Guide For Change Resources For Implementing Community Service Writing:

Adolescence in the 21st Century Frances R. Spielhagen, Paul D. Schwartz, 2013-12-01 What is wrong with young people today This question has captured the concerns of the older generation about the habits and attitudes of the adolescents in their midst The assumption is that there is indeed something wrong with young people Even Plato must have rolled his eyes as he relates his diatribe about the adolescents of Greece Is the current generation of adolescents less motivated or less focused than their parents How will they respond to the challenges facing them as they progress to adulthood When in fact do they become adults Although every generation draws upon their own unique and varied experiences the speed of our current societal changes has created a very different adolescent passage for contemporary youth than ever before The world as we know it has changed significantly and because of it much of today's youth is decidedly different from their parents Adolescence itself has shifted dramatically Young children are displaying adolescent behaviors well before they are ready to act on or understand their meaning and older adolescents are staying perpetual children As one writer put it the conveyor belt that transported adolescents into adulthood has broken down This book provides an interdisciplinary collection of research on the constants and challenges faced by young people today Failure to launch Social media Economic stagnation For the generation that is coming of age in a post terrorist world and in the midst of economic upheaval the challenges might seem insurmountable However in this book scholars from across the academy from sociology psychology education philosophy science and business explain how the young people today are responding to the constants of growth and change in adolescence and the unique challenges of life in the 21st century Michigan Journal of Community Service Learning, 2005

Learning in the Plural David D. Cooper, 2014-04-01 Can civic engagement rescue the humanities from a prolonged identity crisis How can the practices and methods the conventions and innovations of humanities teaching and scholarship yield knowledge that contributes to the public good These are just two of the vexing questions David D Cooper tackles in his essays on the humanities literacy and public life As insightful as they are provocative these essays address important issues head on and raise questions about the relevance and roles of humanities teaching and scholarship the moral footings and public purposes of the humanities engaged teaching practices institutional and disciplinary reform academic professionalism and public scholarship in a democracy Destined to stir discussion about the purposes of the humanities and the problems we face during an era of declining institutional support public alienation and misunderstanding student ambivalence and diminishing resources the questions Cooper raises in this book are uncomfortable and in his view necessary for reflection renewal and reform With frank deft assessments Cooper reports on active learning initiatives that reenergized his own teaching life while reshaping the teaching mission of the humanities including service learning collaborative learning the learning community movement and student centered and deliberative pedagogy Rhetorical Education In America Cheryl Jean Glenn, 2009-03-15 A timely collection of essays by prominent scholars in the field on the past present and future of rhetoric instruction From Isocrates and Aristotle to the present rhetorical education has consistently been regarded as the linchpin of a participatory democracy a tool to foster civic action and social responsibility Yet questions of who should receive rhetorical education in what form and for what purpose continue to vex teachers and scholars The essays in this volume converge to explore the purposes problems and possibilities of rhetorical education in America on both the undergraduate and graduate levels and inside and outside the academy William Denman examines the ancient model of the citizen orator and its value to democratic life Thomas Miller argues that English departments have embraced a literary research paradigm and sacrificed the teaching of rhetorical skills for public participation Susan Kates explores how rhetoric is taught at nontraditional institutions such as Berea College in Kentucky where Appalachian dialect is espoused Nan Johnson looks outside the academy at the parlor movement among women in antebellum America Michael Halloran examines the rhetorical education provided by historical landmarks where visitors are encouraged to share a common public discourse Laura Gurak presents the challenges posed to traditional notions of literacy by the computer the promises and dangers of internet technology and the necessity of a critical cyber literacy for future rhetorical curricula Collectively the essays coalesce around timely political and cross disciplinary issues Rhetorical Education in America serves to orient scholars and teachers in rhetoric regardless of their disciplinary home and help to set an agenda for future classroom practice and curriculum design

A Guide for Change Ann Watters, Marjorie Ford, 1994 A GUIDE FOR CHANGE is designed for instructors and students who would like to integrate real world writing projects into their courses The wide range of writing options presented include a letter to the editor an article for a community newsletter a research paper geared toward a topic of community interest for submission to local government or community agency and an informational brochure or a grant proposal While different from academic writing these writing activities directly reinforce for students the need to follow a form that is appropriate to a particular situation and to take the audience's expectations into account The opportunity for students to pursue real writing for their class or community challenges them to engage the attention of their audience to inform them honestly and to convince them to listen to their point of view A GUIDE FOR CHANGE provides a complete guide for incorporating real world writing projects into the classroom with a variety of practical worksheets two casebooks and models of community service writing projects It can be used alone or with the companion reader WRITING FOR CHANGE Instructor's Manual to Accompany Woolever, Writing for the Technical Professions Bernadette Longo, 1999 Teaching/writing in the Late Age of Print Jeffrey R. Galin, Carol Peterson Haviland, J. Paul Johnson, 2003 Although several anthologies have collected articles on issues confronting composition studies no other text looks at student writing as does Teaching Writing in the Late Age of Print No other volume has asked compositionists to use student writing to reflect on their teaching practices No other volume has provided the rich breadth of response that reflects the current state of composition in the United States And no other volume has defined its primary task as portraying the diversity of the field through teaching practices as represented in student writing Most important of all no other volume has provided all course materials and supplemental documentation online as an integral part of such a project There is a keyword reference table that allows readers to read chapters based on key terms in the field like collaboration Each chapter begins with an abstract for easy reference The companion website for this book includes a searchable database of all the chapter abstracts assignments excerpts from all contributions extended course materials that help contextualize the printed chapters and an online forum for teachers and researchers to meet and discuss their research interests
