

TYPES OF MEMORY

Analyzes and determines whether information needs to be sent to long term memory or discarded
"Is it important to me?" "Do I need to remember this information?" Examples: calculating change, ordering food from a menu.

Typically 10-15 seconds, but can be up to as long as one minute
Requires conscious effort to retain information in long-term memory, which is done by mental repetition, or more effectively, by giving it a meaning or associating it with other previously acquired knowledge. Example: recalling the color of car that passed by a few seconds ago, or remembering a phone number to write it down.

Lasts a few seconds.
Examples include:
Visual: Seeing a white Camry brings back memories of your first car.
Auditory: Hearing a song brings back memories of where you first heard it.
Tactile: Feeling sand reminds you of family vacations to the beach.
Smell: Smelling a perfume brings back memories of your grandmother.
Taste: Tasting a recipe reminds you of family dinners at Thanksgiving.

Explicit (declarative) memory: Conscious/deliberate
• Semantic memory: General knowledge or facts about the world
Examples: the knowledge that grass is green, recalling the capital of the United States, remembering what a...
• Episodic memory: Personal, autobiographical recollections of events, places, associated emotions, and other context
Examples: reminiscing about your first kiss, recalling your first job
Implicit memory: Acquired and used unconsciously; all
• Procedural memory: automatic recollection of skills and habits
Examples: Remembering how to tie a knot, climb stairs, play the guitar
This is often long-term and referred to as...

Cermak, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1982 this book brings together two areas of research previously studied in parallel with little interaction particularly in the US normal memory processing and the amnesic syndrome When trying to document the relationship between the two it became apparent that there was much crossover and duplication of effort in a number of areas whether long term memory and short term memory truly represent independent storage systems or are simply points on a continuum trying to determine the primary locus of variables influencing the rate at which information is lost during retention whether episodic memory and semantic memory represent two different storage systems or are simply artifacts produced by different kinds of query to a single memory system and finally whether visual and verbal memory are independent It was written following a meeting in 1979 by a small group of investigators brought together to explore this commonality and to share data and theory thus beginning the promise of a bright future of interdisciplinary interaction in memory research Pathologie de la mémoire. Human memory and its pathology ... Translated by D. K. Jardine Jacques BARBIZET,1970 Memory Gérard Emilien,Cécile Durlach,Elena Antoniadis,Martial Van der Linden,Jean-Marie Maloteaux,2004-04-28 Reviews the impact of recent neuropsychological and biological discoveries on our understanding of human memory and its pathology New Directions in Memory and Aging (PLE: Memory) Leonard Poon,James Fozard,Laird Cermak,David Arenberg,Larry Thompson,2014-05-09 Originally published in 1980 this book contains the proceedings from a memorial conference held in honour of George A Talland who made a significant contribution to the area of memory and aging The major objective of the volume was to stimulate research towards a more comprehensive understanding of age related differences in memory It was also hoped it would provide direction for the application and utilization of research findings in the evaluation and treatment of memory complaints and memory difficulties experienced by the elderly The book was intended for two broad groups of scientists The first being researchers in the psychology of memory and those who were currently active in the research on aging at the time The second group was those concerned with applying current research findings to the diagnosis and treatment of problems of memory Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1970 Includes subject section name section and 1968 1970 technical reports Human Information Processing Peter H. Lindsay,Donald A. Norman,2013-10-22 Human Information Processing An Introduction to Psychology Second Edition was written to reflect recent developments as well as anticipate new directions in this flourishing field The ideas of human information processing are relevant to all human activities most especially those of human interactions The book discusses all the traditional areas and then goes beyond consciousness states of awareness multiple levels of processing and of awareness interpersonal communication emotion and stress The book begins with an introduction to some of the more interesting phenomena of perception and poses some of the puzzles faced by those who would attempt to unravel the structures Separate chapters cover the systems of most interest for human communication the visual system and the auditory system the structure of the nervous system and the systems of memory sensory information storage short term memory and long term memory Subsequent chapters deal with the different aspects of memory including show how memory is used in thought in language and in decision making Also examined are the neurological basis of memory and the representation of knowledge within memory The Processing of Memories (PLE: Memory) Norman E. Spear,2014-05-09 Originally published in 1978 this volume contains the evidence that is most crucial for our understanding the processes of forgetting and retention Organized in terms of problem areas and issues that are particularly pertinent to understanding these processes the book deals with both animal and human studies The author begins by defining the topic and reviewing its historical development A theoretical orientation follows and then the author begins to address the major factors that determine what is and what is not remembered Although we cannot yet specify the principles from which we can predict when an episode once learned will be remembered well or forgotten entirely the author demonstrates that such principles are not that far away He considers the issues that must be resolved before such principles are established and in the course of doing so covers the major research on why we remember events and why they are forgotten National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1965 Behavioral Assessment and Rehabilitation of the Traumatically Brain-Damaged Barry A. Edelstein,Eugene T. Couture,2013-11-22 This book developed out of the editors longstanding interest in the retraining of traumatically brain damaged adults and the management of their behavior by family members A search for relevant experimental evidence to support the clinical use of behavioral principles for retrain ing which began in 1977 turned up little empirical support Moreover the literature on retraining was dispersed among a variety of journals published in various countries Nowhere was there a compendium of literature that addressed issues of assessment and retraining There was no place to turn if one wanted to move from a standard neuropsychological evaluation to the retraining of skill deficits revealed in the evaluation We have attempted to edit a book that represents what we had hoped to find in the literature and could be used by professionals in clinical psychology clinical neuropsychology rehabilitation medicine physical therapy speech therapy and other disciplines that address rehabilitation of brain damaged adults a book that addresses assessment and rehabilitation issues and is sufficiently detailed to offer the reader a starting point in developing behavioral assessment and rehabilitation programs The book contains conceptual foundations reviews of research descriptions of successful rehabilitation programs and relatively detailed approaches to the retraining of specific skills A shift from an assessment based practice to one encompassing both prescriptive assessment and treatment has become a recognized transition in the neuropsychological literature and was best articulated in an article by Gerald Goldstein in March of 1979

