

COVID-19: Healthcare Workers' Adherence to Infection Prevention and Control Guidelines

By reviewing prior studies of barriers and facilitators of health care worker (HCW) adherence to infection prevention and control (IPC) guidelines for respiratory illnesses, this rapid review seeks to provide guidance for developing IPC strategies amidst the COVID-19 pandemic.

Methodology

Strategies for Increased IPC Adherence

High confidence findings raised 3 main strategies for IPC adherence:

Clear communication of IPC strategy is needed for good implementation

Infection-specific training and instruction in proper use of PPE boost adherence

Discomfort of PPE reduced adherence; ensure proper fit to overcome this barrier

Limitations

1. Data is qualitative in nature, so statistical analysis cannot be done.
2. Difficult to extrapolate to a pandemic with the associated mental stress and PPE restrictions on HCW.
3. Data was obtained via rapid review, so it may not be fully comprehensive.

This review suggests that clear, infection-specific IPC strategies, along with prioritizing well-fitting PPE, may improve HCW adherence to guidelines for COVID-19.
