Perception and Cognition: Interactions in the Aging Brain Harriet A. Allen, Katherine L. Roberts, 2016-09-13
Healthy ageing can lead to declines in both perceptual and cognitive functions. Impaired perception, such as that resulting from hearing loss or reduced visual or tactile resolution, increases demands on higher level cognitive functions to cope or compensate. It is possible, for example, to use focused attention to overcome perceptual limitations. Unfortunately, cognitive functions also decline in old age. This can mean that perceptual impairments are exacerbated by cognitive decline, and vice versa, but also means that interventions aimed at one type of decline can lead to improvements in the other. Just as improved cognition can ameliorate perceptual deficits, improving the stimulus can help offset cognitive deficits. For example, making directions and routes easy to follow can help compensate for declines in navigation abilities. In this Topic, we bring together papers from both auditory and visual researchers that address the interaction between perception and cognition in the ageing brain. Many of the studies demonstrate that a broadening of representations or increased reliance on gist underlie perceptual and cognitive age-related declines. There is also clear evidence that impaired perception is associated with poor cognition, although encouragingly, it can also be seen that good perception is associated with better cognition. Compensatory cognitive strategies were less successful in improving perception than might be expected. We also present papers which highlight important methodological considerations that are required when studying the older brain.      Resources in

Education, 1998      Investigating the Role of Test Methods in Testing Reading Comprehension Jufang Kong, 2019-03-27
This book explores the construct of reading comprehension by means of two main test methods. Research methods like the think aloud protocol and eye tracking are employed to tap into test takers' cognitive processes while engaged in input text meaning building and in test tasks. The book is the first systematic attempt to explore test takers' cognitive processes through the control of test methods and presents findings in visualized form, including processing route maps and eye fixation heat maps. It offers readers essential support with digging into and analyzing data that has to date remained difficult to access.      From Information to Participation Olaf Schroth, 2010
If landscape visualizations are applied as tools for participation, they should provide a high level of interactivity to facilitate planning process and outcomes. This book presents evidence for this hypothesis through demonstrative case studies in the Entlebuch UNESCO Biosphere Reserve in Switzerland. In collaborative workshops, interactive real time visualizations were used to respond directly to the dialogue.

and long term climate change impacts were illustrated through collapsing time animations The author Dr Olaf Schroth is a researcher at the University of British Columbia and has studied both geodesy and planning in Hanover Hamburg and Newcastle upon Tyne Since then he has been working at the interface of planning and 3D visualization and the book summarizes his work in the EU project VisuLands 2003 2006 and his PhD at ETH Zurich His research is not technology driven but rather raises critical issues from a planning perspective Therefore the results and hands on recommendations address researchers as well as practitioners in planning architecture geovisualization geography cartography and computer visualization
