Michael Lempert, Michael Silverstein, 2012-09-12 This analysis of campaign messaging and image making is a fascinating read and an illuminating look into the complex realm of political rhetoric Publishers Weekly It s a common complaint that a presidential candidate s style matters more than substance and that the issues have been eclipsed by mass media fueled obsession with a candidate s every slip gaffe and peccadillo This book explores political communication in American presidential politics focusing on what insiders call message Message Michael Lempert and Michael Silverstein argue is not simply an individual s positions on the issues but the craft used to fashion the creature the public sees as the candidate Lempert and Silverstein examine some of the revelatory moments in debates political ads interviews speeches and talk shows to explain how these political creations come to have a life of their own From the pandering Flip Flopper to the self reliant Maverick the authors demonstrate how these figures are fashioned out of the verbal gestural sartorial behavioral as well as linguistic matter that comprises political communication This book captures better than any other the way messaging works their lively account of the culture of presidential communication remains sensitive to both the comedy and the seriousness of its subject Michael Warner Yale University Language and Muslim Immigrant Childhoods

Inmaculada Ma García-Sánchez, 2014-06-03 Language and Muslim Immigrant Childhoods Documenting the everyday lives of Moroccan immigrant children in Spain this in depth study considers how its subjects navigate the social and political landscapes of family neighborhood peer groups and the institutions of their adopted country García Sánchez compels us to rethink theories of language and racialization by offering a linguistic anthropological approach that illuminates the politics of childhood in Spain's growing communities of migrants. The author demonstrates that these Moroccan children walk a tightrope between sameness and difference simultaneously participating in the cultural life of their immigrant community and that of a host society that is deeply ambivalent about contemporary migratory trends. The author evaluates the contemporary state of research on immigrant children and explores the dialectical relations between young Moroccan immigrants' everyday social interactions and the broader cultural logic and socio-political discourses arising from integration and inclusion of the Muslim communities. Her work focuses in particular on children's modes of communication with teachers, peers, family members, friends, doctors, and religious figures in a society where Muslim immigrants are subject to increasing state surveillance. The project underscores the central relevance of studying immigrant children's day-to-day experience and linguistic praxis in tracing how the forces at work in transnational diasporic settings have an impact on their sense of belonging, charting the links between the immediate contexts of their daily lives and their emerging processes of identification.

Language and Linguistics in Context Harriet Luria, Deborah M. Seymour, Trudy Smoke, 2012-12-06 Taking a sociocultural and educational approach, Language and Linguistics in Context: Readings and Applications for Teachers introduces basic linguistic concepts and current perspectives on language acquisition, considers the role of linguistic change, especially in English, in the politics of language, acknowledges the role of linguists in current policies involving language, offers insights into the relationship between the structure of language systems and first and second language acquisition, the study of language across culture, class, race, gender, and ethnicity, and between language study and literacy and education, and provides readers with a basis for understanding current educational debates about bilingual education, non-standard dialects, English-only movements, literacy methodologies, and generally the importance to teaching of the study of language. The text is organized into three thematic units: What is Language and How is It Acquired, How Does Language Change, and What is Literacy. To achieve both breadth and depth, that is, to provide a big picture view of basic linguistics and at the same time make it specific enough for the beginner, a selection of readings, including personal language narratives, is provided to both introduce and clarify linguistic concepts. The readings by well-known theoretical and applied linguists and researchers from various disciplines are diverse in level and range of topics and vary in level of linguistic formalism. Pedagogical features: This text is designed for a range of courses in English and language arts, bilingualism, applied linguistics, and ESL courses in teacher education programs. Each unit contains a substantive introduction to the topic followed by the readings. Each reading concludes with Questions to Think About, including one Extending Your Understanding question, and a short list of Terms to Define. Each unit ends with additional Extending Your Understanding and Making Connections activities that engage readers in applying what they have read to teaching and suggested projects, and a bibliography of Print and Web Resources. The readings and apparatus are arranged so that the material can be modified to fit many course plans and schemes of presentation To help individual instructors make the most effective use of the text in specific classes a set of matrixes is provided suggesting configurations of readings for different types of linguistics and education classes Humor, Identity, and Belonging Stephen J.
