Leapfrogging Development? J. P. Singh, 1999-07-27 Telecommunications restructurings are now seen as important barometers in the shift among developing countries toward market based economies They are often posited as helping developing countries leapfrog or accelerate their pace of development and connect with the world economy This book shows that most states in developing countries are unable to resolve the myriad pressures they face in restructuring important sectors like telecommunications to effect accelerated or leapfrogging development The scope pace and sequencing of restructuring varies according to how different types of states respond to micro sub sectoral pressures or to macro level pressures from coalitions of groups After examining seven generalizable cases Singapore South Korea Mexico Malaysia China Brazil Myanmar the book examines India as an in depth most likely case Leapfrogging Development proposes a unique framework that shows how groups and coalitions articulate development preferences and how different types of states respond to or shape these preferences

Toward A Competitive Telecommunication Industry Gerald W. Brock, 2013-10-18 Providing an authoritative perspective on the best current research regarding telecommunication policy this book is based on the 22nd Annual Telecommunications Policy Research Conference The papers focus on the critical policy issues created by increasing competition in the industry The book contains a careful analysis of local competition and interconnection international competition universal service issues the Internet and emerging new methods of communication and the first amendment problems created by changing telecommunication technology It brings together in a convenient form a wide range of important scholarship on telecommunication policy that otherwise would require extensive research into a variety of journals government filings and unpublished papers Policy Research Working Paper International Bank for Reconstruction and Development,1991 An Empirical Analysis of competition, Privatization, and Regulation in telecommunications Market in Africa and Latin America Scott J. Wallsten,1999 World Development Report 2016 World Bank Group,2016-01-14 This Report aims to inspire and guide the researchers and practitioners who can help advance a new set of development approaches based on a fuller consideration of psychological and social influences p 2 Telecommunications in Asia John Ure,1995-01-01 This book provides searching analysis and a detailed and comprehensive account of telecommunications in the developing economies of Southeast and East Asia Adam Smith's Islands John C. Weaver,2025-04-01 Many developed countries restructured relations between state and economy from the late 1970s into the 1990s Among them New Zealand went far fast and left a clear trail making it possible to study economic restructuring as it occurred with all the debates uncertainty surprises mistakes and accomplishments this entailed Adam Smith s Islands reveals the inside life of a government determined to revolutionize its nation s politics and economy While the 1980s economic restructuring of members of the Organisation for Economic Co operation and Development and former Warsaw Pact countries can seem like a foregone conclusion from the vantage point of the twenty first century John Weaver examines how local and global institutions had to come together to implement social adjustments in New Zealand Mounting evidence that the state had not functioned as an effective manager split the business community and primary producers between defenders of subsidization and free market insurgents Reforms undertaken by the governing Labour Party included abandoning currency controls privatizing state run businesses ending a multitude of open and disguised subsidies tightening fiscal responsibility and reforming taxation Adam Smith s Islands focuses on the verifiable direct primary sources from dozens of state collections and deposits of personal papers The archival cornucopia informing this history supports a narrative that has little in common with intellectual histories of neoliberalism To understand how the relationship between the economy and the state changed we need to grasp how and why core institutions practices and cultural beliefs shed some of their once potent legitimacy Through the lens of New Zealand Adam Smith s Islands examines larger questions about policy dilemmas the global flow of capital and the sustainability of social adjustments in economic restructuring In so doing it casts new light on the formation and history of what is casually labelled today as the neoliberal state Governing Global Electronic Networks William J. Drake,Ernest J. Wilson (III.),2008-12-05 In this volume experts analyze the global governance of electronic networks emphasizing international power dynamics and the concerns of nondominant actors Each chapter concludes with a set of policy recommendations for the promotion of an open dynamic and more equitable networkd order Media Policy and Globalization Paula Chakravartty,2006-06-15 This volume takes a fresh look at media and communications policy and provides a comprehensive account of issues that are central to the study of the field It moves beyond the specifics of regulation by examining policy areas that have proved to be of common concern for societies across different socio economic realities It also seeks to address profound gaps in the study of policy by demonstrating the centrality of historical social and political context in debates that may appear solely technical or economic Media Policy and Globalization covers the institutional changes in the communications policy arena by examining the changing role of the state technology and the market and the role of civil society It discusses actual policy areas in broadcasting telecommunications and the information society and examines the often overlooked normative dimensions of communications policy Globalization and Media Policy NA NA,2016-09-23 This book takes a fresh look at media and communications policy and provides a comprehensive account of issues that are central to the study of the field It moves beyond the specifics of regulation by examining policy areas that have proved to be of common concern for societies across different socioeconomic realities It also seeks to address profound gaps in the study of policy by demonstrating the centrality of historical social and political context in debates that may appear solely technical or economic Media Policy and Globalization covers the institutional changes in the communications policy arena by examining the changing role of the state technology and the market and the role of civil society It discusses actual policy areas in broadcasting telecommunications and the information society and examines the often overlooked normative dimensions of communications policy Features Provides a cross disciplinary critical perspective of the politics of communications policy making in a global context Explores new issues in communications policy such as ethical concerns and the internationality of policy Useful for upper level undergraduate students graduate students and scholars of communications and media studies and international and global studies Handbook of Research on Corporate Restructuring and Globalization Moreira, Antonio Carrizo,Silva, Pedro,2019-05-31 While acquisitions and expansion strategies are understood as exciting in the business world contraction activities are received less enthusiastically Nevertheless portfolio restructuring constitutes a strategic tool to increase the strategic focus of firms and achieve economies of scale and an efficient control of multiple business units This restructuring thus has distinct implications for companies and units The Handbook of Research on Corporate Restructuring and Globalization provides emerging research on the theoretical infrastructure for portfolio restructuring in a single piece of work and explores important topics in the field including the implications on foreign and domestic units and the degree to which increasing globalization influences restructuring practices Featuring coverage on a broad range of topics such as emerging markets risk assessment and global business this book is ideally designed for corporate managers government officials scholars researchers and students

