

International Crime Data (ICVS)

- The International Crime Victimization Survey (ICVS) became operational in 1989, with subsequent installments in 1992, 1996, 2000, and 2004-5. It is the most ambitious and comprehensive attempt to minimize the myriad of difficulties associated with making cross-country comparisons of crime victimization. Data are available in SPSS and SPSS Portable formats and can be downloaded from here.
- The 1989 sweep included 14 industrialized countries; several city-specific surveys were also administered in the first installment. . The most recent installment included responses from individuals in 30 countries as well as 33 city-specific surveys. The ICVS uses a standard sample population size of 2000 individuals for each country.
- Over the course of the survey, more than 300,000 individuals from 78 countries have participated in the ICVS. Five countries, Canada, England & Wales, Finland, Netherlands, and USA, have participated in all five rounds of the ICVS.

Guy Peters, Joselyn Muhleisen, 2020-06-29 Volume Three of the Classics of Comparative Policy Analysis contains chapters concerned with Regional Comparisons and Policy Analysis one of the most prevailing approaches in comparative public policy Through the prism of inter jurisdiction comparisons of similarities and variations they address comparisons in specific policy sectors governance or institutional constructs and political regimes The foci are nevertheless on those comparisons between countries or regions which help to lesson draw by identifying and understanding the variation in policy analysis and policy making that exists within or across regions One benefit of regional comparisons is that it often allows studies to hold constant many variables ranging from colonial legacy to federal systems or from language to specific traditions and more effectively isolate dependent variables Regional organizations like the Organization for Economic Co operation and Development OECD or European Union are also considered as catalysts for regional policy approaches and harmonization and occupy a major role in this volume. The chapters address a broad and diverse number of countries and geographical areas: Latin America, North America, East Asia, Southeast Asia, Southern Africa, the Baltic states, the Nordic states, Western Europe, Central Europe, Eastern Europe, and Europe as a whole. Regional Comparisons and Policy Analysis will be of great interest to scholars and learners of public policy and social sciences as well as to practitioners considering what can be learned or facilitated through methodologically and theoretically sound approaches. The chapters were originally published as articles in the Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis, which in the last two decades has pioneered the development of comparative public policy. The volume is part of a four-volume series, the Classics of Comparative Policy Analysis, including Theories and Methods, Institutions and Governance, Regional Comparisons and Policy Sectors. Each volume showcases a different new chapter comparing domains of study interrelated with comparative public policy, political science, public administration, governance, and policy design, authored by the JCPA co-editors: Giliberto Capano, Iris Geva, May Michael, Howlett, Leslie A. Pal, and B. Guy Peters.

Crime and Public Policy James Q. Wilson, Joan Petersilia, 2012-06-01. Crime in the United States has fluctuated considerably over the past thirty years, as have the policy approaches to deal with it. During this time, criminologists and other scholars have helped to shed light on the role of incarceration, prevention, drugs, guns, policing, and numerous other aspects to crime control. Yet the latest research is rarely heard in public discussions and is often missing from the desks of policymakers. This book accessibly summarizes the latest scientific information on the causes of crime and evidence about what does and does not work to control it. Thoroughly revised and updated, this new version of Crime and Public Policy will include twenty chapters and five new substantial entries. As with previous editions, each essay reviews the existing literature, discusses the methodological rigor of the studies, identifies what policies and programs the studies suggest, and then points to policies now implemented that fail to reflect the evidence. The chapters cover the principal institutions of the criminal justice system: juvenile justice, police, prisons, probation, and parole; sentencing; how broader aspects of social life inhibit or encourage crime; biology; schools; families; communities; and topics currently generating a great deal of attention: criminal activities of gangs, sex offenders, prisoner reentry, changing crime rates. With contributions from trusted leading scholars, Crime and Public Policy offers the most comprehensive and balanced guide to how the latest and best social science research informs the understanding of crime and its control for policymakers, community leaders, and students of crime and criminal justice.

Building on Progress German Data Forum, 2011-02-09. This publication provides a comprehensive compendium of the current state of Germany's research infrastructure in the social, economic, and behavioural sciences. In addition, the book presents detailed discussions of the current needs of empirical researchers in these fields, as well as of opportunities for future development. The importance of solid data for both public policy and the social and economic sciences is obvious. Today, empirical research is essential in finding solutions to many of the major challenges our society faces, such as environmental change, turbulent financial markets and population growth Based on 68 advisory reports by more than 100 internationally recognised authors from a wide range of fields the book provides recommendations by the German Data Forum RatSWD on how to improve the research infrastructure so as to create conditions ideal for making Germany's social economic and behavioural sciences more innovative and internationally competitive Routledge Handbook of International Criminology Cindy J. Smith, Sheldon X.
