Internal Migration in Contemporary China D. Davin, 1998-10-30 As China moves from a society controlling all aspects of life including population movement to something nearer a market economy migration has become a live issue Tens of millions of rural migrants have entered China's cities meeting discrimination similar to that experienced by economic migrants in the West This book looks to the reasons why people leave certain areas the lives of migrants and government policy towards them It distinguishes different types of migration and looks particularly at marriage migration and the effects of migration on the lives of women Internal Migration, Crime, and Punishment in Contemporary China Anqi

Shen, 2018-11-15 This work investigates inequality and social exclusion in contemporary Chinese society specifically in the context of urbanization migration and crime Economic reforms started in the late 1970s post Mao fuelled a trend of urbanization and mass migration within China largely from rural areas to more economically developed urban regions With this migration came new challenges in a rapidly changing society Researchers have extensively studied the rural to urban human movement social changes inequality and its impact on individuals and society as a whole This volume provides a new perspective on this issue It forges a link between internal migration inequality social exclusion and crime in the context of China through qualitative research into the impact of this phenomenon on individuals' lives Using a series of case studies drawn from interviews with inmates men and women in a large Chinese prison it focuses on migrant offenders subjective experiences and analyses issues from the rarely heard perspectives of migrant lawbreakers themselves The research demonstrates how factors including the hukou system rural urban class and gender inequalities prejudices against rural migrants and other structural problems often lead to migrant offending The author argues that to mitigate the effects of criminalisation the root causes of these problems should be examined emphasizing radical reforms to the hukou policy cultural change in urban society to welcome newcomers positive programs to integrate migrant workers into urban societies and improve their opportunities rather than inflicting harsher penalties or reducing migration While the research is based in China it has clear implications for other regions of the world which are experiencing similar tensions related to national and international migration This work will be of interest to researchers in criminology and criminal justice particularly with an interest in Asia as well as those in related fields such as sociology law and social justice Discontented Miracle: Growth, Conflict, And Institutional Adaptations In China Dali L Yang, 2007-05-11

existing institutions broadly defined might have exacerbated tensions in China's evolving economy society and polity as well as how institutional developments have been introduced to deal with existing or emerging conflicts and tensions

China's Long March to Freedom Kate Zhou, 2017-09-08 China is more than a socialist market economy led by ever more reform minded leaders It is a country whose people seek liberty on a daily basis Their success has been phenomenal despite the fact that China continues to be governed by a single party Clear distinctions between the people and the government are emerging underlining the fact that true liberalization cannot be imposed from above Although a large percentage of the Chinese people have been part of China's long march to freedom farmers entrepreneurs migrants Chinese gays sex pleasure seekers and black marketers played a particularly important role in the beginning Lawyers scholars journalists and rights activists have jumped in more recently to ensure that liberalization continues Social dissatisfaction with the government is now published in the media addressed in public forums and deliberated in courtrooms Intellectuals devoted to improvement in human rights and continued liberalization are part of the process This grassroots social revolution has also resulted from the explosion of information available to ordinary people especially via the Internet and far reaching international influences All have fundamentally altered key elements of the moral and material content of China's party state regime and society at large This social revolution is moving China towards a more liberal society despite its government The Chinese government reacts rather than leads in this transformative process This book is a landmark a decade in the making Critical Issues in Contemporary China Czeslaw Tubilewicz,2016-12-12 Critical Issues in Contemporary China Unity Stability and Development comprehensively examines key problems crucial to understanding modern day China Organized around three interrelated themes of unity stability and development each chapter explores distinct issues and debate their significance for China domestically and for Beijing's engagement with the wider world While presenting contending explanatory approaches contributors advance arguments to further critical discussion on selected topics Main issues analysed include political change military transformation legal reforms economic development energy security environmental degradation food security and safety demographic trends migration and urbanization labour unrest health and education social inequalities ethnic conflicts Hong Kong's integration cross Strait relations Given its thorough and up to date assessment of major political social and economic challenges facing China this fully revised and substantially expanded new edition is an essential read for any student of Chinese Studies Remaking Families in Contemporary China Xiaoying Qi,2021 Surnaming veiled patriarchy Floating grandparents intergenerational exchange Intimacy and a third element Divorce broken and unbroken bonds Flowering at sunset remarriage and co habitation among the elderly Transforming Chinese Cities Mark Wang,Pookong Kee,Jia Gao,2014-04-03 The urbanisation of China over the last three decades has been a hugely significant development both for China's reform process and for the world more generally This book presents recent research findings on China's continuing urban transformation Subjects covered include the decline of the rural urban divide the spatial restructuring of Chinese urban centres and urban infrastructure migrant workers new housing and new communities and green responses to urban environmental problems The book is particularly valuable in that it includes much new work by scholars based inside China Changing State-society Relations In Contemporary China Wei Shan,Lijun Yang,2016-08-30 This book attempts to provide an overview of social and political changes in Chinese society since the global financial crisis Rapid economic development has restructured the setup of society and empowered or weakened certain social players The chapters in this book provide an updated account of a wide range of social changes including the rise of the middle class and private entrepreneurs the declining social status of the working class as well as the resurgence of non governmental organisations and the growing political mobilisation on the internet The authors also examine the implications of those changes for state society relations governance democratic prospects and potentially for the stability of the current political regime City, State Ran Hirschl,2020-06-12 More than half of the world's population lives in cities by 2050 it will be more than three quarters Projections suggest that megacities of 50 million or even 100 million inhabitants will emerge by the end of the century mostly in the Global South This shift marks a major and unprecedented transformation of the organization of society both spatially and geopolitically Our constitutional institutions and imagination however have failed to keep pace with this new reality