Rehabilitating Government
David L. Lindauer, Barbara Nunberg, 1994-01-01 Analyzes the issues affecting income security for the elderly in both developing and industrial nations Systems providing financial security for the old are under increasing strain throughout the world Changing demographics have led to an increased proportion of old people in the general population Traditional means of support for the old such as extended families are weakening Meanwhile formal systems such as government backed pensions have proven unstable For these reasons economists policymakers and government officials are exploring ways to address such issues as How to ensure financial security for the old and the best ways of paying for such security The roles of the public and private sectors when systems are used to enhance rather than detract from economic growth This study the first comprehensive and global examination of old age security addresses such issues It identifies three functions of old age financial security programs redistribution saving and insurance It evaluates the policy options for meeting these functions using two criteria their impact on the aged and their impact on the economy as a whole The study suggests that financial security for the old and economic growth would be better served if governments relied on three systems 1 A publicly managed system with mandatory participation and the limited goal of reducing poverty among the old 2 A privately managed mandatory savings system 3 A voluntary savings system These three systems would ensure against the many risks of old age The study concludes that a combination of different income security policies is more effective than any single approach and that all countries should begin planning for their aging populations now A Copublication of the World Bank and Oxford University Press

Financing Government in the Transition--Bulgaria Bogeti ?c, ?Zeljko, Arye L. Hillman, 1995-01-01 The IFC's new Global Agriculture Series features sectoral presentations of industry trends with specific emphasis on the developing countries The series highlights the increasing importance of developing countries in the world economy as rapidly expanding markets and as competitive production bases The information reported underlines the strong production assets of those countries and illustrates the investment opportunities this creates To profile the high growth poultry industry the first volume in this series draws on intelligence collected from various public and private sources including IFC client companies in numerous countries Consumption of poultry meat has been growing at an exceptional rate over the past decade spurred by the dietary benefits of this food and an attractive price relative to other meats Its evolution in recent years epitomizes the emergence of developing countries as global competitors in the agribusiness sector This report estimates that annual world consumption might grow by another 15 18 million tons by the end of the decade making poultry the most popular meat in the world This growth should support additional investments of roughly US 2 billion during this period including US 0.7 to 0.9 billion for growers production facilities and US 1 to 1.2 billion for integrators production facilities Estimates project that much of this investment will be undertaken in developing countries The report presents an overview of the poultry production system and the key players in the supply chain the global poultry market and regional production patterns the main determinants of competitive advantage in this sector and an analysis of international trade flows The final chapter reviews the role of public policies in changes in consumption production and trade Additional features include color photos charts and tables
