The design philosophies of Google and Apple represent different approaches to new product design Google s model features bottom up and data driven decision making processes while Apple s model is to design and build products top down Library instruction program design may learn from these differing but complementary approaches Inspired by Google s and Apple s success Library Instruction Design details how library instruction program design may learn from the philosophy of product design in the business world In designing library instruction a Google philosophy approach teaches what the user wants to know while an Apple philosophy approach teaches what the librarian thinks the user needs to learn These two design philosophies aim at different teaching objectives reflecting library and information science education in modern society The book is divided into five sections with opening sections covering library instruction the philosophy of library instruction design and design philosophy from different angles Later sections discuss applying Google s model and applying Apple s model Offers a creative way to think about library instruction program design Suggests two design approaches grounded in two philosophies represented by the design approaches of Google and Apple Details the differences and complementarities between top down and bottom up approaches to design Teaching Library Use James Rice,1981-09-30 Introduction to library instruction Getting people involved in library instruction Planning an instructional program Strategies for library orientation Strategies for library instruction Strategies for bibliographic instruction Testing and evaluation Library instruction through the library s design Library Instruction Susan Deese-Roberts,Kathleen Keating,2000-09-15 Changing technologies and diversifying populations have meant a higher demand for library instruction at most academic libraries This book demonstrates how you can meet that demand by using peer tutors to support and enhance your library services Peer tutors can teach library patrons online search concepts and skills and how to use other specific research tools This practical step by step plan for developing and implementing a peer tutoring program can improve library services and make your job easier Improving Library Instruction Carolyn B. Kirkendall,Carolyn A. Kirkendall,1979 Curriculum-Based Library Instruction Amy Blevins,Megan Inman,2014-09-26 The rampant nature of technology has caused a shift in information seeking behaviors In addition current trends such as evidence based medicine and information literacy mean that one time instructional sessions cannot provide our patrons with all of the skills they need For this reason many librarians are working to develop curriculum based instruction that is semester long or consisting of many sessions throughout an academic program In addition to teaching librarians are also becoming embedded in the curriculums they support by serving as web based course designers problem based learning facilitators or members of curriculum committees Although it is fairly obvious that library instruction is important and that librarians should be equipped to provide this instruction the majority of ALA accredited programs offer only one course on library instruction the courses are only available as electives and they are often only offered once a year Librarians need to gain their instructional experiences through real life experiences mentors and of course books like this one Many books commonly discuss one shot sessions and provide tips for getting the most out of that type of instruction There are not as many that discuss curriculum based instruction in a section let alone an entire book Curriculum Based Library Instruction From Cultivating Faculty Relationships to Assessment highlights the movement beyond one shot instruction sessions specifically focusing on situations where academic librarians have developed curriculum based sessions and or become involved in curriculum committees This volume describes and provides examples of librarians varied roles in the curriculum of education programs These roles include semester long or multi session instructor web based course designer problem based learning facilitator and member of a curriculum committee In addition to describing the roles that librarians have in supporting curriculum the book describes how to carry out those roles with sections devoted to adult learning theory teaching methods developing learning objectives and working with faculty to develop curriculum Examples of library sessions devoted to information literacy evidence based practice information literacy and biomedical informatics are included This book is not limited to one mode of delivering information and covers examples of face to face distance and blended learning initiatives
