Abstract: Vocabulary acquisition is an integral part of learning a language which involves a challenging process. Hence, the implementation of efficient vocabulary learning strategies should be done among different English classes to make it easier for students to enhance their vocabulary skills. While the pandemic made it more challenging for learners to study and master English vocabulary, the rise of online instructional materials is highly appreciated for it is more convenient for the students to learn. This quasi-experimental study was an attempt to determine the effectiveness of an Online Remediation Program in enhancing the vocabulary skills of Junior High School students. A total of 20 Grade 7 students from University of Saint Louis participated in the online remediation program and answered the vocabulary pre-test and post-test. The researchers utilized pre-test and post-test that were consisted of a 30-item multiple choice to measure the vocabulary skills of the participants. This study followed three phases of data gathering: First, a pre-test was administered to the participants before the utilization of the proposed vocabulary development remediation program. Second, the proposed vocabulary development remediation program was implemented to the target participants. Third, a post-test was administered to the participants after the utilization of the vocabulary development remediation program. Frequency and percentage was used to interpret the pre-test and post-test scores of the participants while independent sample T-test was used to test the significant difference between their pre-test and post-test scores. Results revealed that the post-test scores of the students were higher than their pre-test scores. In addition, the findings showed that there is a significant difference on the pre-test and post-test scores of the participants. Finally, the overall evaluation of the participants to the Online Remediation Program is Excellent. Thus, the study concludes that the utilization of Project STRIVE is effective in enhancing the vocabulary skills of Grade 7 students.

1. INTRODUCTION:

Language is a vital part of every individual and a key component of communication. It is an actor that both shapes, and is shaped by the social community in which it plays significant role [1]. Without language, it is difficult to express one's idea to other people in the different areas of the world. We are living in a multilingual world that is becoming globalized and therefore, it is important to know more than one language [2]. Being proficient in two or more languages makes an individual a competent one, most especially when mastering the English language. English language proficiency is the ability of an individual to communicate effectively in English. In today's world, where the medium of instruction in almost every university is English, this is a necessary skill [3]. Considering this close relationship between vocabulary knowledge and language learning, one cannot deny the importance of vocabulary knowledge in general language ability, which is to have the necessary competencies in a Tramontana, Stephen R. Hooper, 2013-11-21 Neuropsychology has its roots in clinical neurology Reading case descriptions by 19th century neurologists such as Wernicke's painstakingly detailed examinations of patients with the aphasic symptom complex makes it obvious that neuropsychology is not a new discipline Even the marriage with psychology is not new the neurologist Arnold Pick for example was fully conversant with the developments in contemporary psychological as well as linguistic research However the primary focus of 19th and early 20th century psychology was on general psychology and only a small number of psychologists ventured into what then was called differential psychology the psychology of individual differences including a few who became attached to neurological research and rehabilitation units after World War I It remained until World War II for psychologists to establish a more solid working relationship with neurology What psychology had to offer to neurology was its experimental skill the development of a sophisticated methodology and for clinical work the development of psychometrics On the whole the marriage between the two disciplines has been fruitful leading to new insights models and discoveries about brain behavior relationships documented in several textbooks which appeared in rapid succession since the 1960s In clinical practice neuropsychology has been inventive in some respects in others merely introducing psychometric rigor to already existing neurological examinations As described in greater detail in this book developmental neuropsychology is of even more recent origin Neurology and Trauma Randolph W.
