

Effective Supervision

1 When supervision is based on mutual trust and respect.

2 Supervisees are offered a choice of supervisor to secure a good match on a personal level, an expertise match and to meet cultural needs.

3 Both supervisors and supervisees have a shared understanding of the purpose of the supervisory sessions.

4 Supervision focuses on sharing and enhancing knowledge and skills to support professional development and improving service delivery.

5 Supervision is regular and based on the needs of the individual, and ad hoc supervision is provided in cases of need.

6 Supervisory models are based on the needs of the individual, such as one-to-one, group, internal or external or distance.

7 The employer creates protected time, supervisor training and private space to facilitate the supervisory session.

8 Training and feedback is provided for supervisors.

9 Supervision is delivered using a flexible timetable, to ensure all staff have access to sessions, regardless of working patterns.

10 Different types of supervision, including practice, professional and managerial supervision is delivered by different supervisors, or by those who are trained to manage the overlapping responsibility as both line manager and supervisor.

In Search of Supervision Michael Jacobs,1996 In Search of Supervision will be of interest to a wide range of counsellors and therapists not only those working as or training as supervisors but all those who experience supervision

Psychotherapy Supervision Gilbert, Maria,Evans, Kenneth,2000-12-01 This book presents an integrative relational model for psychotherapy supervision Supervision Moira Walker,Michael Jacobs,2006-02-22 Supervision is a prerequisite for all counsellors and for most psychotherapists yet until recently it has been assumed that any experienced counsellor or therapist could become a supervisor without any special expertise But the experience of those in supervision is sometimes of inadequate or even unhelpful work by their supervisors At the same time supervision is receiving considerable attention as a discipline in its own right with an expanding literature on the dynamics of the supervisory couple or the supervisory triad since the client is a central if absent presence more attention is also being paid to the technical skills required of the supervisor This book addresses those issues both from the perspective of the supervisee and the supervisor suggesting what supervisees might expect from good supervision as well as offering guidance to supervisors on how best to use to the full the opportunities offered by a therapeutic situation which has some similarities but also some radical differences from counselling and therapy itself
