Among the Disciplines Barbara Heritage, Donna A. C. Sy, 2025-05-15 Teaching Text Technologies and Critical Bibliography Among the Disciplines Objects of Study is a richly illustrated volume consisting of 23 methods based chapters discussing innovative and often experimental approaches to hands on teaching with material texts Featuring 47 contributors whose work ranges from digital humanities librarianship curation and conservation to architecture culinary history fine art literary history and the history of science the collection builds on new work in the areas of text technologies and critical bibliography emerging scholarly approaches being embraced in the humanities The book features established experts in bibliography the history of the book manuscript studies and textual editing as well as educators and students who are applying new critical bibliographical methods e g Black bibliography to their pedagogy The result is a dynamic cross disciplinary cross generational exchange modeling inclusive pedagogies with textual artifacts and illuminating how object oriented teaching can harness the insights of diverse branches of practice and learning Epistolary Practices William Merrill Decker, 2000-11-09 Letters have long been read as primary sources for biography and history but their performative fictive and textual dimensions have only recently attracted serious notice In this book William Merrill Decker examines the place of the personal letter in American popular and literary culture from the colonial to the postmodern period After offering an overview of the genre Decker explores epistolary practices that coincide with American experiences of space settlement separation and reunion He discusses letters written by such well known and well educated persons as John Winthrop Benjamin Franklin Thomas Jefferson Abigail and John Adams Nathaniel Hawthorne Margaret Fuller Henry David Thoreau Samuel Clemens Henry James and Alice James but also letters by persons who except in their correspondence were not writers at all indentured servants New England factory workers slaves soldiers and Western pioneers Individual chapters explore the letter writing of Ralph Waldo Emerson Emily Dickinson and Henry Adams three of America's most ambitious accomplished and theoretically astute letter writers Finally Decker considers the ongoing transformation of letter writing in Women Editing/Editing Women Chanita Goodblatt, Ann Hollinshead Hurley, 2009-01-14 This the electronic age collection of essays links current research in the writings and editing of early modern women and in those women who were themselves early editors with a new methodology of editing currently titled the new textualism As such the collection seeks to solve two problems The first concerns the difficulty of editing the works of early modern women writers for whom there is little biographical data a challenging task when the standard life and works format is thus inhibited Second related but slightly different occurs because although we know that there were women who edited in the early modern and even later periods we know little about them as well The new textualism approach to editing which focuses on the material properties of the manuscript or book its print or performance history and records of its dissemination and the sociology of texts provides a fruitful solution to both problems by broadening the concept of agency and hence provides a richer context for the production of a given text The collection includes two sets of essays One set has been reprinted from seminal works in the field of new textualism These include writings by recognized figures like Jerome McGann Leah Marcus and Wendy Wall among others As such that set provides background for the reading of the second a group of six original essays by scholars now working in the field of early modern women writers who directly apply aspects of the new textualism in their research The fusion of the research field of retrieving early modern women writers with the practices of new textualist editing is thus the core of this collection of essays and is illustrative of what can be achieved in the field of editing when this new approach to texts is put into practice
