Challenging Acts of International Organizations Before National Courts August Reinisch, 2010-09-09 As the Kadi hype following the 2008 European Court of Justice judgment demonstrated there are many problems associated with the judicial review of acts of international organizations This book is the first to present a broader overview of how acts of international organizations have been challenged before national courts It covers such diverse organizations as the United Nations its subsidiary organs such as the specialized international criminal courts for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda the European Patent Office the European Schools EUROCONTROL OPEC and INTERPOL Building extensively on the case law of domestic courts the chapters highlight reoccurring legal issues in light of four working hypotheses These relate to the nature of judicial review of the acts of international organizations its interdependence with domestic methods of incorporating international law the conditions of a human rights based review and the tension between the independent functioning of an organization and guaranteeing legal protection against its acts This approach ensures consistency among the book s chapters which each focus on a different organization Its conclusion brings the different findings together and analyses them in the light of the working hypotheses It also discusses whether attempts to secure a certain minimum level of legal protection against acts of international organizations through judicial review by national courts may contribute to securing greater accountability of international organizations and or European law International Organizations Jan Klabbers, 2017-05-15 International organizations have come to occupy a central position in international governance exercising many public functions and facilitating political debate amongst states and other actors though it is only recently that the focus of legal discussions has begun to shift to controlling the activities of organizations This volume assembles sixteen important essays addressing various issues relating to the law of international organizations highlighting theoretical issues and ongoing political debates and emphasizing issues of control The introductory essay provides an overview of the development of the politico legal debate and situates the law of international organizations historically and in its contemporary context Proliferation of International Organizations Henry G. Schermers, 2001 Progress in International Law Russell A. Miller, Rebecca M. Bratspies, 2008 Progress in International Law is a comprehensive accounting of international law for our times Forty leading international law theorists analyze the most significant current issues in international law and their critical assessments draw diverse conclusions about the current state and future prospects of international law The material is grouped under the headings The History and Theory of International Law The Sources of International Law and Their Application in the United States International Actors International Jurisdiction and International Jurisprudence The Use of Force and the World's Peace and The Challenge of Protecting the Environment and Human Rights The book draws its inspiration from a similar survey undertaken in 1932 by Harvard Law Professor and PCIJ Judge Manley O Hudson In his book Progress in International Organization Hudson sought to demonstrate that what he perceived as an emerging international infrastructure and as moves toward the rule of law in international affairs were sure signs of human progress towards peace and cooperation Progress in International Law critically engages with that claim as a normative matter and at the same time presents the evidence by which a judgment about our own progress towards peace and cooperation might be judged Proliferation of International Organizations Niels M. Blokker, Henry G. Schermers, 2021-11-29 The proliferation of international organizations is presently a hot issue New international organizations have been created over the last few years such as the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons and the World Trade Organization At the same time a certain reluctance may be observed to create new organizations Overlapping activities and conflicting competences occur frequently and the need for coordination is evident The events in former Yugoslavia are an example Both during the armed conflicts in Bosnia and Kosovo and afterwards in the era of reconstruction the need to coordinate the work of organizations such as the UN NATO the EU the World Bank OSCE and the Council of Europe was vital Against this background a number of legal issues have become more important that have not yet been researched extensively perhaps the only exception being the proliferation of international tribunals Questions include the following Why were new organizations created while others already existed in the same or a related field What specific legal problems have arisen that are related to the coexistence of different organizations working partly in the same area What mechanisms or instruments have been developed to coordinate the activities and to solve legal problems These and other questions were discussed during a conference that took place from 18 to 20 November 1999 in the Academy Building of Leiden University The Netherlands A large number of experts both academics and practitioners participated The purpose of this book is to present the issues discussed during the Leiden conference to a larger audience This book contains the adapted papers for the conference and several other contributions
