chases they've had all season when the fun is cut short by the theft of Crawford Howard's treasured Sir Alfred Munnings painting of a woman in hunting attire riding sidesaddle. When another painting goes missing five days later, also a Munnings, also of a woman hunting sidesaddle, Sister Jane knows it's no coincidence. Someone is stealing paintings of foxhunters from foxhunters. But why? Perhaps it's a form of protest against their sport. For the hunt club isn't just under attack from the thief. Mysterious signs have started to appear outside their homes decrying their way of life: stop foxhunting, a cruel sport, reads one that appears outside Crawford's house not long after his painting goes missing; no hounds barking shows up on the telephone pole outside Sister's driveway. Annoying but relatively harmless. Then Delores Buckingham, retired now but once a formidable foxhunter, is strangled to death after her own Munnings sidesaddle painting is stolen. Now Sister's not just up against a thief and a few obnoxious signs; she's on the hunt for a killer.

In November 1905, the peak of foxhunting season across the Midlands of England and up and down the east coast of North America, two towns in Virginia saw the coming of illustrious and wealthy men. There was to be a contest: a Great Hound Match between two packs of foxhounds, one English and one American. The English hounds carried on their great stout forearms and deep chests the monumental weight of centuries of foxhunting in England and were expected to make their hound dog ancestors proud of their New World conquest. The American hounds were expected to show those stodgy old Brits how it was done over here with spunk and intuition, individuality, drive, and nerve. This book chronicles this ostentatious match of Britain versus America at the turn of the century.

AN ENTIRE KINGDOM BUILT AROUND A SUPERNATURAL NEED FOR JUSTICE ENFORCED BY THE WILD HUNT AND THE HOUNDS OF HELL. Serrell,1904      Foxhunting in Paradise Michael Clayton,2012-12-17 In Foxhunting in Paradise a major work of research and practical exploration in and around the hunting field Michael Clayton brings entirely up to date histories of the Quorn Belvoir Cottesmore and Fernie Hunts He describes the glamour the risks and the controversy surrounding hunting in the paradise of Leicestershire s ridge and furrow grasslands divided by fly fences and dotted with fox coverts Royalty captains of industry young bloods from the services and not a few fortune hunters and courtesans have been among those gracing the houses and hunting fields of Leicestershire Yet the sport depends ultimately on the continued goodwill of the vast majority of Leicestershire s farmers and landowners a prize which has always been retained Clayton does not shrink from the essential conservation issues which he believes justify hunting and he deals with the most recent accusations against the sport s conduct in Leicestershire Foxhunting in Paradise throws new light on a peculiarly British phenomenon in an area of understated beauty in the heart of England described by the great hunting correspondent Nimrod thus In the absence of all perfection it is as a hunting country as nearly approaching to it as nature and art can make it and its fame may be said to have reached the remotest corners of the civilised world
