Persistent Forms Ilya Kliger, Boris Maslov, 2015-12-14 Since the mid 1980s attempts to think history and literature together have produced much exciting work in the humanities Indeed some form of historicism can be said to inform most of the current scholarship in literary studies including work in poetics yet much of this scholarship remains undertheorized Envisioning a revitalized and more expansive historicism this volume builds on the tradition of Historical Poetics pioneered by Alexander Veselovsky 1838 1906 and developed in various fruitful directions by the Russian Formalists Mikhail Bakhtin and Olga Freidenberg The volume includes previously untranslated texts of some of the major scholars in this critical tradition as well as original contributions which place that tradition in dialogue with other thinkers who have approached literature in a globally comparatist and evolutionary historical spirit The contributors seek to challenge and complement a historicism that stresses proximate sociopolitical contexts through an engagement with the longue dur e of literary forms and institutions In particular Historical Poetics aims to uncover deep historical stratifications and asynchronicities in which formal solutions may display elective affinities with other chronologically distant solutions to analogous social and political problems By recovering the traditional nexus of philology and history Persistent Forms seeks to reinvigorate poetics as a theoretical discipline that would respond to such critical and intellectual developments as Marxism New Historicism the study of world literature practices of distant reading and a renewed attention to ritual oral poetics and genre

The Golden Mean of Languages Alisa van de Haar, 2019-09-02 In The Golden Mean of Languages Alisa van de Haar sheds new light on the debates regarding the form and status of the vernacular in the early modern Low Countries where both Dutch and French were local tongues The fascination with the history grammar spelling and vocabulary of Dutch and French has been studied mainly from monolingual perspectives tracing the development towards modern Dutch or French Van de Haar shows that the discussions on these languages were rooted in multilingual environments in particular in French schools Calvinist churches printing houses and chambers of rhetoric The proposals that were formulated there to forge Dutch and French into useful forms were not directed solely at uniformization but were much more diverse

Performance and the Middle English Romance Linda Marie Zaerr, 2012 An examination of if and how medieval romance was performed uniquely uniting the perspective of a scholar and practitioner Although English medieval minstrels performed gestes a genre closely related to romance often playing the harp or the fiddle the question of if and how Middle English romance was performed has been hotly debated Here the performance tradition is explored by combining textual historical and musicological scholarship with practical experience from a noted musician

Using previously unrecognised evidence the author reconstructs a realistic model of minstrel performance showing how a simple melody can interact with the text and vice versa She argues that elements in Middle English romance which may seem simplistic or repetitive may in fact be incomplete as missing an integral musical dimension metrical irregularities for example may be relics of sophisticated rhythmic variation that make sense only with music Overall the study offers both a more accurate comprehension of minstrel performance and a deeper appreciation of the romances themselves Linda Marie Zaerr is Professor of Medieval Studies at Boise State University Mapping Leopardi Emanuela Cervato, Mark

Surprised by Sound Roi Tartakovsky, 2021-05-19 In Surprised by Sound Roi Tartakovsky shows that the power of rhyme endures well into the twenty first century even though its exemplary usages may differ from traditional or expected forms His work uncovers the mechanics of rhyme revealing how and why it remains a vital part of poetry with connections to large questions about poetic freedom cognitive and psychoanalytic theories and the accidental aspects of language As a contribution to studies of sound in poetry Surprised by Sound takes on two central questions First what is it about the structure of rhyme that makes it such a potent and ongoing source of poetic production and extrapoetic fascination Second how has rhyme changed and survived in the era of free verse whose prototypical poetry is as hostile to poetic meter as it is to the artificial sound of rhyme including the sound of rhythmic thumping at the end of every line In response Tartakovsky theorizes a new category of rhyme that he terms sporadic Since it is not systematized or expected sporadic rhyme can be a single strongly resounding rhyme used suddenly in a free verse poem It can also be an internal rhyme in a villanelle or a few scattered rhymes unevenly distributed throughout a longer poem that nevertheless create a meaningful cluster of words Examining usages across varied poetic traditions Tartakovsky locates sporadic rhyme in sources ranging from a sixteenth century sonnet to a nonsensical practically unperformable piece by Gertrude Stein and a 2007 MoveOn org ad in the New York Times With careful attention to the soundscapes of poems Surprised by Sound demonstrates that rhyme s enduring value lies in its paradoxical and unstable nature as well as its capacity for creating poetic cognitive and psychic effects
