Linking Teacher Evaluation to Professional Development Laura Goe, Kietha Biggers, Andrew Croft, 2012 Recently teacher evaluation has become a major focus in educational policy debates and research efforts This increased attention to teacher evaluation has raised questions about the relationship between evaluation and student outcomes Rivkin Hanushek and Kain 2005 and others have demonstrated with value added research that there are sizeable differences among teachers in their ability to help students learn at high levels not just across schools but within schools These differences lie at the heart of the current approaches to measuring teacher effectiveness through teacher evaluation The results of these evaluations will be used in many districts and states for accountability purposes to make high stakes decisions about teachers Evaluation may be a tool to help teachers improve but school leaders often lack training in how to use evaluation results to guide teachers toward professional growth However both outcomes of evaluation for accountability and for improvement rely on the same foundation for making decisions reliable and valid evidence about teacher performance and student learning Questions to Support Alignment are appended Contains 1 figure and 2 tables Linking Teacher Evaluation and Student Learning Pamela D. School and District Leadership in an Era of Accountability Bruce G. Barnett,Alan R. Shoho,Alex J. Bowers,2013-09-01 Our fourth book in the International Research on School Leadership series focuses on school leadership in an era of high stakes accountability Fueled by sweeping federal education accountability reforms such as the United States No Child Left Behind NCLB and Race to the Top R2T and Australia s Performance Measurement and Reporting Taskforce school systems around the world are being forced to increase academic standards participate in high stakes testing and raise evaluation standards for teachers and principals These results driven reforms are intended to hold educators accountable for student learning and accountable to the public Anderson 2005 p 2 emphasis in original While policymakers and the public debate the merits of student achievement accountability measures P 12 educational leaders do not have the luxury to wait for clear guidance and resources to improve their schools and operating systems Instead successful leaders must balance the need to create learning communities manage the organizational climate and encourage community involvement with the consequences testing has on teacher morale and public scrutiny The chapters in this volume clearly indicate that as school leaders attend to these potentially competing forces this affects their problem solving strategies ability to facilitate change and encourage community involvement We were delighted with the responses from colleagues around the world who were eager to share their research dealing with how leaders are functioning effectively within a high accountability environment The nine chapters in this volume provide empirical evidence of the strategies school leaders use to cope with problems and negotiate external demands while improving student performance. In particular, the voices and actions of principals, superintendents, and school board members are captured in a blend of quantitative and qualitative studies. The breadth of studies is impressive, ranging from case studies of individual principals to cross-district comparisons to national data from the National Center for Education Statistics. To highlight important findings, we have organized the book into five sections. The first section, Chapters 2, 3, and 4, highlights the problem-solving strategies used by principals and superintendents when pressured to turn around low-performing schools. In the second section, Chapters 5 and 6, attention is devoted to ways in which school leaders act as buffers by reducing the impact of external demands within their local school contexts. Next, Chapters 7 and 8 explore creative ways in which financial analyses can be used to assess the cost-effectiveness of programs and services. Chapters 9 and 10 examine how principals enact their instructional leadership roles in managing curriculum reforms and evaluating teachers. Finally, in the last section, Chapter 11, Kenneth Leithwood synthesizes the major themes and ideas emerging across these chapters, paying particular attention to practical issues influencing school leaders in this era of school reform and accountability, as well as promising areas for future research.

Reclaiming Accountability in Teacher Education Marilyn Cochran-Smith, Molly Cummings Carney, Elizabeth Stringer Keefe, Stephani Burton, Wen-Chia Chang, M. Beatriz Fernández, Andrew F. Miller, Juan Gabriel Sánchez, 2018. Teacher accountability has been a major strategy for fixing education for the last 2 decades. In this book, Cochran-Smith and her research team argue that it is time for teacher educators to reclaim accountability by adopting a new approach that features intelligent professional responsibility, challenges the structures and processes that reproduce inequity, and sustains multi-layered collaboration with diverse communities. The authors analyze and critique major accountability initiatives, including Department of Education regulations, CAEP accreditation procedures, NCTQ teacher preparation reviews, and edTPA, and expose the lack of evidence behind these policies, as well as the negative impact they are having on teacher education. However, the book does not conclude that accountability is the wrong direction for the next generation of teacher education. Instead, the authors offer a clear and achievable vision of accountability for teacher education based on a commitment to equity and democracy. This book should be at the center of teacher education conversations everywhere.
