her parents whom she had spent a lifetime searching for had passed on A further discovery sent shock waves through her the birth certificate of an unknown elder brother Born in 1919 he would be seventy two years old Was it possible that by some miracle he was still alive Most would prefer to put it at the back of one's mind rather than acknowledge the stigma of being raised in an orphanage and being denied a birthright says the author Caroline Whitehead But for social history these stories must be told By the time I reached sixteen years of age I had spent all but two years of my young life in the somewhat questionable care of the nuns at an orphanage in a small village in the County of Kent From there I was sent out into the world of which I knew little about and had not been prepared for My first place of employment was a reformatory school for unruly boys staffed by Christian Brothers some of whom seemed intent on breaking their vows of chastity ABOUT THE AUTHOR Caroline Whitehead nee Marshall was born in London England in 1925 Abandoned in infancy she was brought up as an orphan in a Catholic institution in a small village in the County of Kent On reaching the age of sixteen she was sent out into a world she knew little of as a domestic servant With World War Two in progress she was soon conscripted into an aircraft factory in the County of Surrey on munition work She married in 1944 When hostilities ended she enrolled in a commercial college to train as a secretary After emigrating to Canada in 1967 a long emotional journey began as she regularly travelled between England and Canada over the years in a desperate attempt to learn the truth about her parents and find her missing family Caroline has one child three grandchildren and two great grandchildren She lives in British Columbia Canada Heritage Quest, 1997 Richardson-Sinkler Connections Harriet Clare Sinkler Little, 2019-06-10 A fascinating look at the private lives of prosperous landowners in antebellum South Carolina Offering a richly textured picture of early national South Carolina Richardson Sinkler Connections includes more than 150 letters and documents left by the prominent Richardson and Sinkler families who lived in the Santee region between Charleston and Columbia Prosperous landowners related by both blood and marriage the families made their fortunes as planters of indigo rice and cotton The Sinkler family established homes south of the Santee River starting around 1700 and Richard Richardson arrived from Virginia about 1730 The second James Sinkler died in 1800 leaving four children only one of whom had completed his education Thirteen years old when his father died the second son William Sinkler was mentored by his older first cousin brother in law state representative and later governor James B Richardson who closely followed the boy's progress as he pursued his studies in the North William would go on to build Eutaw plantation in what is now Orangeburg County and like his cousin James pursue a passionate interest in horse breeding and racing even building a racetrack on his property In addition to revealing details about matters of politics farming education travel and racing the letters also describe the difficulties of visiting across the Santee River in the Sandhills where the Richardsons lived The linchpin of the two families was James Sinkler's widow Margaret who was adored by her niece stepdaughter Ann as well as by the Richardson nephews and many others Her letters and Ann's open a fascinating window into women's lives of the era Thorough annotations with genealogical notes and charts trace the complicated relationships between the Sinklers and Richardsons as well as among other prominent families of the region and state The book includes more than forty illustrations including portraits sketches photographs of plantations and other sites plats and maps Writing the Family Narrative Workbook Lawrence P.
