H. Mowrer's Theory of Integrity Therapy Revisited V. Edwin Bixenstine,2014-03-21 In the mid 20th century O Hobart Mowrer was a celebrated academic psychologist owing largely to his experiments with animals and humans that led to breakthrough theories on how we learn His numerous publications in this arena propelled him to the post of President of the American Psychological Association in 1954 His own battles with depression led him to develop a new theory of psychotherapy which he called Integrity Therapy The premise of this modality is that the client s deception with people they care about is the source of conscience pangs but the client resists or represses the prompting of the conscience and this causes his or her psychological symptoms Treatment therefore consists of urging the client to acknowledge his or her hidden behaviors to themselves and to significant others that they might both gain restored community with intimates and the fruits of personal integrity and inner peace to come clean about their deceptions and rewarding the confession with approval This book explores the conceptual underpinnings of Integrity Therapy and Mowrer s unique treatment approach detailing his methods for setting conditions for therapy assessing clinical data rules of engagement for transference and countertransference and handling client resistance Case examples and transcripts are included to demonstrate key points of this technique Mental health professionals interested in Mowrer s ideas or the history of psychotherapy will find this book to be a valuable and interesting resource

Virginia Appeals Virginia. Supreme Court of Appeals,1920 The Atlantic Reporter ,1901 Common Ground in First Language and Intercultural Interaction Istvan Kecskes,2023-03-06 In recent years the traditional approach to common ground as a body of information shared between participants of a communicative process has been challenged Taking into account not only L1 but also intercultural interactions and attempting to bring together the traditional view with the egocentrism based view of cognitive psychologists it has been argued that construction of common ground is a dynamic emergent process It is the convergence of the mental representation of shared knowledge that we activate assumed mutual knowledge that we seek and rapport as well as knowledge that we co construct in the communicative process This dynamic understanding of common ground has been applied in many research projects addressing both L1 and intercultural interactions in recent years As a result several new elements aspects and interpretations of common ground have been identified Some researchers came to view common ground as one component in a complex contextual information structure Others analyzing intercultural interactions pointed out the dynamism of the interplay of core common ground and emergent common ground The book brings together researchers from different angles of pragmatics and communication to examine i what adjustments to the notion of common ground based on L1 communication should be made in the light of research in intercultural communication ii what the relationship is between context situation and common ground and iii how relevant knowledge and content get selected for inclusion into core and emergent common ground
