Post-Kyoto International Climate Policy Joseph E. Aldy,Robert N. Stavins,2009-12-03 The Harvard Project on International Climate Agreements is a global multi disciplinary effort intended to help identify the key design elements of a scientifically sound economically rational and politically pragmatic post 2012 international policy architecture for addressing the threat of climate change It has commissioned leading scholars to examine a uniquely wide range of core issues that must be addressed if the world is to reach an effective agreement on a successor regime to the Kyoto Protocol The purpose of the project is not to become an advocate for any single policy but to present the best possible information and analysis on the full range of options concerning mitigation adaptation technology and finance The detailed findings of the Harvard Project are reported in this volume which contains twenty seven specially commissioned chapters A companion volume summarizing the main findings of this research is published separately as Post Kyoto International Climate Policy Summary for Policymakers Intellectual Property and Clean Energy Matthew Rimmer, 2018-10-26 This collection considers the future of climate innovation after the Paris Agreement It analyses the debate over intellectual property and climate change in a range of forums including the climate talks the World Trade Organization and the World Intellectual Property Organization as well as multilateral institutions dealing with food health and biodiversity The book investigates the critical role patent law plays in providing incentives for renewable energy and access to critical inventions for the greater public good as well as plant breeders rights and their impact upon food security and climate change Also considered is how access to genetic resources raises questions about biodiversity and climate change This collection also explores the significant impact of trademark law in terms of green trademarks eco labels and greenwashing The key role played by copyright law in respect of access to environmental information is also considered The book also looks at deadlocks in the debate over intellectual property and climate change and provides theoretical policy and practical solutions to overcome such impasses

Accelerating Clean Energy Technology Research, Development, and Deployment Patrick Avato, Jonathan Coony, 2008-06-10 Climate change is one of the key challenges of this century At the same time energy use the primary source of climate altering global greenhouse gas emissions is increasing at unprecedented rates and is vital to the continued economic growth of developing countries This poses a serious dilemma that can only be reconciled with new and improved clean energy technologies that balance climate change mitigation and increased energy needs in developing countries Despite a recent increase in investment public and private research development and deployment RD D funding rates are well below historical levels In addition significant barriers impede the ability to develop new technologies such as the uncertain future value of CO2 emissions intellectual property rights issues limited incentives to commercialize technologies for developing countries and challenges with technology transfer These factors must be overcome to accelerate innovation in the energy sector To introduce new thinking to address these concerns this report examines four cases from outside the energy sector where creative approaches to RD D have successfully overcome similar barriers The case studies review approaches to innovation by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research Advanced Market Commitments for Vaccines the Human Genome Project and the concept of Distributed Innovation These case studies show how creative efforts can generate valuable public goods via i international partnerships between public and private actors ii information sharing and intellectual property rights and iii
