Message in a Mobile Siri Lamoureaux, 2011 This detailed meticulous ethnographic study on mobile phone use among Nuba students at the University of Khartoum in Sudan distinguishes itself from other studies by taking a focused look at the linguistic content of mobile phone interactions via text messaging portraying it as a site for the expression of personalized and affective language While men and women appear to be equally aggressive consumers and producers of text message poetry women are formally discouraged in using the phone for relations that go beyond the publicly acceptable norms of keeping in touch and making arrangements Nonetheless women use it for such purposes and many manage it discreetly showing how this technology can serve to subvert discursive norms on gender and marriage The mobile phone in Sudan enhances individual autonomy over interactions making possible the extension and creation of social spaces It simultaneously enlarges private space and trespasses into public space Poetic themes and language previously limited to elite producers those both more literate and who had control over mass media domains radio and newspapers are exposed to anonymous recipients who draw from copy or forward them in continuous circulation thereby staking a claim in the public sphere Similarly the mobile phone serves as a site for the exercise of several layers of identity in negotiation and reflects or creates alternative identities and the contestation of existing discourses communities in physical space and notions of belonging

Resources in Education ,2001 Language, Power and Pedagogy Jim Cummins, 2000-09-22 Population mobility is at an all time high in human history One result of this unprecedented movement of peoples around the world is that in many school systems monolingual and monocultural students are the exception rather than the rule particularly in urban areas This shift in demographic realities entails enormous challenges for educators and policy makers What do teachers need to know in order to teach effectively in linguistically and culturally diverse contexts How long does it take second language learners to acquire proficiency in the language of school instruction What are the differences between attaining conversational fluency in everyday contexts and developing proficiency in the language registers required for academic success What adjustments do we need to make in curriculum instruction and assessment to ensure that second language learners understand what is being taught and are assessed in a fair and equitable manner How long do we need to wait before including second language learners in high stakes national examinations and assessments What role if any should be accorded students first language in the curriculum Do bilingual education programs work well for poor children from minority language backgrounds or should they be reserved only for middle class children from the majority or dominant group In addressing these issues this volume focuses not only on issues of language learning and teaching but also highlights the ways in which power relations in the wider society affect patterns of teacher student interaction in the classroom Effective instruction will inevitably challenge patterns of coercive power relations in both school and society Literacy Assessment and Intervention for Classroom Teachers Beverly DeVries, 2017-07-05 The fourth edition of this comprehensive resource helps future and practicing teachers
