Linguistics Of Punctuation:

The Linguistics of Punctuation Geoffrey Nunberg, 1990-09 Geoffrey Nunberg challenges a widespread assumption that the linguistic structure of written languages is qualitatively identical to that of spoken language. It should no longer be necessary to defend the view that written language is truly language but it is surprising to learn of written language category indicators that are realized by punctuation marks and other figural devices. He shows that traditional approaches to these devices tend to describe the features of written language exclusively by analogy to those of spoken language with the result that punctuation has been regarded as an unsystematic and deficient means for presenting spoken language intonation. Analysed in its own terms however punctuation manifests a coherent linguistic subsystem of text grammar that coexists in writing with the system of lexical grammar that has been the traditional object of linguistic inquiry. A detailed analysis of the category structure of English text sentences reveals a highly systematic set of syntactic and presentational rules that can be described in terms independent of the rules of lexical grammar and are largely matters of the tacit knowledge that writers acquire without formal instruction. That these rules obey constraints that are structurally analogous to those of lexical grammar leads Nunberg to label the text grammar an application of the principles of natural language organization to a new domain. Geoffrey Nunberg is a researcher at Xerox Palo Alto Research Center.

Linguistics and Multilingualism Mirosław Pawlak, Larissa Aronin, 2013-09-18 This book brings together papers dealing with essential issues in applied linguistics and multilingualism that have been contributed by leading figures in these two fields and present state of the art developments in theory and research. The first part includes articles touching on various aspects of multiple language acquisition with a particular emphasis on the role of affordances, the interfaces between language and thought and factors influencing the process of language learning. Part Two deals with individual variations in the acquisition of additional languages focusing in particular on the impact of such variables as age, aptitude, motivation and learning deficits. Finally, Part Three presents contributions illuminating key issues in the acquisition of different subsystems and skills such as grammar, phonology, lexis and writing systems. Thanks to the diversity of perspectives on applied linguistics and multilingualism as well as the cutting edge nature of some of the proposals, this edited collection will be an important reference work and a source of inspiration for theorists and researchers.

Early English Poetic Culture and Meter Lindy Brady, M J Toswell, 2016-10-21 This volume develops G R Russom's contributions to early English meter and style including his fundamental reworkings and rethinking of accepted and oft repeated mantras including his word foot theory, concern for the late medieval context for alliterative meter and the linguistics of punctuation and translation as applied to Old English texts. Ten eminent scholars from across the field take up Russom's ideas to lead readers in new and exciting directions.

Variational Text Linguistics Christoph Schubert, Christina Sanchez-Stockhammer, 2016-05-24 Owing to the ever increasing possibilities of communication especially with the advent of modern communication technologies register analysis offers a constantly widening range of research opportunities Still research has mainly concentrated on well established and frequent registers such as newspaper articles while many descriptive and theoretical issues have not yet been sufficiently investigated This volume gives a state of the art insight into register studies and points out emerging trends as well as new directions for future research Furthermore it provides a forum for the description and discussion of registers which have not received an appropriate amount of attention so far In particular it deals with specialized offline and online registers cross register comparison as well as regional contrastive and diachronic register variation In parallel to the new discipline of variational pragmatics this volume aims to foster the discipline of variational text linguistics and to initiate fundamental investigations in this area This field of research provides new insights into the concept of register since it covers both functional and regional types of textual variation
