Fantasy and Feeling in Education Richard Matthew Jones, 1968 Fantasy and Feeling in Education Richard Matthew Jones, 1968 FANTASY AND FEELING IN EDUCATION. BY RICHARD MATTHEW JONES. Richard Matthew Jones, 1968 Fantasy and Feeling in Education, By Richard M. Jones Richard Matthew Jones, 1970 Education and Imagination Raya Jones, Austin Clarkson, Sue Congram, Nick Stratton, 2008-06-30 This edited book explores the application of Jungian perspectives in educational settings Fantasy and Feeling in Education Richard M. Jones, 1972 Fantasy and Feeling in Education, 1968 Cognitive and Affective Growth (PLE: Emotion) Shapiro Edna, Evelyn Weber, 2014-11-20 Originally published in 1981 this title is a collection of chapters based on papers presented at a conference called to explore what the editors called a developmental interaction point of view an approach to developmental psychology and education that stresses these interactive and reciprocal relations The contributors although from diverse professional backgrounds are united in their commitment to an integrative view of developmental phenomena one that highlights relationships among different aspects of development and the reciprocal nature of relations between people and their environments Schools and Screens Victoria Cain, 2024-02-06 Why screens in schools from film screenings to instructional television to personal computers did not bring about the educational revolution promised by reformers Long before Chromebook giveaways and remote learning screen media technologies were enthusiastically promoted by American education reformers Again and again as schools deployed film screenings television programs and computer games screen based learning was touted as a cure for all educational ills But the transformation promised by advocates for screens in schools never happened In this book Victoria Cain chronicles important episodes in the history of educational technology as reformers technocrats public television producers and computer scientists tried to harness the power of screen based media to shape successive generations of students Cain describes how beginning in the 1930s champions of educational technology saw screens in schools as essential tools for training citizens and presented films to that end Among the films screened for educational purposes was the notoriously racist Birth of a Nation In the 1950s and 1960s both technocrats and leftist educators turned to screens to prepare young Americans for Cold War citizenship and from the 1970s through the 1990s as commercial television and personal computers arrived in classrooms screens in schools represented an increasingly privatized vision of schooling and civic engagement Cain argues that the story of screens in schools is not simply about efforts to develop the right technological tools rather it reflects ongoing tensions over citizenship racial politics private funding and distrust of teachers Ultimately she shows that the technologies that reformers had envisioned as improving education and training students in civic participation in fact deepened educational inequities General Education in the Social Sciences John J. MacAloon, 1992-06 Higher education s most vibrant and contentious issues common and specialized learning in the curriculum conceptions of general and liberal education the design of common core sequences the merits of classic texts and contemporary research Western and non Western course materials the place of undergraduate teaching in scholarly careers have for decades been debated by the faculty of the College of the University of Chicago At the College they have become embodied in educational programs of sufficient historical depth to reveal patterns of intellectual and pedagogical continuity amidst changing social and institutional circumstances Social Science 2 holds the place of honor among these educational projects For more than half a century Soc 2 has been one of the most influential courses in American undergraduate education This unique year long course the oldest and most distinguished of its kind at any American university has served as an ongoing experiment in how the social sciences can be taught and learned in the general education context In this collection John MacAloon has gathered essays by fourteen eminent social scientists such as David Riesman Michael Schudson and F. C. W. Ward who as either teachers or students were profoundly shaped by Soc 2 Their multifarious and selective memories full of dissonances and harmonies of recollection judgment and voice create a compelling biography of a course and a college that have survived tumultuous change through sustained and committed argument This book will be of great interest to anyone interested not only in the theory but the practice of higher education

Traversing the Fantasy Sandra Meiri, Odeya Kohen-Raz, 2020-02-06 Traversing the Fantasy: The Dialectic of Desire Fantasy proposes a new and comprehensive model of spectatorship at the heart of which it draws an analogy between the ethics of Lacanian psychoanalysis and the ethics of narrative film It demonstrates how spectators engage with narrative film undergoing unconscious processes that generate a shift in the adherence to fantasies that impede assuming responsibility for one's fate and well-being The authors discuss the affinities that the ontology and aesthetics of narrative film share with subjective unconscious processes offering new insights into the popular appeal of narrative film through three film corpora analyzed at length body character breach films dreaming character films and gender crossing films With a range of case studies from the old Rebecca Vertigo Some Like It Hot to the new Being John Malkovich A Fantastic Woman Sandra Meiri and Odeya Kohen-Raz build on psychoanalytic ideas about the cinema and take them in a completely new direction that promises to be the basis for further developments in the field [Fantasy and feeling in education by Richard M.
