End Of Acting A Radical View:

The Routledge Companion to Studio Performance Practice Franc Chamberlain, Bernadette Sweeney, 2021-11-29

The Routledge Companion to Studio Performance Practice is a unique indispensable guide to the training methods of the world's key theatre practitioners. Compiling the practical work outlined in the popular Routledge Performance Practitioners series of guidebooks, each set of exercises has been edited and contextualised by an expert in that particular approach. Each chapter provides a taster of one practitioner's work, answering the same key questions: How did this artist work? How can I begin to put my understanding of this to practical use? Newly written chapter introductions put the exercises in context, explaining how they fit into the wider methods and philosophy of the practitioner in question. All 21 volumes in the original series are represented in this volume.

European Theatre Performance Practice, 1900 to the Present Geoff Willcocks, 2016-12-05. This volume captures the rich diversity of European performance practice evident in the twentieth and early part of the twenty-first century. Written by leading directors, actors, dancers, scenographers, and academics from across Europe, the collection spans a broad range of subject areas including dance, theatre, live art, multimedia, performance, and street protest. The essays are divided into three sections: on performers and performing, staging, performance, representation, and reception; and document innovations in acting, performance, and stagecraft by key practitioners. Articles also explore the ways that performance has been used to stage debates around major preoccupations of the age, such as war, the human condition, globalization, the impact of new technologies, and identity politics. This volume, which features previously published performance manifestoes, articles, and book chapters on the most frequently discussed and debated topics in the field, is an indispensable reference work for both academics and students.

Routledge Performance Practitioners offer unbeatable value for today's student.
