Public Administration in an Information Age I. Th. M. Snellen, Wim B. H. J. van de Donk, 1998 This book is a joint effort of researchers who have been involved in research projects and programmes that have been trying to chart and reflect upon the implications of Information and Communication Technologies ICTs for Public Administration Tilburg Rotterdam Kassel Irvine Nottingham Glasgow Since the fifties computers had largely facilitated and the transformation of the minimal Night Watch state into the modern Welfare state through their contribution to their effectivity productivity and efficiency In most Handbooks of Public Administration computers are seen as neutral instruments and most of the time the role of computer technologies in the transformation of public administration is completely neglected This deafening silence is a great contrast with the way ICT s are actually changing public administration The faster the developments in a field of study are the more difficult it is to let the theories related to that field of study mature In such circumstances most statements will remain provisional and context dependent 25 years of research in Irvine California and Kassel Germany and more than 10 years of research in Tilburg Rotterdam The Netherlands and about seven years of research in Glasgow Nottingham the United Kingdom nonetheless enables the presentation of a modest image of public administration as it is entering the information age Researchers in each of these groups have nevertheless not stopped trying to phrase theories about the implications of informatization for public administration with a more or less large scope that are robust in different contexts and over longer periods of time These results and theories covering a broad set of elements of the body of knowledge of public administration are presented in this volume As the authors try to demonstrate in this book informatization developments in public administration do not only challenge the existing body of knowledge of the public administration discipline but they are also opening up new perspectives and paradigms for the study of public administration Information Systems in the Political World K. J. J. M. Bekkers,Vincent Homburg,2005 It seems that only a short time ago numerous academics and practitioners in the field were somewhat blinded by the successes of the dot com developments in the private sector and some of them enthusiastically claimed that public administration was to be revolutionized But that did not happen and also the dot com soap bubble burst This suggests that there is much yet to be learned about innovation in public administration especially about innovations at the cornerstones of technological and institutional transformations New and more fully developed formulations of theory into practice are needed The goal of the editors of this book is to contribute to some aspects of the understanding of e government In order to understand electronic government one has to scrutinize the various environments and contexts in which the government is developed and implemented. As such, it builds upon the biological and environmental lines of reasoning that have been suggested by authors like Bonnie Nardi and Vicky O Day and Thomas Davenport and Laurence Prusak.

Integration and Clustering for Sustainable Economic Growth Elena G. Popkova, Valentina E. Sukhova, Aleksey F. Rogachev, Yulia G. Tyurina, Olga A. Boris, Valentina N. Parakhina, 2017-02-28

This book describes the importance of integration and clustering in creating sustainable economic growth. Modern economic conditions demonstrate the need for governmental stimulation of cluster initiatives in entrepreneurship and make it necessary to study the experience of developed countries in the sphere of stimulation of cluster initiatives in entrepreneurship and to offer recommendations for improving the system of state stimulation of these initiatives. The authors conclude that at present, the innovative economy is an economic system that functions on the basis of business networks, as this model offers innovative cooperation between specialists from various scientific and technical spheres, between organizations of various sizes (large, medium, and small) and between groups of various types of companies. Cluster strategy in modern global practice is one of the most important tools of public policy for increasing the competitiveness of national economies. This means that the most competitive spheres develop on the basis of the cluster principle, and support for cluster building increases a country's economic competitiveness.
