Left Foot in the Grave Garry Nelson,1998-04-01 Romano-British Settlement and Cemeteries at Mucking Sam Lucy,Christopher Evans,2016-11-30 Excavations at Mucking Essex between 1965 and 1978 revealed extensive evidence for a multiphase rural Romano British settlement perhaps an estate center and five associated cemetery areas 170 burials with different burial areas reserved for different groups within the settlement The settlement demonstrated clear continuity from the preceding Iron Age occupation with unbroken sequences of artefacts and enclosures through the first century AD followed by rapid and extensive remodeling which included the laying out a Central Enclosure and an organized water supply with wells accompanied by the start of large scale pottery production After the mid second century AD the Central Enclosure was largely abandoned and settlement shifted its focus more to the Southern Enclosure system with a gradual decline though the 3rd and 4th centuries although continued burial pottery and artefactual deposition indicate that a form of settlement continued possibly with some low level pottery production Some of the latest Roman pottery was strongly associated with the earliest Anglo Saxon style pottery suggesting the existence of a terminal Roman settlement phase that essentially involved an Anglo Saxon community Given recent revisions of the chronology for the early Anglo Saxon period this casts an intriguing light on the transition with radical implications for understandings of this period Each of the cemetery areas was in use for a considerable length of time Taken as a whole Mucking was very much a component place complex it was its respective parts that fostered its many cemeteries whose diverse rites reflect the variability and roles of the settlement s evidently varied inhabitants

Dover Vera I Evison,2014-02-15 The Anglo Saxon cemetery at Buckland Dover was discovered when a new housing estate was being constructed in 1951 It was excavated by Professor Evison between 1951 and 1953 The cemetery of some 170 graves dates from the late fifth to the middle of the eighth century Professor Evison s expertise in the study of glass jewellery and weapons ensures that there is a penetrating analysis of this important site and interesting ideas are proposed for the layout and phasing of the cemetery A comprehensive discussion of the finds from the graves reveals that although the Buckland cemetery belongs to the period of pagan tradition of burial with grave goods there is some evidence of Christian influences and rites Contact with Frankish territory in France Belgium and the Rhineland seems to have been maintained throughout the period of use of the cemetery and Frankish grave goods formed an important element in the material culture of the people buried there However by the late sixth century local Kentish craftsmen were producing a significant amount of the jewellery found in the graves Professor Evison places the Buckland cemetery in its local context by examining contemporary finds from other sites in the area around Dover

Anglo-Saxon Deviant Burial Customs Andrew Reynolds,2009-03-26 Anglo Saxon Deviant Burial Customs is the first detailed consideration of the ways in which Anglo Saxon society dealt with social outcasts Beginning with the period following Roman rule and ending in the century following the Norman Conquest it surveys a period of fundamental social change which included the conversion to Christianity the emergence of the late Saxon state and the development of the landscape of the Domesday Book While an impressive body of written evidence for the period survives in the form of charters and law codes archaeology is uniquely placed to investigate the earliest period of post Roman society the fifth to seventh centuries for which documents are lacking For later centuries archaeological evidence can provide us with an independent assessment of the realities of capital punishment and the status of outcasts Andrew Reynolds argues that outcast burials show a clear pattern of development in this period In the pre Christian centuries deviant burial remains are found only in community cemeteries but the growth of kingship and the consolidation of territories during the seventh century witnessed the emergence of capital punishment and places of execution in the English landscape Locally determined rites such as crossroads burial now existed alongside more formal execution cemeteries Gallows were located on major boundaries often next to highways always in highly visible places The findings of this pioneering national study thus have important consequences on our understanding of Anglo Saxon society Overall Reynolds concludes organized judicial behaviour was a feature of the earliest Anglo Saxon kingdoms rather than just the two centuries prior to the Norman Conquest Annual

Report of the Museum of Fine Arts Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Boston,1893 Karacamirli - Tepe 5 Kai

