Historical Archaeology Martin Hall, Stephen W. Silliman, 2009-02-09 This volume offers lively current debates and case studies in historical archaeology selected from around the world including North America Latin America Africa the Pacific and Europe Authored by 19 experts in the field Explores how historical archaeologists think about their work piecing together information from both material culture and documents in an attempt to understand the lives of the people and societies they study Engages with current theory in an accessible manner Truly global in its approach but avoids subsuming local experiences of people into global patterns Summarizes not only the current state of historical archaeology but also sets the course for the field in decades to come Archaeologies of the British Susan Lawrence, 2003 Archaeologists have had an abiding interest in the rise and fall of state level societies Now they are turning their attention to the British Empire

International Handbook of Historical Archaeology Teresita Majewski, David Gaimster, 2009-06-07 In studying the past archaeologists have focused on the material remains of our ancestors Prehistorians generally have only artifacts to study and rely on the diverse material record for their understanding of past societies and their behavior Those involved in studying historically documented cultures not only have extensive material remains but also contemporary texts images and a range of investigative technologies to enable them to build a broader and more reflexive picture of how past societies communities and individuals operated and behaved Increasingly historical archaeology refers not to a particular period place or a method but rather an approach that interrogates the tensions between artifacts and texts irrespective of context In short historical archaeology provides direct evidence for how humans have shaped the world we live in today Historical archaeology is a branch of global archaeology that has grown in the last 40 years from its North American base into an increasingly global community of archaeologists each studying their area of the world in a historical context Where historical archaeology started as part of the study of the post Columbian societies of the United States and Canada it has now expanded to interface with the post medieval archaeologies of Europe and the diverse post imperial experiences of Africa Latin America and Australasia The 36 essays in the International Handbook of Historical Archaeology have been specially commissioned from the leading researchers in their fields creating a wide ranging digest of the increasingly global field of historical archaeology The volume is divided into two sections the first reviewing the key themes issues and approaches of historical archaeology today and the second containing a series of case studies charting the development and current state of historical archaeological practice around the world This key reference work captures the energy and diversity of this global discipline today Historical archaeology Roberta Gilchrist, 2005 Bridging the Gaps Danny Zborover, Peter Kroefges, 2015-04-15 Bridging the Gaps Integrating Archaeology and History in Oaxaca Mexico does just that it bridges the gap between archaeology and history of the Precolumbian Colonial and Republican eras of the state of Oaxaca Mexico a cultural area encompassing several of the longest enduring literate societies in the world Fourteen case studies from an interdisciplinary group of archaeologists anthropologists ethnohistorians and art historians consciously compare and contrast changes and continuities in material culture before and after the Spanish conquest in Prehispanic and Colonial documents and in oral traditions rooted in the present but reflecting upon the deep past Contributors consider both indigenous and European perspectives while exposing and addressing the difficulties that arise from the application of this conjunctive approach Inspired by the late Dr Bruce E Byland s work in the Mixteca which exemplified the union of archaeological and historical evidence and inspired new generations of scholars Bridging the Gaps promotes the practice of integrative studies to explore the complex intersections between social organization and political alliances religion and sacred landscape ethnic identity and mobility colonialism and resistance and territoriality and economic resources Archaeologies of Cultural Contact Timothy Clack, Marcus Brittain, 2022 This volume explores cultural transfer with a focus on the combination and modification of material and behavioural attributes under conditions of contact Chapters demonstrate the diverse understandings that can be gained by exploring the material remains of past contact exposing and overcoming limitations of competing models of cultural change Everywhen Ann McGrath, Jakelin Troy, Laura Rademaker, 2023 Everywhen is a groundbreaking collection about diverse ways of conceiving knowing and narrating time and deep history Looking beyond the linear documentary past of Western or academic history this collection asks how knowledge systems of Australia s Aboriginals and Torres Strait Islanders can broaden our understandings of the past and of historical practice Indigenous embodied practices for knowing narrating and reenacting the past in the present blur the distinctions of linear time making all history now Ultimately questions of time and language are questions of Indigenous sovereignty The Australian case is especially pertinent because Australian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people are among the few Native peoples without a treaty with their colonizers Appreciating First Nations time concepts embedded in languages and practices as Everywhen does is a route to recognizing diverse forms of Indigenous sovereignties Everywhen makes three major contributions The first is a concentration on language both as a means of knowing and transmitting the past across generations and as a vital albeit long overlooked source material for historical investigation to reveal how many Native people maintained and continue to maintain ancient traditions and identities through language Everywhen also considers Indigenous practices of history or knowing the past that stretch back more than sixty thousand years these Indigenous epistemologies might indeed challenge those of the academy Finally the volume explores ways of conceiving time across disciplinary boundaries and across cultures revealing how the experience of time itself is mediated by embodied practices and disciplinary norms Everywhen brings Indigenous knowledges to bear on the study and meaning of the past and of history itself It seeks to draw attention to every when arguing that Native time concepts and practices are vital to understanding Native histories and further that they may offer a new framework for history as practiced in the Western academy