Neuropsychology Gerald Goldstein,Paul David Nussbaum,Sue R. Beers,2013-06-29 In this volume of the series Human Brain Function Assessment and Rehabilitation we cover the area of how brain function is assessed with behavioral or neuropsychological instruments These assessments are typically conducted by clinical neuropsychologists or behavioral neurologists and so we made an effort to present the somewhat differing approaches to these two related disciplines Clinical neuropsychologists are psychologists who typically utilize standardized tests while behavioral neurologists are physicians who generally assess brain function as part of the clinical neurological evaluation Both approaches have much to offer The basic assumption of neuropsychological assessment is that the brain is the organ of behavior and therefore the condition of the brain may be evaluated with behavioral measures Neuropsychological tests are those measures found by research to be particularly sensitive to alterations in brain function An adequate neuropsychological test is a procedure that can be related to some objective measure of alteration in brain function Over the years these objective measures have changed but generally involve documentation through direct observation of brain tissue or through histological pathological neuroimaging or other laboratory procedures The methods described in the first two volumes of this series describe the neuroimaging procedures that are often used in the validation of neuropsychological tests Neuropsychology of the Amnesic Syndrome

(PLE: Memory) Alan Parkin, Nicholas Leng, 2014-05-09 Originally published in 1993 this book provides the clinician researcher and student with a comprehensive account of the neuropsychology of the amnesic syndrome The opening chapter places the amnesic syndrome within the overall context of memory disorders and provides a theoretical basis for understanding the presentation of the clinical and experimental findings which form the major part of the work The second chapter provides an extensive account of the various methods used to assess memory and associated deficits and provides guidelines as to the most effective assessment strategy The next five chapters are concerned with the specific aetiologies giving rise to the amnesic syndrome Wernicke Korsakoff Syndrome Thalamic Amnesia Medial Temporal Lobe Amnesia Herpes Simplex Encephalitis and ruptured aneurysms of the anterior communicating artery Each of these chapters contains an account of the associated neuropathology descriptions of experimental findings and illustrative case histories from the authors own experimental and clinical experience The next chapter provides the reader with an account of some of the more important scientific issues that have arisen from the studies of the amnesic syndrome and a final chapter considers current and future prospects for behavioural remediation of severe memory deficit

Communication Disorders Following Traumatic Brain Injury Skye McDonald, Chris Code, Leanne Togher, 2016-05-06 There are very few books available which are concerned with the unique communication problems that can come with traumatic brain injury TBI In recent years there has emerged a realisation that these difficulties in communication are closely tied to the cognitive behavioural and social problems observed following traumatic brain injury This is changing the way people with TBI are assessed and is generating new approaches to rehabilitation This volume will be of interest to psychologists speech pathologists and therapists and linguists Clinicians and researchers working with people with traumatic brain injury and their students will find it a comprehensive source of contemporary approaches to characterising the communication problems of people with TBI and for planning rehabilitation