Kaniuth,2020-12-31 The 6th volume of the MAAO series details the results of two seasons of excavation carried out on Karacamirli Tepe 5 a small hill near the southern bank of the river Kura in Shamkir District Azerbaijan The site was first occupied in the 5th millennium BC from which several pits containing pottery and obsidian could be studied After the mid 2nd mill BC Tepe 5 saw repeated use as a place of burial Altogether 46 graves starting with the Late Bronze Early Iron Age continuing with interments from Late Antiquity and concluding with the 14th cent AD were documented Their archaeological discussion forms the core of the volume A series of 21 radiocarbon dates an anthropological study including isotope data as well as a comprehensive programme of chemical analysis with portable XRF targeting obsidian ceramic and metal finds contribute to produce one of the most fine grained sets of burial data available from the Southern Caucasus Indian

Death and Memory in Early Medieval Britain Howard

Williams,2006-08-31 How were the dead remembered in early medieval Britain Originally published in 2006 this innovative study demonstrates how perceptions of the past and the dead and hence social identities were constructed through mortuary practices and commemoration between c 400 1100 AD Drawing on archaeological evidence from across Britain including archaeological discoveries Howard Williams presents a fresh interpretation of the significance of portable artefacts the body structures monuments and landscapes in early medieval mortuary practices He argues that materials and spaces were used in ritual performances that served as technologies of remembrance practices that created shared social memories intended to link past present and future Through the deployment of material culture early medieval societies were therefore selectively remembering and forgetting their ancestors and their history Throwing light on an important aspect of medieval society this book is essential reading for archaeologists and historians with an interest in the early medieval period The People J. Lawrence Angel,1971-11-21 The second volume of the publication of the excavations at Lerna published jointly with the Smithsonian Institute deals with the human bones that were found and gives a physical anthropological study of them Skeletons from Neolithic to Roman times are described and measured in detail studied against the ecological historical and cultural background of the area and interpreted in terms of 1 demography 2 health and disease status 3 body build and posture 4 microevolution 5 genetic relationships or connections with other populations Although the author had for many years been studying the physical anthropology of the bones from many areas of Greece Lerna was the first site that offered him a sufficient number of sufficiently well preserved skeletons over so long a range of time as to allow a type of study long recognized as desirable The significance of this study for early periods of archaeology is as great as the soundness of method and clarity of presentation The American Architect and Building News ,1886 The Roman Cemetery at Lankhills Giles Clarke,2021-12-16 This book considers the cemetery uncovered outside the north gate of Venta Belgarum Roman Winchester and analyses in detail both the graves and their contents There are detailed studies and important reassessments of many categories of object but it is the information about late Roman burial religion and society which is of special interest The Dance of Society William B. De Garmo,1875 This manual was originally published in 1864 with subsequent editions in 1865 1866 and 1868 when the author noted that many of the dances were no longer fashionable Typical of other late nineteenth century manuals much of the text is borrowed from other writers The manual provides a brief section on etiquette and describes the popular ballroom dances of the era quadrille polka redowa polka mazurka schottisch galop and cotillon Reflecting a growing interest in the dances of the past De Garmo provides directions and music for the Menuet de la Cour The manual was reissued in 1884 Report Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology,1887 Report Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology,1887 Papers of the Peabody Museum of American Archaeology and Ethnology, Harvard University ,1920 Excavations at Pylos in Elis John E. Coleman,1986 When the site of Elean Pylos was threatened by the construction of a dam in 1968 a team from the University of Colorado moved in to salvage as much information as possible about the ancient town before it was submerged This report is divided chronologically Middle Helladic Geometric Archaic Classical Roman Byzantine and Frankish Each chapter consists of a brief description of the remains in the field followed by a catalogue of the finds While earlier finds are mainly of wells the Classical settlement was the size of a large village providing everyday finds of bronze lead iron and pottery Some fragments of terracotta figurines and amber suggest a certain amount of wealth but the primary character of the whole site is agricultural Roman and Frankish remains are primarily funerary American Architect ,1886
