Engaging With Ethics:

Engaging with Ethics Mark Freakley, 2000 Engaging with ethics ethical inquiry for teachers Engaging with the World Margaret Scotford Archer, Andrea Maccarini, 2013 This title reflects the general theme of the 2010 IACR annual conference that was held in Padova Italy the aim of which was to provide a fresh view on some cultural and structural changes involving Western societies after the world economic crisis of 2008 from the point of view of Critical Realism Global society is often regarded as disrupting identities and blurring boundaries one which entails giving up ideas of structure and fixity Globalization supposedly introduces a liquid era of fluidity where everything is possible and anything goes Nevertheless its current dynamics are developing into a harder reality wars economic crisis the haunting risk of pandemics the ever worsening food supply crisis and the environmental challenge These social facts call for a dramatic shift in the optimistic cosmopolitan mood and the thought that we can build and rebuild ourselves and our world as we please at least for the most developed countries The challenges we face produce new forms of social life and individual experience They also require us to develop new frameworks to analyze emergent contexts institutional complexes and morphogenetic fields and new ways to understand human agency and the meaning of emancipation The book broadly falls into three parts The first Social Ontology and a New Historical Formation deals with mainly social ontological issues insofar as they are connected to social scientific and public issues in the emerging society of the XXI century The second Being human and the adventure of agency is concerned with the way human beings adapt to the new world of our times and comes up with innovative models of agency and socialization The third The constitutionalization of the new world explores critical realist perspectives as compared to system theoretical ones on the issue of global order and justice In all of this the challenge is to engage with this new world in a meaningful way a task for which a realist mind set is badly needed Critical realism provides a strong theoretical framework that can meet the challenge and the book explores its contribution to making sense of and coming to terms with this historical formation

International Criminological Research Michael Adorjan, Rose Ricciardelli, 2016-06-10. Despite a voluminous literature detailing the procedures of research ethics boards and institutional ethical review processes, there are few texts that explore the realpolitik of conducting criminal research in practice. This book explores the unique lived experiences of scholars engaging with ethics during their criminological research and focuses on the ethical dilemmas that researchers encounter both in the field and while writing up results for publication. Who benefits from criminological research? What are the roles and impacts of ethics review boards? How do methodological and theoretical decisions factor in to questions of ethical conduct and research ethics governance? This book is divided into four parts. Part I: Institutional arrangements and positionality explores the ongoing and expanding process of ethics protocol and procedures, principles of confidentiality and the positionality of the researcher. Part II: Trust and research with vulnerable populations examines the complexity of work involving prisoners, indigenous peoples and victims of extreme violence, power dynamics between researchers and participants and the challenges of informed consent. Part III: Research on and with police reflects on the importance of transparent relations with police, best practices and the consequences of undertaking research in authoritarian contexts. Part IV: Emerging areas scrutinizes the ethics of carceral tours and suggests possible alternatives and offers one of the first sociological and criminological examinations of dark net cryptomarkets. Drawing upon the experiences of international experts, this book aims to provoke further reflection on and discussion of ethics in practice. This book is ideal for students undertaking courses on research methods in criminology as well as a key resource for criminology researchers around the world. Ethics and Science Education: How Subjectivity Matters Jesse Bazzul, 2016-05-24. This book encapsulates a line of research that looks at how students are positioned as ethical actors, decision makers in biology education by science policy, curriculum and classroom resources. Its basis comes from a textbook study that examined how biology texts work to constitute subjectivities related to neoliberalism and global capitalism, sex, gender and sexuality and ethics. The study found that textbook discourses set limits on a) the types of ethical concerns represented, b) the modes of ethical engagement, c) the dispositions necessary to engage in ethical action or decision making. Policy reform, regulation and personal lifestyle choices were the primary ways students could approach ethical decision making or action. While these approaches are useful, they are likely not sufficient for dealing with major twenty-first century problems such as climate change and social inequality, along with new ethical dimensions introduced by biotechnologies and genomic research. This research brief sets a context for how discourses of science education policy and curricula work to shape a subject of ethics that is how students come to see themselves as participants in issues of ethical concern Drawing from a structural poststructural philosophical approach Science and Technology Studies educational research and a methodology based on discourse analysis and ethnography this book s overall goal is to assist with research into subjectivity ethics politics policy and socioscientific issues in science education
