilization Enormous differences in size ranging from 600 to 1 200 gross square feet per bed of hospitals in the same community should not exist A baseline measurement is needed for all hospitals in order to assure quality space for the patient and to contain excessive facility cost based upon department wish lists The AUPHA Manual of Health Services Management Robert J. Taylor, Susan B.

Taylor, 1994 With contributions from more than 30 authorities in the field this reference covers topics varying from management techniques to strategic planning To ownership and governance To a department by department breakdown of health care facility support services Professional Practice in Facility Programming (Routledge Revivals) Wolfgang Preiser, 2015-06-11 This compelling resource which was first published in 1993 was the first book on facility programming to design parameters and specifications over a broad range of project types The book's practical how to approach is exceedingly beneficial to professionals and students involved with a wide variety of building types from corporate facilities to parks day care centres health centres and correctional facilities It also covers the fine points of working with clients The contributors provide real world case studies endowing the reader with the tools necessary to reap a deeper understanding and a more critical assessment of the major programming approaches today Professional Practice in Facility Programming is a uniquely current self contained resource that will prove invaluable to a wide cross section of practitioners and students
