Conrad, Mick P. Couper,2013-03-29 The development and widespread use of Web surveys have resulted in an outpouring of research on their design In this volume Tourangeau

Conrad and Couper provide a comprehensive summary and synthesis of the literature on this increasingly popular method of data collection. The book includes new integration of the authors' work with other important research on Web surveys including a meta analysis of studies that compare reports on sensitive topics in Web surveys with reports collected in other modes of data collection. Adopting the total survey error framework, the book examines sampling and coverage issues, nonresponse measurement, and the issues involved in combining modes. In addition, the concluding chapter provides a model for understanding the errors in estimates that combine data collected in more than one mode. Web surveys have several important characteristics that affect their ability to collect accurate survey data. Discussing these in detail, the authors address basic design decisions from input widgets to background colors. They additionally focus on the visual character of Web surveys on their ability to automatically interact with respondents and on the Web as a method of self administration. The Science of Web Surveys is relevant for those with the practical goal of improving their own surveys and those with an interest in understanding an increasingly important method of data collection.

Web-Teaching David W. Brooks, Diane E. Nolan, Susan M. Gallagher, 2006-04-11 This book delves into a review of current research, active learning strategies, Web courseware, metacognition strategies for Web discussions, promoting student self-regulation, building interactive Web pages, basic HTML coding, managing Web sites using databases, automated testing and security, and legal issues. It helps readers pick and choose what aspects of the Web to employ to achieve the greatest student learning gains.

Discourse, Conversation and Argumentation: Theoretical Perspectives and Innovative Empirical Studies, volume III Antonio Bova, Carlo Galimberti, Francesco Arcidiacono, Lise Haddouk, 2024-10-30 This Research Topic is the third volume of Research Topic Discourse, Conversation and Argumentation: Theoretical Perspectives and Innovative Empirical Studies. Please see the second volume here. Also please see the first volume here. As members of a social world within which interaction needs and communicative tools are intertwined in a series of situated relationships, interactions between individuals but also between groups and between institutions emerges from the beginning of life. Thinking about how we participate in an interaction through verbal and non-verbal exchanges allows us to focus on explicit and implicit norms, on personal and collective preferences, on subjective and interpersonal theories, and on social processes of construction of meaning that characterize the communicative interactions. Although discursive, conversational, and argumentative interactions play an essential role in our lives, there is no integrated area of psychological research on these types of communicative interactions. A wide variety of works is available concerning the focus on the different roles played by social actors within the interactions: symmetric, asymmetric, protagonist, antagonist, teacher, learner, as well as the interest for the constitutive aspects of the interactions: emotional, motivational, cognitive, or developmental factors, skills, competences, knowledge. However, research on discourse, conversation, and argumentation is conducted in a number of separate research communities that are spread across disciplines and have only limited intertwinement. We believe as necessary to create a space for open dialogue within the community of researchers interested in discourse conversation and argumentation from a psychological perspective The Native American, 1917 Advanced Views in Primate Biology A. B.
