Optical Diagnostics for Flow Processes P. Buchhave, L. Lading, G. Wigley, 2013-11-11 The origin of optical methods for fluid flow investigations appears to be nontraceable This is no matter for surprise After all seeing provides the most direct and common way for humans to learn about their environment But at the same time some of the most sophisticated methods for doing measurements in fluids are also based on light and often laser light A very large amount of material has been published in this area over the last two decades Why then another publication Well the field is still in a state of rapid development It is characterised by the use of results and methods developed within very different areas like optical physics spectroscopy communication systems electronics and computer science mechanical engineering chemical engineering and of course fluid dynamics We are not aware of a book containing both introductory and more advanced material that covers the same material as presented here The book is the result of a compilation and expansion of material presented at a summer school on Optical Diagnostics for Flow Processes held at RiS0 National Laboratory and the Technical University of Denmark in September 1993 The aim of the course was to provide a solid background for understanding evaluating and using modern optical diagnostic methods addressing Ph D students and researchers active in areas of fluid flow research The disciplines represented by the participants ranged from atmospheric fluid dynamics to biomedicine

Combustions Flow Diagnostics D.F.G. Durão, M.V. Heitor, J.H. Whitelaw, P.O. Witze, 2012-12-06 This book consists of papers prepared for and presented at a NATO sponsored Advanced Study Institute which was held in Montechoro Portugal during the period 16-27 April 1990 This Institute was attended by approximately ninety delegates from fifteen countries and followed from a related Institute held in Vimeiro Portugal in 1987 see the book entitled Instrumentation for Combustion and Flow in Engines edited by D F G Dur o J H Whitelaw and P O Witzel The purposes of the first Institute related closely to instrumentation for use in gas turbine combustors and the cylinders of internal combustion engines These topics were also addressed in the second Institute though in a manner which was wider ranging and chosen to demonstrate and explain the development and application of measurement methods to combusting flows in general The papers contained in this book were selected to provide the reader with a comprehensive and up to date view of the variety of experimental techniques available to measure in combusting flows Included are discussions of their range and applicability potential accuracy and ease of use Thus the first paper provides a brief overview and the second an indication of those aspects of combustion which should influence the choice of flow property to be measured and the technique to be used
