Race and Multiraciality in Brazil and the United States G. Reginald Daniel, 2007-07-01 Although both Brazil and the United States inherited European norms that accorded whites privileged status relative to all other racial groups the development of their societies followed different trajectories in defining white black relations In Brazil pervasive miscegenation and the lack of formal legal barriers to racial equality gave the appearance of its being a racial democracy with a ternary system of classifying people into whites brancos multiracial individuals pardos and blacks pretos supporting the idea that social inequality was primarily associated with differences in class and culture rather than race In the United States by contrast a binary system distinguishing blacks from whites by reference to the one drop rule of African descent produced a more rigid racial hierarchy in which both legal and informal barriers operated to create socioeconomic disadvantages for blacks But in recent decades Reginald Daniel argues in this comparative study changes have taken place in both countries that have put them on converging paths Brazil's black consciousness movement stresses the binary division between brancos and negros to heighten awareness of and mobilize opposition to the real racial discrimination that exists in Brazil while the multiracial identity movement in the U S works to help develop a more fluid sense of racial dynamics that was long felt to be the achievement of Brazil's ternary system Against the historical background of race relations in Brazil and the U S that he traces in Part I of the book including a review of earlier challenges to their respective racial orders Daniel focuses in Part II on analyzing the new racial project on which each country has embarked with attention to all the political possibilities and dangers they involve Militarism in Mexico Jeffrey S. Cole, 1997 Mexican society is becoming militarized due to the increased use of the Mexican military in domestic affairs This militarization is the result of three factors the internal focus of the military the drug war and corruption The internal focus of the Mexican military is based on doctrine Mexico's drug war began in 1986 when U S President Reagan convinced their government that the trafficking of drugs constituted a National security threat Corruption is pervasive in Mexico due to the combination of seven decades of authoritarian rule by the hegemonic Institutional Revolutionary Party PRI and the associated effects from transnational drug trafficking The army represents the last publicly respected institution in Mexico During the past three years almost the entire law enforcement apparatus to combat drug trafficking has been replaced with military soldiers and numerous key political appointees and governmental positions have been filled with Mexican generals and colonels There are few national interests more profoundly consequential to the United States than the political stability and general welfare of Mexico The militarization and changing civil military relations in Mexico is an important aspect in U S Mexico relations and must be considered impossible policy changes