Cities have remained virtually absent from constitutional law and constitutional thought not to mention from comparative constitutional studies more generally As the world is urbanizing at an extraordinary rate this book argues new thinking about constitutionalism and urbanization is desperately needed In six chapters the book considers the reasons for the constitutional blind spot concerning the metropolis probes the constitutional relationship between states and mega cities worldwide examines patterns of constitutional change and stalemate in city status and aims to carve a new place for the city in constitutional thought constitutional law and constitutional practice South-South Migrations and the Law from Below Oreva Olakpe, 2023-05-18 Winner of the Hart SLSA Book Prize 2024 This book explores the narratives and experiences of people in the Global South as they encounter the impact of international law in their lives It looks specifically at approaches to international migrations and the law as states in the Global South confront migration related challenges Taking a case study approach drawn from the experiences of undocumented and displaced migrants in China and Nigeria the book shows how informal justice systems not only exist but are upheld With an innovative analysis drawing both on intersectionality and a Third World Approaches to International Law TWAIL it moves away from the classic international versus regional and domestic law approach to reveal the experience of the Third World in relation to the law This fascinating study will appeal to international law human rights and immigration scholars as well as those in the field of development studies Gender and Family in East Asia Siumi Maria Tam, Wai Ching Angela Wong, Danning Wang, 2014-02-18 The on going reconfiguration of geo political and economic forces across the globe has created a new institutional and moral environment for East Asian family life and gender dynamics Indeed modernisation in East Asia has brought about increases in women s education levels and participation in the labour force a delay in marriage age lower birth rates and smaller family size And yet despite the process of modernization traditional systems such as Confucianism and patriarchal rules continue to shape gender politics and family relationships in East Asia This book examines gender politics and family culture in East Asia in light of both the overwhelming changes that modernization and globalization have brought to the region and the structural restrictions that women in East Asian societies continue to face in their daily lives Across three sections the contributors to this volume focus on marriage and motherhood religion and family and migration In doing so they reveal how actions and decisions implemented by the state trigger changes in gender and family at the local level the impact of increasing internal and transnational migration on East Asian culture and how religion interweaves with the state in shaping gender dynamics and daily life within the family With case studies from across the region including South Korea Japan mainland China Taiwan and Hong Kong this book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Asian studies gender studies anthropology sociology and social policy Practicing Citizenship in Contemporary China Sophia Woodman, Zhonghua Guo, 2020-04-02 This book examines citizenship as practiced in China today from a variety of angles Citizenship in China and elsewhere in the Global South has often been perceived as either a distorted echo of the real democratic version in Europe and North America or an orientalized other that defines what citizenship is not By contrast this book sees Chinese citizenship as an aspect of a connected modernity that is still unfolding The book focuses on three key tensions a state preference for sedentarism and governing citizens in place vs growing mobility sometimes facilitated by the state a perception that state building and development requires a strong state vs ideas and practices of participatory citizenship and submission of the individual to the collective state community village family etc vs the rising salience of conceptions of self development and self making projects Examining manifestations of these tensions can contribute to thinking about citizenship beyond China including the role of the local in forming citizenship orders how individualization works in the absence of liberal individualism and how social citizenship is increasingly becoming a reward to good citizens rather than a mechanism for achieving citizen equality This book was originally published as a Special Issue of the journal Citizenship Studies      China's Household

Contemporary China Deborah Davis,1995-07-28 Explores the impact of post Mao reforms on the economic social and cultural dimensions of China s cities      China's Minorities on the Move Robyn Iredale,Naran Bilik,Guo Fei,2015-02-24 The movement of Han Chinese into minority regions has been a long standing pattern in China However China s minorities have taken longer to start moving in significant numbers and have now become part of a social change phenomenon motivated by economic social and political factors This book looks at how current changes in China are affecting the minority population The case studies focus on how population shifts and the movement of China s minorities impact such issues as education ethnic identity the environment local economy labor and regional development Han minority interactions within a number of regions are also examined      Mobility and Cultural Authority in Contemporary China Pál Nyíri,2011-06-01 Chinese citizens are becoming increasingly mobile both inside China and abroad as migrant workers tourists and students

China is caught between perceived benefits and dangers posed by mobility complicated by the government's own conflicting impulses to support and discourage it. Mobility and Cultural Authority in Contemporary China demonstrates this intricate balance through an in-depth look at patterns of migration and state response. P. I. Nyiri argues that the loosening of China's restrictions on internal and international migration, its promotion of domestic tourism, and its increasingly positive portrayal of migrants all follow a similar logic in which mobility comes to epitomize a new and modern China. Yet the loosening of administrative control is compensated by the imposition of cultural control over how mobility is represented and how mobile citizens make sense of their new experiences, as well as by continued restrictions on types of movement that are seen as undesirable. With ever-growing popular and academic scrutiny of the topic of national and international migration, this compact, engrossing, and timely study is well poised to be read widely by scholars interested in globalization, nationalization, modernization, tourism, and modern China.

One Country, Two Societies Martin K. Whyte, 2010-02-25. A collection of essays that analyzes China's foremost social cleavage, the rural-urban gap. It examines the historical background of rural-urban relations, the size and trend in the income gap between rural and urban residents, aspects of inequality apart from income, and experiences of discrimination, particularly among urban migrants.