The Brain, Cognition, and Education Sarah L. Friedman, Kenneth A. Klivington, Rita W. Peterson, 2013-09-25 The Brain Cognition and Education is a collection of papers that deals with cross disciplinary communication This book addresses the use of concepts methodologies and research results from other experiments in the conduct of finding new knowledge One paper addresses the relationships among neuroscience cognitive psychology and education to arrive at cross interdisciplinary communication Other papers discuss attention the brain and the control of cognition one paper notes that selective attention as a cognitive system with its own measurable features can be associated with underlying neural systems Other authors deal with acquiring representing and using knowledge such as language learning interplay between mind and experience as well as the neuropsychology of memory One paper examines infantile amnesia when early life experiences tend to be forgotten The book then addresses cognitive and neural development including neural developments before birth covering neurogenesis cell migration dendritic maturation and synaptic development One author reviews trends and directions in cognitive development and cites the works of Piaget Simon and

Chomsky One author presents several models of memory functions while another author evaluates the possibilities of building bridges between education and the neurosciences Many psychologists neuroscientists phoneticians philosophers and linguists will appreciate this book very highly Brain and Memory James L. McGaugh, Norman M. Weinberger, Gary Lynch, 1995-02-23 We are approaching the end of the first century of attempts to discover how the brain enables us to acquire retain and use information based on experience The past several decades especially have witnessed an ever accelerating pace of research This increase is due in large part to the development of new techniques for the analysis of brain and behavior But to a greater extent these advances have been fueled by some seminal findings and the accumulation of knowledge based on systematic inquiry in many laboratories around the world This important volume authored by internationally renowned leaders in the field is a progress report on this burgeoning work What processes underlie the formation of new memories What determines their strength Where are the changes underlying memory located In judging recent progress this book looks at what we have learned about each of these questions Furthermore the contributors look at how these questions are rephrased and refined by new findings hypotheses and theories Topics include emotion and memory aging and memory plasticity of the cerebral cortex and synaptic connectivity and memory This book will be welcomed by neuroscientists cognitive psychologists and cognitive scientists Human Memory John G. Seamon, 1980 Memory and Movies John Seamon, 2024-10-29 How popular films from Memento to Slumdog Millionaire can help us understand how memory works In the movie Slumdog Millionaire the childhood memories of a young game show contestant trigger his correct answers In Memento the amnesiac hero uses tattoos as memory aids In Away from Her an older woman suffering from dementia no longer remembers who her husband is These are compelling films that tell affecting stories about the human condition But what can these movies teach us about memory In this book John Seamon shows how examining the treatment of memory in popular movies can shed new light on how human memory works After explaining that memory is actually a diverse collection of independent systems Seamon uses examples from movies to offer an accessible nontechnical description of what science knows about memory function and dysfunction In a series of lively encounters with numerous popular films he draws on Life of Pi and Avatar for example to explain working memory used for short term retention He describes the process of long term memory with examples from such films as Cast Away and Groundhog Day The Return of Martin Guerre among other movies informs his account of how we recognize people the effect of emotion on autobiographical memory is illustrated by The Kite Runner Titanic and other films movies including Born on the Fourth of July and Rachel Getting Married illustrate the complex pain of traumatic memories Seamon shows us that movies rarely get amnesia right often using strategically timed blows to the protagonist's head as a way to turn memory off and then on again as in Desperately Seeking Susan Finally he uses movies including On Golden Pond and Amour to describe the memory loss that often accompanies aging while highlighting effective ways to maintain memory function Information Processing and

Cognition Robert L. Solso, 2024-04-01 Originally published in 1975 this title presented current theories in information processing and cognition at the time The topics fall into three major groups The first section is concerned with the issues of perception and initial processing of visual material the second section is addressed to problem of storage retrieval and consciousness in memory the final section is related to the processing of language Analyzing Memory Richard A. Chechile, 2024-09-17 An accessible synthesis of memory research that discusses the creation of memory representations the processes of storage and retrieval and the effectiveness of encoding information The field of memory research is subdivided into many separate and non overlapping topic areas that often employ specialized tools and models This book offers an accessible synthesis of memory research that explores how memory works how it is organized and how it changes dynamically Written by an expert in the field it can be used by undergraduate and graduate students of psychology and as a reference by researchers who want to fill in gaps in their knowledge The book focuses on three general topics that cover a vast amount of research in the field how a memory representation is created how the cognitive processes of storage and retrieval can be studied and measured and the process of encoding information and its varying degrees of effectiveness Specific subjects addressed include habituation and sensitization and the neurobiological changes that underlie them evidence for a cognitive component underlying Pavlovian conditioning biological constraints on a cognitive model of memory an information processing framework for memory misconceptions about memory including the static memory myth and the permanent memory myth model based measurement of storage and retrieval processes a critique of the concept of memory strength the distinction between implicit and explicit memory and learning and repetition Although the writing is accessible to the nonspecialist the density of information is high The text avoids jargon and a glossary defines key terms The notes expand on technical details and point to interesting related ideas