Making History in Banda Ann Brower Stahl, 2001-08-02 Drawing on evidence from several disciplines Ann Brower

Stahl reconstructs the daily lives of Banda villagers of west central Ghana from the time that they were drawn into the Niger trade around AD 1300 until British overrule was established early in the twentieth century The case study aims to closely integrate perspectives drawn from archaeology history and anthropology in African studies They Came to Stay Yvonne Brink, 2008-07-01 Massive brickwork resulting in a towering gable hollowing out a hillside in order to achieve a T plan adding a whole new T to the front of an old one in order to avoid ending up with a crooked H plan what did these owners have in mind when investing so much time energy and money in remodelling their farm dwellings to make them comply with certain set patterns The aim of this book is to find answers to this and a number of related questions in an endeavour to discover meaning in Cape colonial architecture through methods that involve more than relying on the study of archival documents only Material Culture and Consumer Society Mark Staniforth, 2012-12-06 The establishment of a consumer society in Australia has not been a particularly well explored area of academic inquiry My interests lie in the concepts and meanings that underlie the material world ideas like in the words of Madonna I am a material girl and I live in a material world terminology taken to be not gender specific the classic graffiti paraphrasing of Descartes I shop therefore I am or perhaps simply in the world of goods in the more academically respectable terms of Douglas and Isherwood 1979 This book arises out of my longstanding interest in the early colonial period in Australia In part it represents an extension of the purely historical research conducted for my Master s thesis in the Department of History at the University of Sydney which explored aspects of the diet health and lived experience of convicts and immigrants during their voyages to the Australian colonies within the timeframe 1837 to 1839 Staniforth 1993a More importantly it is the culmination of more than twenty five years involvement in the excavation of shipwreck sites in Australia starting with James Matthews 1841 in 1974 through the test excavation of William Salthouse in 1982 continuing with my involvement between 1985 and 1994 in the excavation of Sydney Cove 1797 and most recently with shore based whaling stations and whaling shipwreck sites In this respect this book may be seen as an example of what Ian Hodder 1986 p African Re-Genesis Jay B Haviser, Kevin C MacDonald, 2016-07 An exploration of the archaeology of the African diaspora Past Meets Present John H. Jameson, Sherene Baugher, 2007-04-17 In the face of an increasing public interest and demand for information archaeologists are starting to collaborate with historians educators interpreters museum curators exhibit designers landscape architects and other cultural resource specialists to devise the best strategies for translating an explosion of archaeological information for the public In turn some communities are partnering with archaeologists to become active players in the excavation interpretation and preservation of their heritage The last decade has witnessed numerous applications of public interpretation and outreach models and an increased interest in establishing partnerships between professional practitioners in public interpretation and educational institutions such as museums and schools These developments have occurred in the context of a realization that community based partnerships are the most effective mechanism for long term success It is clear that there is a need for a volume that addresses these latest trends and provides case studies of successful partnerships

American Artifacts of Personal Adornment, 1680-1820 Carolyn L. White, 2005-09-08 Bracelets buckles buttons and beads Clasps combs and chains Items of personal adornment fill museum collections and are regularly uncovered in historical period archaeological excavations But until the publication of this comprehensive volume there has been no basic guide to help curators registrars historians archaeologists or collectors identify this class of objects from colonial and early republican America Carolyn L White helps the reader understand and interpret these artifacts discussing their source manufacture materials function and value in early American life She uses them as a window on personal identity showing how gender age ethnicity and class were often displayed through the objects worn White draws not only on the items themselves but uses their portrayal in art contemporary writings advertisements and business records to assess their meaning to their owners A reference volume for the shelf of anyone interested in early American material culture Over 100 illustrations and tables

Cities in the World: 1500-2000: v. 3 Adrian Green, 2018-12-13 Papers presented at the Cities in the World conference held at Southampton University and organised through the Society for Post Medieval Archaeology challenged the commonly held perception that cities are about the present and the future not about the past All cities have an innate sense of the past and this volume encompassing as it does

Archaeology and Ancient History Eberhard W. Sauer, 2004-07-31 Challenging both traditional and fashionable theories this collection of pieces from an international range of contributors explores the separation of the human past into history archaeology and their related sub disciplines Each case study challenges the validity of this separation and asks how we can move to a more holistic approach in the study of the relationship between history and archaeology While the focus is on the ancient world particularly Greece and Rome the lessons learned in this book make it an essential addition to all studies of history and archaeology

