Guide to Wireless Network Security John R. Vacca, 2006-10-16 1
 INTRODUCTION With the increasing deployment of wireless networks 802.11 architecture in enterprise environments IT enterprises are working to implement security mechanisms that are equivalent to those existing today for wire based networks An important aspect of this is the need to provide secure access to the network for valid users Existing wired network jacks are located inside buildings already secured from unauthorized access through the use of keys badge access and so forth A user must gain physical access to the building in order to plug a client computer into a network jack In contrast a wireless access point AP may be accessed from off the premises if the signal is detectable for instance from a parking lot adjacent to the building Thus wireless networks require secure access to the AP and the ability to isolate the AP from the internal private network prior to user authentication into the network domain Furthermore as enterprises strive to provide better availability of mission critical wireless data they also face the challenge of maintaining that data's security and integrity While each connection with a client a supplier or a enterprise partner can improve responsiveness and efficiency it also increases the vulnerability of enterprise wireless data to attack In such an environment wireless network security is becoming more important every day Also with the growing reliance on e commerce wireless network based services and the Internet enterprises are faced with an ever increasing responsibility to protect their systems from attack Information Dissemination and Access in Russia and Eastern Europe Rachel Walker, Marcia Freed Taylor, 1998 This book is the outcome of an international workshop held at Essex University in August 1997 It fulfils three unique functions It examines obstacles and solutions to the promotion of access to and the dissemination of social science information In general little attention has been paid to the dissemination of social science information either nationally or internationally despite the fact that the information revolution is constantly in the headlines It brings together specialists from Russia Eastern and Western Europe to discuss these issues from the broad European perspective although particular attention is paid to the problems of dissemination and access in Russia and Eastern Europe which are rarely addressed in the Western literature It also brings together specialists from the three major communities involved in the circulation of information groups which rarely speak to each other data providers data brokers and data users The result is a series of illuminating insights into the access and dissemination issues confronting these different geographical and functional communities and some imaginative proposals about ways in which obstacles and problems might be overcome
