In Search Of The Working Class:

In Search of the Working Class Leon Fink, 1994 These nine essays by a prominent scholar in American labor history self consciously evoke the tensions between the worker as historical subject and the historian as outside observer Encompassing studies of labor culture strategy and movement building from the late nineteenth century to the present In Search of the Working Class also connects the trials of the early labor economists to the conceptual challenges facing today s academic practitioners Fink places American labor history in the broader context of American political historiography better than any other historian I can think of James R Barrett author of Work and Community in the Jungle Chicago s Packinghouse Workers 1894 1922

In Search of the New Working Class Gallie, 1978-04-27 Occupational sociology monograph on social implications of advanced automation for labour relations and working class social structure based on a comparison of capitalist industrial enterprises in the petroleum industry in France and UK covers new forms of social conflict social integration changes in employees attitude to work environment work organization wage rates and management and examines the level of workers participation in decision making and trade union strategies References and statistical tables

In Search of Our Past, 1980 In Search of Ireland Brian Graham, 2002-11-01 In Search of Ireland argues that Ireland s political problems are created by conflicts and confusions of identity It brings together a number of distinguished contributors each of whom examines a particular aspect of Ireland s diverse cultural geography and history Issues covered include the changing definitions of Irishness the roles of class and gender in constructing traditional alignments of identity the role of ethnicity in Irish society the invention and imagining of Irish place the political implications of a pluralistic Ireland The contributors demonstrate that many people both inside and outside of Ireland continue to define themselves and their conflicts through simple sectarian stereotypes The authors argue that politicians and others must reject these outdated either/or representations and accommodate instead the fluidity of Irish identity James Anderson University of Newcastle Upon Tyne S J Connolly Queens s University Belfast Neville Douglas Queen s University Belfast Brian Graham University of Ulster In Search of Eurocommunism Richard Kindersley, 2016-01-12 Working-Class Americanism Gary

Gerstle, 2021-04-13 In this classic interpretation of the 1930s rise of industrial unionism Gary Gerstle challenges the popular historical notion that American workers embrace of Americanism and other patriotic sentiments in the post World War I years indicated their fundamental political conservatism He argues that Americanism was a complex even contradictory language of nationalism that lent itself to a wide variety of ideological constructions in the years between World War I and the onset of the Cold War Using the rich and textured material left behind by New England s most powerful textile union the Independent Textile Union of Woonsocket Rhode Island Gerstle uncovers for the first time a more varied and more radical working class discourse In Search of Our Past: World history student manual, 1980 The Cultural Journeys of

Rural, Poor and Working-Class College Students Ty C. McNamee, 2025-06-16 With the goal of improving efforts and initiatives to promote college completion this book offers an engaging in depth analysis of the cultural journeys of rural poor and working class college students By examining select student stories through the lens of cultural flexibility cultural integration and cultural capital and wealth the author derives a collective understanding of how these students navigate their college experiences informing key recommendations for practice and policy This volume will be of interest to higher education researchers and scholars studying rurality social class equity and college success and completion as well as practitioners and policymakers looking to more effectively enroll and retain rural poor and working class college students

In Search of Brightest Africa Jeannette Eileen Jones, 2011-11-01 In the decades between the Berlin Conference that partitioned Africa and the opening of the African Hall at the American Museum of Natural History Americans in several fields and from many backgrounds argued that Africa had something to teach them Jeannette Eileen Jones traces the history of the idea of Africa with an eye to recovering the emergence of a belief in Brightest Africa a tradition that runs through American cultural and intellectual history with equal force to its Dark Continent counterpart Jones skillfully weaves disparate strands of turn of the century society and culture to expose a vivid trend of cultural engagement that involved both critique and activism Filmmakers spoke out against the depiction of savage Africa in the mass media while also initiating a countertradition of ethnographic documentaries Early environmentalists celebrated Africa as a pristine continent while lamenting that its unsullied landscape was vanishing New Negro political thinkers also wanted to save Africa but saw its fragility in terms of imperiled human promise Jones illuminates both the optimism about

Africa underlying these concerns and the racist and colonial interests these agents often nevertheless served The book contributes to a growing literature on the ongoing role of global exchange in shaping the African American experience as well as debates about the cultural place of Africa in American thought