Materializing Colonial Encounters François G. Richard, 2015-09-19 This volume investigates the material production and expression of colonial experiences in Africa It combines archaeological historical and ethnographic sources to explore the diverse pathways practices and projects constructed by Africans in their engagement with the forces of colonial modernity and capitalism This volume is situated in ongoing debates in archaeological and anthropological approaches to materiality In this respect it seeks to target archaeologists interested in the conceptual issues provoked by colonial enfoldments It is also concerned with increasing the visibility of relevant African archaeological literature to scholars of colonialism and imperialism laboring in other fields This book brings together an array of junior and senior scholars whose contributions represent a rich sample of the vibrant archaeological research conducted in Africa today blending conceptual inspiration with robust fieldwork The chapters target a variety of cultural historical and colonial settings They are driven by a plurality of perspectives but they are bound by a shared commitment to postcolonial critical and material culture theories While this book focuses on western and southern Africa the sub regions that boast the deepest traditions of historical archaeological research in the continent attention was also placed on including case studies from traditionally less well represented areas East African and Swahili coasts Madagascar whose material pasts are nevertheless essential to a wider comprehension of variability and comparability of modern colonial conditions Consequently this volume lends a unique wide ranging look at African experiences across the tangle of imperial geographies on the continent with case studies focusing on Anglophone Francophone and Dutch speaking contexts This volume is an exciting opportunity to present this work to wider audiences and foster conversations with a wide community of scholars about the material fashioning of colonial life relations and configurations of power Archaeological Practice as Politics and Ethics John Carman,2024-08-29 This book is of relevance to all archaeologists and all others concerned with how an interest in the past impacts on the present This book explores the manner in which archaeology as a discipline and a field of endeavour contributes to the modern world The focus throughout the book is on practices the range of different things that archaeologists do and how they do and have done it in order to explore the field as a distinctive aspect of social practice over time It also concerns the structures social political economic professional philosophical in which archaeology is performed and the consequences for the discipline and its practitioners Throughout there is a concern especially with archaeology as a field of political and ethical decision making aspects well recognised by practitioners but rarely emphasised The book both asks and answers questions about the perception of archaeology from both within and outside the field The book draws widely on previous work by the author and others looking at the techniques of the field the people involved the political and social impacts both on and by the field In doing so it seeks to bring these different perspectives together to create a more holistic idea of what archaeology is has been and could be The book is offered to those outside the field as a justification for archaeology a field coming under increasing pressure from those who consider it as so many humanities and social science disciplines as an expensive luxury History Peter Claus,John Marriott,2017-04-07 Demystifying the subject with clarity and verve History An Introduction to Theory Method and Practice familiarizes the reader with the varied spectrum of historical approaches in a balanced comprehensive and engaging manner Global in scope and covering a wide range of topics from the ancient and medieval worlds to the twenty first century it explores historical perspectives not only from historiography itself but from related areas such as literature sociology geography and anthropology Clearly written accessible and student friendly this second edition is fully updated throughout to include An increased spread of case studies from beyond Europe especially from American and imperial histories New chapters on important and growing areas of historical inquiry such as environmental history and digital history Expanded sections on political cultural and social history More discussion of non traditional forms of historical representation and knowledge like film fiction and video games Accompanied by a new companion website www.routledge.com/cw/clauss containing valuable supporting material for students and instructors such as discussion questions further reading and web links this book is an essential introduction for all students of historical theory and method Race and Practice in

Archaeological Interpretation Charles E. Orser, Jr., 2013-04-19 Scholars who investigate race a label based upon real or perceived physical differences realize that they face a formidable task The concept has been contested and condoned debated and denied throughout modern history Presented with the full understanding of the complexity of the issue Race and Practice in Archaeological Interpretation concentrates on the archaeological analysis of race and how race is determined in the archaeological record Most archaeologists even those dealing with recent history have usually avoided the subject of race yet Charles E Orser Jr contends that its study and its implications are extremely important for the science of archaeology Drawing upon his considerable experience as an archaeologist and using a combination of practice theory as interpreted by Pierre Bourdieu and spatial theory as presented by Henri Lefebvre Orser argues for an explicit archaeology of race and its interpretation The author reviews past archaeological usages of race including a case study from early nineteenth century Ireland and explores the way race was used to form ideas about the Mound Builders the Celts and Atlantis He concludes with a proposal that historical archaeology cast as modern world archaeology should take the lead in the archaeological analysis of race because its purview is the recent past that period during which our conceptions of race developed Modelling Identities Catalin Nicolae Popa, 2018-05-26 This volume investigates the construction of group identity in Late La T ne South East Europe using an innovative statistical modelling method Death and burial theory underlies the potential of mortuary practices for identity research The sample used for this volume's research consists of 370 graves organized in a specially created database that records funerary ritual and grave good information In the case of grave goods this involved found hierarchically organized categorical variables which serve to describe each item by combining functional and typological features The volume also aims to show the compatibility of archaeological theory and statistical modelling The discussions from archaeological theory rarely find methodological implementations through statistical methods In this volume theoretical issues form an integrative part of data preparation method development and result interpretation
