The Fragrant Harbor Vida Chu, 2014-10-23 We begin with a pipa melody wafting in from the distance and a scholar lowering his wine cup and we step inside a world that is both exotic and familiar Magao Caves hewn by ancient monks sleeve dancers mountains painted Ming imperial red What makes this world familiar is the quiet intelligent often whimsical always brave voice of the poet attentive like her scholar to the fly on the brim of a hat or cicadas with their mating calls like marbles rattling in wooden boxes The Fragrant Harbor travels to a distant troubled Shanxi past and a pile white bones at Lake Kokonor to the shouting of Red Guards heard when holding a silver box shattered during the Cultural Revolution to a time of lost innocence when a gallon of gas cost less than a donut Vida Chu's book faces dislocation and loss and reminds us there are no easy solutions for anything yet she unflinchingly propels us into the future of grandma duty Hers is an art of resistance in the best sense It is a gentle art it is a tough art Like her Water that takes Tai Chi steps and pounds the rocks with fists like Kung Fu masters Vida Chu's The Fragrant Harbor helps us to meditate on the infinite This is poetry at its most fragrant its most potent its finest Christopher Bursk author of The Improbable Swervings of Atoms In The Fragrant Harbor Vida Chu takes us into vivid imagery of Chinese tales art works and her own childhood memories to illuminate the present world as colored by the past Chu bears witness to an American reality as seen through her Hong Kong roots ancient tomb sculpture a childhood beach in Hong Kong 1970s Beijing cyclists in drab blue Mao suits a 30 year old tight dress into which she can no longer fit no matter how much I wriggle like a snake I cannot get back into the molted skin With well chosen details and intense language she makes the reader share thoughts and feelings expressed in these poems Her work spans the ages a tapestry of foreign memoir and cunning observation woven together for us by Chu's gracious telling of her travel between two worlds Jean Hollander author of Crushed into Honey Fragrant Harbor Jaxie

Short,1970 Luxuriantly Literate Jean Long,2003-10 A girl in China in the 1920 s Margaret is not worth educating and certainly not worth the price of a steamship ticket to America Begging her father not to abandon her Margaret hopes to immigrate from China to the USA with the rest of her family Descended from families that broke away from tradition in extreme ways Margaret faces a life none of her ancestors could possibly have imagined Her mother with unbound feet constantly defies tradition Margaret s journey takes her from riding in jinrickshas to being a foreign student at the University of California She contends with a series of Asian American issues in rapidly changing times and increasingly lives in two worlds She is confronted with issues that her very Chinese parents face as well as her own identity as a Chinese national in an American setting rife with anti Asian sentiment

City Between Worlds Leo Ou-fan Lee,2010-05-01 Hong Kong is perched on the fault line between China and the West a Special Administrative Region of the PRC Leo Ou fan Lee offers an insider s view of Hong Kong capturing the history and culture that make his densely packed home city so different from its generic neighbors The search for an indigenous Hong Kong takes Lee to the wet markets and corner bookshops of congested Mong Kok remote fishing villages and mountainside temples teahouses and noodle stalls Cantonese opera and Cantopop But he also finds the real Hong Kong in a maze of interconnected shopping malls a jungle of high rise residential towers and the neon glow of Chinese owned skyscrapers in the Central Business District where land development global trade capital accumulation consumerism and free market competition trump every value except family Lee illuminates the relationship between Hong Kong s geography and its colonial experience revisiting colonial life on the secluded Peak in the opium filled godowns along the harborfront and in crowded plague infested tenements He examines with a critic s eye the Hong Kong story in film and fiction romance in the bars and brothels of Wan Chai crime in the walled city of Kowloon ennui on the eve of the 1997 handover Whether viewed from Tsing Yi Bridge or the deck of the Star Ferry from Victoria Peak or Lion Rock Hong Kong sparkles here in all its multifaceted complexity a city forever between worlds "Borrowed Plumage" Eugene Chen Eoyang,2003 This eclectic collection of essays focuses on a number of intriguing issues in translation some of these polemic essays challenge certain widespread beliefs and practices for example the belief that humor is untranslatable the assumption that translations are always inferior to the originals the spread of translations that are more impenetrable to the target audience than the originals ever were to the source language audience above all the notion that translation is a marginal rather than a major area of study indeed as one essay suggests translation may represent a model of thought and translating a mode of thinking These essays also consider the international trade in translations the ratio of translations out of the language and of translations into the language as a possible index to historical development analyze the humor that can be translated as well as the humor that cannot be translated uncover the implicit indicators of time and place in traditional Chinese poetry offering thereby a study in comparative deictics examine the hermeneutics of Old Testament exegeses which unlike the modern world privileged the oral over the written word discuss the subtle but definable differences between translations that appropriate previous versions by way of allusion and quotation and translations that merely plagiarize In the final section entitled Divertissements Eugene Eoyang provides an exposition of his translation of a poem first published in the People's Daily and since banned that contained a hidden and decidedly hostile acrostic in which the challenge was not only to convey the original meaning but also to preserve the disguise of the original meaning in the Chinese text The translation appeared in The New York Times He also offers a wry typology of translators comparing them metaphorically and paronomastically to different species of birds in a concluding coda he excavates the place names in bicultural and multilingual Hong Kong uncovering not only translations and transliterations but also heteronyms different names for the same place as well as remarkably phononyms names where the pronunciation of a word in one language happens to coincide with a word in another language with the same meaning The result is a provocative potpourri of fascinating insights into the cultural and semiotic complexities of translation that will surely interest students of translation literature linguistics and history as well as the informed general reader
