focused mainly on exploiting the country's most valuable natural resources above all its major export crops quinine sugar coffee tea rubber and indigo The result was a class of botanic bureaucrats that Goss dubs the floracrats Drawing on archives and oral histories he shows how these scientists strove for the Enlightenment ideal of objective universal and useful knowledge even as they betrayed that ideal by failing to share scientific knowledge with the general public With each chapter Goss details the phases of power and the personalities in Indonesia that have struggled with this dilemma from the early colonial era through independence to the modern Indonesian state Goss shows just how limiting dependence on an all powerful state can be for a scientific community no matter how idealistic its individual scientists may be
