The Territories of Human Reason Alister E. McGrath,2019-01-03 Our understanding of human rationality has changed significantly since the beginning of the century with growing emphasis being placed on multiple rationalities each adapted to the specific tasks of communities of practice We may think of the world as an ontological unity but we use a plurality of methods to investigate and represent this world This development has called into question both the appeal to a universal rationality characteristic of the Enlightenment and also the simple modern postmodern binary The Territories of Human Reason is the first major study to explore the emergence of multiple situated rationalities It focuses on the relation of the natural sciences and Christian theology but its approach can easily be extended to other disciplines It provides a robust intellectual framework for discussion of transdisciplinarity which has become a major theme in many parts of the academic world Alister E McGrath offers a major reappraisal of what it means to be rational which will have significant impact on older discussions of this theme He sets out to explore the consequences of the seemingly inexorable move away from the notion of a single universal rationality towards a plurality of cultural and domain specific methodologies and rationalities What does this mean for the natural sciences For the philosophy of science For Christian theology And for the interdisciplinary field of science and religion How can a single individual hold together scientific and religious ideas when these arise from quite different rational approaches This groundbreaking volume sets out to engage these questions and will provoke intense discussion and debate
