

Blended Instructional Model Based on Participatory Communication with Round Table Using Social Media to Enhance Creative Criticism Writing Ability for Undergraduate Students: A Synthesis and Proposed Model

Wanchanapol Wibudyanarin

Abstract—This paper presents a blended instructional model based on participatory communication approach with round table activity using social media to enhance creative criticism writing ability for undergraduate students. This instructional model was analyzing and synthesizing the theoretical perspectives and related researches of Participatory communication, Social media, Round table, and Creative criticism writing. The content analysis and synthesis revealed that five major processes of the model for enhancing creative criticism writing ability included (1) Determine, (2) Plan, (3) Proceed, (4) Acknowledge, and (5) Evaluate. The results of this study will be a prototype for instruction in a bachelor level to enhance creative criticism writing ability and also help lecturers design their curricula with social media to gain more interesting in the learning activities.

Index Terms—Participatory communication, round table, social media, creative criticism writing.

I. INTRODUCTION

Writing is the representation of speech or the visual signs and symbols that humans created and continue to create sometimes for communicative purposes, other times for expressing and sharing message thought feeling, emotion, and etc. Thus writer as sender to reader as receiver. In all language abilities, writing is the most difficult and complex to practice and enhance, as well as becomes a necessary ability according to the national educational standards for professional workers in many countries [1] now require that work graduates build and demonstrate a skills base in professional writing. In education realm, undergraduate students spend a great deal of their studying day involved in written communication. Writing abilities then are just as important as spoken ones in the knowledge and skills base employers need for professional work practice. Thus, if students were acutely aware of the importance of professional writing ability especially Creative criticism writing blended critical and creative writing ability together, they would maintain accurate their written works, and to be thinkers respectively as well as their ideas could be reasoned and tested because of being screened and assessed carefully. The ideas, in addition, were thought and described in term of writers' words. This is one of the best ways of promoting and intensifying students linguistic and intellectual development that comes to reflect their maturity and expertise [2].

The results of literature review stated that creative criticism writing could be enhanced by accompanying with various methods such as collaborative learning [3], group writing process [4], [5], brainstorming technique [6], [7] internet and computer technology as a tool and etc. [8], [9], [10] thus the researcher selected participatory communication process, some categories of social media, round table technique, and have to write as creative criticism to be a conceptual framework for developing this model that would be an instructional approach for lecturers to enhance creative criticism writing ability of undergraduate students efficiently.

II. PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

The purposes of this study were:

- 1) To develop conceptual framework for the blended instructional model based on participatory communication with round table using social media to enhance creative criticism writing ability for undergraduate students.
- 2) To study the experts' opinions on the model.

III. LITERATURE REVIEW

The researcher studied the theoretical perspectives and related researches, including contents of Participatory communication, Social media, Round table, and Creative criticism writing which provided more details as following:

Participatory communication is defined as a two-way communication process of sharing information [11], [12] by entering into dialogues between the parties involved in development or receivers and the information sources, [13] mediated by development communicators as reversal facilitators, [14] Both of them are able to switch their roles between sender and receiver as "Participants" [15], free, and have equal access to the means of expressing their viewpoints, feelings, and experiences. [16] Collective action aimed at promoting their interests, solving their problems and transforming their society, is the means to an end [17]-[20]. Participatory communication process could be divided into five steps [21] as Fig. 1. In this study, all steps of participatory communication were selected as an umbrella term for developing the model.

Re-worlding of Intentionality Jim Ruddy, 2016-06-24 In this book Jim Ruddy has proceeded deep into the hub center of Husserl's transcendental subjectivity and unearthed an utterly new phenomenological method. A vast origination a priori science emerges for the reader. Ruddy presents a unique and powerful eidetic science wherein the object consciousness of Husserl is suddenly shown to point beyond itself to the ultimate theme of the pure subject consciousness of God as He is in Himself. Thus the book opens up an endlessly new unrestricted realm of objective material for phenomenology to exfoliate and describe. This is an important work for both general phenomenologists and for scholars of Husserl, Aquinas, and Edith Stein.

Creative Work Beyond the Creative Industries Greg Hearn, Ruth Bridgstock, Ben Goldsmith, Jess Rodgers, 2014-06-27 Creative workers are employed in sectors outside the creative industries often in greater numbers than within the creative field. This is the first book to explore the phenomena of the embedded creative and creative services through a range of sectors.

The Language of Creative AI Craig Vear, Fabrizio Poltronieri, 2022-11-05 Creative AI defines art and media practices that have AI embedded into the process of creation but also encompass novel AI approaches in the realisation and experience of such work: e.g. robotic art, distributed AI artworks across locations, AI performers, artificial musicians, synthetic images generated by neural networks, AI authors and journalist bots. This book builds on the discourse of AI and creativity and extends the notion of embedded and co-operative creativity with intelligent software. It does so through a human-centred approach in which AI is empowered to make the human experience more creative. It presents ways of thinking and doing by the creators themselves so as to add to the ongoing discussion of AI and creativity at a time when the field needs to expand its thinking. This will avoid over-academization of this emerging field and help counter engrained prejudice and bias. The Language of Creative AI contains technical descriptions, theoretical frameworks, philosophical concepts and practice-based case studies. It is a compendium of thinking around creative AI for technologists, human-computer interaction researchers and artists who are wishing to explore the creative potential of AI.

Deleuze and Guattari's Immanent Ethics Tamsin Lorraine, 2011-08-01 In Deleuze and Guattari's Immanent Ethics, Tamsin Lorraine focuses on the pragmatic implications of Deleuze and Guattari's work for human beings struggling to live ethical lives. Her bold alignment of Deleuze and Guattari's project with the feminist and phenomenological projects of grounding human action in lived experience provides an accessible introduction to their work. Lorraine characterizes Deleuze and Guattari's nonfoundational approach to ethics in terms of a notion of power that comes into skillful confluence with the multiple forces of life and an immanent principle of flourishing while their conception of philosophical thought is portrayed as an intervention in the ongoing movement of life that she enacts in her own exploration of their ideas. She contends that Deleuze and Guattari advocate unfolding the potential of our becoming in ways that enhance our participation in the creative evolution of life and she characterizes forms of subjectivity and cultural practice that could support such evolution. By means of her lucid reading taken through the lens of feminist philosophy, Lorraine is not only able to present clearly Deleuze and Guattari's project but also an intriguing
