Development in Hong Kong Terri Mottershead, 2004-05-01 Sustainable Development in Hong Kong provides a unique and pioneering examination of what the application of the ideas of sustainable development implies for Hong Kong with all its exceptional characteristics political social ecological and especially its very high urban density The book brings together for the first time a broad cross section of 21 public and private sector specialists in the many and varied aspects of sustainable development In so doing it demonstrates the breadth and depth of local knowledge and expertise in the subject as well as the wide range of concepts and issues that will have to be considered and interests reconciled for the concept to be fully implemented in Hong Kong Sustainable development has been defined as development that meets the needs of today whilst not affecting the ability of future generations to meet their own needs Implementing this concept requires that decision makers from all stakeholder groups government business and the public not only commit to sustainable development but also incorporate it at every level of decision making regardless of the political economic social technological cultural and legal frameworks within which their decisions are made It also requires that before doing so they hear respect and utilize the input from each other in these decisions Sustainable development was placed squarely on the political agenda in Hong Kong through the Chief Executive s commitment to it in his Policy Address in 1999 This was followed by the adoption of it as an overriding objective in Hong Kong 2030 Planning Vision and Strategy 2001 and the establishment of the Sustainable Development Unit 2001 and the Council for Sustainable Development 2003 This is a book for all who are concerned about Hong Kong s environment and about its future development The exceptional nature of Hong Kong means that this book also provides a valuable extreme case study for all who work in the sustainable development field Hong Kong Landscapes Bernie Owen, Raynor Shaw, 2007-10-01 Explains with the aid of many photographs and specially drawn diagrams and maps how the geological biological and agricultural processes slowly produced the natural landscape and how the rapid expansion of the population had a swift impact and major effect on how the land of Hong Kong looks today Tropical Asian Streams David Dudgeon, 1999-01-01 This book deals with the ecology of rivers and streams in the Oriental Region and describes the composition of their unique fauna especially the diverse array of animals which live on and among the bottom sediments Dichotomous keys are provided as an aid to the identification of these animals and the book is illustrated by over 100 pages of line drawings and maps Special emphasis is given to the impact of human activities on streams and rivers and the book concludes with a discussion of conservation and management options for these endangered habitats Wild China John MacKinnon, 1999 This work introduces and illustrates the diversity of China's wildlife and the variety of its terrain Over 400 photographs reveal China's mountains deserts gorges forests and steppelands and its species including the rare Giant Panda

the 21st century is a long one The expansion of palm oil plantations to feed a growing consumer class is eating away at ape and monkey habitats in Southeast Asia and Central Africa Lemurs are hunted for food in the poorest parts of Madagascar while monkeys are used as medicine in Brazil Traditional cultural beliefs are maintaining demand for animal body parts in West African markets while viral YouTube videos of cute and cuddly lorises have increased their market value as pets and endangered their populations These and other issues are addressed in this book by leading researchers in the field of ethnoprimateology the study of human nonhuman primate interactions that combines traditional primatological methodologies with cultural anthropology in an effort to better understand the nuances of our economic ritualistic and ecologic relationships

River and Stream Ecosystems of the World Colbert E. Cushing, Kenneth W. Cummins, G. Wayne Minshall, 2006-02-06

This is a synopsis and review of the major rivers of the world Palm Microfungi Jane Fröhlich, Kevin D. Hyde, 2000 The study of ascomycetes especially in the tropics is problematic because literature is scattered throughout numerous journals and is often very difficult to obtain This book describes ascomycetes on palms following a study in Australia Brunei and Hong Kong Many ascomycetes genera are reviewed and more than 50 new species are described Species are illustrated with numerous light micro graphs Many of the genera included are not confined to palms and it is hoped that this book will provide a basis for studying and identifying genera of temperate and tropical fungi We hope that mycologists can use this book and enjoy studying microfungi without the frustrations of lacking literature Anthrozoology Geoff Hosey, Vicky Melfi, 2018-11-30 Anthrozoology the study of human animal interactions HAIs has experienced substantial growth during the past 20 years and it is now timely to synthesise what we know from empirical evidence about our relationships with both domesticated and wild animals Two principal points of focus have become apparent in much of this research One is the realisation that the strength of these attachments not only has emotional benefits for people but confers health benefits as well such that a whole area has opened up of using companion animals for therapeutic purposes The other is the recognition that the interactions we have with animals have consequences for their welfare too and thus impact on their quality of life Consequently we now study HAIs in all scenarios in which animals come into contact with humans whether as pets companions farm livestock laboratory animals animals in zoos or in the wild This topical area of study is of growing importance for animals in animal management animal handling animal welfare and applied ethology courses and also for people within psychology anthropology and human geography at both the undergraduate and postgraduate level It will therefore be of interest to students researchers and animal managers across the whole spectrum of human animal contact
