Behrens-Baumann,F. Bandello,1999-07 Although considerable light has been shed on the mechanisms of ocular immunity over the past 20 years a complete understanding still eludes our grasp To many ophthalmologists immunology itself is a comparatively new field This volume will bring the latest findings in immunological research and the resulting new therapy methods to the ophthalmologist in practice The scope of the topics goes from general principles of immuno ophthalmology to more specific ones such as immunology of corneal transplantation or immune regulation of uveoretinal inflammation With its broad scope of contributions this publication will not only be significant to the ophthalmologist but also to pediatricians specialists in internal medicine as well as dermatologists confronted with eye diseases Good News - Bad News: The Two Faces of Immune Privilege Rachel R. Caspi,Joan Stein-Streilein,2014-11-19 Immune privilege was once thought to be the property of a few select sites that include the eye brain testis pregnant uterus and of all things the hamster cheek pouch and was believed to be mainly based on sequestration behind blood tissue barriers This view has changed Immune privilege is now considered to constitute a more general phenomenon through which tissues are able to actively direct and control immune responses taking place in their territory to preserve their structural and functional integrity in the face of inflammatory processes These positive aspects of immune privilege can be hijacked by tumors to their survival advantage and to the detriment of the host This Research Topic dissects the beneficial and deleterious consequences of immune privilege in terms of the cellular and molecular mechanisms that various tissues and tumors use each in its own fashion to regulate immune processes that affect them at the local and the systemic level Science Citation Index ,1995 Vols for 1964 have guides and journal lists Immuno-ophthalmology Uwe Pleyer,Manfred Zierhut,Wolfgang

Proteolysis Jerzy W. Mozrzymas,Leszek Kaczmarek,2016-05-18 Neuroplasticity refers to the ability of the Central Nervous

System CNS to alter its structure and function in response to a variety of physiological and pathological processes such as development cognition injury or neurological diseases Since more than four decades studies on synaptic plasticity in the context of memory and learning attracted a remarkable interest Soon after first seminal works on synaptic plasticity were published research in this field was extended by studies on non synaptic as wells as structural plasticity towards a goal to understand cellular and molecular determinants of cognition Over the past two decades yet two additional crucial players in neuroplastic phenomena started to be intensely investigated glial cells and the extracellular matrix ECM Growing awareness that glial cells especially astrocytes are important regulators of synaptic functions gave rise to a novel concept of a tri partite synapse Also over the last two decades a growing body of evidence has accumulated that the extracellular matrix ECM in the brain is strongly involved in regulation of neurons in particular in synaptic plasticity Thus a concept of tetra partite synapse was put forward by some neuroscientists The cross talk between neuron glia ECM system involves enzymatic degradation of proteins or peptides and amino acids occurring in each of these brain constituents by means of a variety of proteases Importantly it has been realized that proteases such as serine proteases and matrix metalloproteinases not only accompany robust phenomena such as cell division or development or neurodegenerative conditions but may play a very subtle signaling functions particularly important in memory acquisition Indeed the repertoire of substrates for these enzymes covers a wide variety of proteins known to play important role in the neuroplastic phenomena e g BDNF TNF a ephrin systems various cell adhesion molecules etc In result the role of metalloproteinases and such serine proteases as tissue plasminogen activator tPA neuropsin or neurotrypsin in synaptic plasticity as well as in learning and memory has been particularly well demonstrated It needs to be emphasized however that in spite of a remarkable progress in this field several basic questions regarding molecular and cellular mechanisms remain unanswered Potential involvement of so many important players various proteases and their substrates in neurons glia and in ECM points to an enormous potential for plasticity phenomena but makes also studies into underlying mechanisms particularly difficult In the proposed Research Topic we provide both review of the current state of the art and present some original reports on specific aspects of the role of proteolysis in neuroplasticity phenomena The present ebook starts with extensive reviews describing involvement of proteolysis not only in synaptic plasticity but also in regulating endogenous excitability and structural changes at the network cellular and subcellular levels Cross talk between neuroplasticity and proteolysis is also emphasized in the context of development and in relation to various pathologies Whereas in the first part of the present ebook the major focus is on metalloproteinases the successive articles address the role of neuropsin and thrombin The Research Topic is concluded with a series of articles describing the components of extracellular matrix and adhesion proteins and their elaboration by mechanisms dependent directly or indirectly on proteolysis We do hope that the present ebook will further stimulate the interest in the fascinating investigations into neuroplasticity proteolysis cross talk
