BIOGRAPHY IN LITERARY CRITICISM

I

Since, in its reaction against the biographical criticism that tended to make the study of literature into a study of the literary personality, the proponents of the 'New Criticism' simply legislated against biography tout court as a part of genuine criticism, there has been little significant theoretical discussion of the proper role of biographical accounts in literary criticism. Of the theoretical 'schools' that became popular after the 'New Criticism', structuralism with its emphasis on the work as an autonomous structural unit, the meaning of which was a function of a syntagmatic combination of minimal units, left no room at all for the notion of an utterer or an author as an origin of the literary work. In poststructuralist criticism the author was reintroduced, but as the 'figure in the carpet', a function of the text, and not as a person-in-the-world:

If the author is a novelist, he inscribes himself in his text as one of his characters, as another figure sewn into the rug; his signature is no longer privileged and paternal, the locus of genuine truth, but rather, ludic. He becomes a 'paper author': his life is no longer the origin of his fables, but a fable that runs concurrently with his work. There is a reversal, and it is the work which affects the life, not the life which affects the work: the work of Proust and Genet allows us to read their lives as text. The word 'biography' reassumes its strong meaning, in accordance with its etymology. At the same time, the enunciation's sincerity, which has been a veritable 'cross' of literary morality, becomes a false problem: the I that writes the text, is never itself, anything more than a paper I.¹

In this type of theory the notion of an independent, individual self is held to be a bourgeois fiction. Consequently, all that one can mean when one talks

Kaufmann, 2015-06-09 Originally published in 1959 The Faith of a Heretic is the most personal statement of the beliefs of Nietzsche biographer and translator Walter Kaufmann A first rate philosopher in his own right Kaufmann here provides the fullest account of his views on religion Although he considered himself a heretic he was not immune to the wellsprings and impulses from which religion originates declaring it among the most vital and radical expressions of the human mind Beginning with an autobiographical prologue that traces his evolution from religious believer to heretic the book touches on theology organized religion morality suffering and death all examined from the perspective of a quest for honesty Kaufmann also subjects philosophy's faith in truth reason and absolute morality to the same heretical treatment The resulting exploration of the faiths of a nonbeliever in a secular age is as fresh and challenging as when it was first published In a new foreword Stanley Corngold vividly describes the intellectual and biographical milieu of Kaufmann's provocative book Handbook of Autobiography / Autofiction Martina

Wagner-Egelhaaf, 2019-01-29 Autobiographical writings have been a major cultural genre from antiquity to the present time General questions of the literary as e.g. the relation between literature and reality truth and fiction the dependency of author narrator and figure or issues of individual and cultural styles etc. can be studied preeminently in the autobiographical genre Yet the tradition of life writing has in the course of literary history developed manifold types and forms Especially in the globalized age where the media and other technological cultural factors contribute to a rapid transformation of lifestyles autobiographical writing has maintained even enhanced its popularity and importance By conceiving autobiography in a wide sense that includes memoirs diaries self portraits and autofiction as well as media transformations of the genre this three volume handbook offers a comprehensive survey of theoretical approaches systematic aspects and historical developments in an international and interdisciplinary perspective While autobiography is usually considered to be a European tradition special emphasis is placed on the modes of self representation in non Western cultures and on inter and transcultural perspectives of the genre The individual contributions are closely interconnected by a system of cross references The handbook addresses scholars of cultural and literary studies students as well as non academic readers Metabiography

Caitríona Ní Dhúill, 2020-03-09 This book explores the contradictions of biography It charts shifting approaches to the writing and reading of biographies from post hagiographical attitudes of the Enlightenment heroic biographies of Romanticism and irreverent modernist portraits through to contemporary experiments in politically committed and hybrid forms of life writing The book shows how biographical texts in fact destabilise the models of historical visibility cultural prominence and narrative coherence that the genre itself seems to uphold Addressing the fraught relationships between genre and gender private and public image and text life and narrative that play out in the modern biographical tradition Metabiography suggests new possibilities for reading writing and thinking about this enduringly popular genre Reader's Guide to Literature in English
