A Monkey Named Francis Katherine Jones, 2017-09-10 Francis was a six month old Ateles Geoffroyi spider monkey shipped to the U S in the 1960 s from a South American rain forest and he was a challenge to be reckoned with as he grew and matured He was head strong and wanted to be in charge of the the household and there were power plays daily between him dad and or the older boy Francis had no problem with the younger son or mother because with them he felt in control but not so with dad and the teenage son Francis saw them as a threat and there were power plays between them daily Meeting the demands of Francis were many because he had a photographic mind learned from observation was exceptionally intelligent mentally sharp cunning mischievous temperamental and when going through puberty he wanted to be in control of his environment but dad and the teen son learned quickly that it would not be in their best interest to let Francis have power over them Francis respected dad's strength and size and walked around him but would agitate the teen son who lifts weights to stay strong and fit because at times he would have to box Francis' jaws and when that happened Francis would get back at him by hiding his school books, ripping the antenna off his car or peeing on him Although the family loved Francis by the time he was four years old they did the kindest thing they could for their pet they returned him to his roots They took him to an animal farm where he could mate with other spider monkeys and live out his life

Pocket Handbook of Nonhuman Primate Clinical Medicine Angela

Courtney, 2012-10-18 Sources of clinical treatment information on nonhuman primates are generally scattered across journals, textbooks, conferences, personal conversations and more However, when a clinician on the treatment floor is faced with a patient requiring an immediate treatment decision, time spent on making an informed decision becomes a critical factor An alternative to conducting a literature search in time-sensitive situations, the Pocket Handbook of Nonhuman Primate Clinical Medicine supplies guidance and initial direction on diagnosis and treatment, including working doses based on past case experience It is the frank to the point nature of the writing that makes readers feel as if they had just asked a colleague how to approach a clinical problem and obtained a quick, what you need to know answer The chapter authors draw on personal experience to describe commonly encountered clinical conditions and how to treat these cases, including not only the dos but also the don'ts This format gives readers easy access to clinical signs, diagnostic criteria and options for treatment The Pocket Handbook of Nonhuman Primate Clinical Medicine is a convenient, concise, case-based handbook written by and for clinicians in charge of the diagnosis and treatment of nonhuman primate patients Available in both print and electronic formats, this handbook saves readers from having to wade through pages of data and case studies to find answers when time is a factor on the clinic floor

Decolonizing Cultures in the Pacific Susan Y. Najita, 2006-09-22 In Decolonizing Cultures in the Pacific Susan Y. Najita proposes that the traumatic history of contact and colonization has become a crucial means by which indigenous peoples of Oceania are reclaiming their cultures, languages, ways of knowing and political independence In particular, she examines how contemporary writers from Hawai'i, Samoa and Aotearoa New Zealand remember, re-tell and deploy this violent history in their work As Pacific peoples negotiate their paths towards sovereignty and chart their postcolonial futures, these writers play an invaluable role in invoking and commenting upon the various uses of the histories of colonial resistance, allowing themselves and their readers to imagine new futures by exorcising the past Decolonizing Cultures in the Pacific is a valuable addition to the fields of Pacific and Postcolonial Studies and also contributes to struggles for cultural decolonization in Oceania contemporary writers' critical engagement with colonialism and indigenous culture Najita argues provides a powerful tool for navigating a decolonized future

Animal Traffic Rosemary-Claire Collard,2020-08-24 Parrots and snakes wild cats and monkeys exotic pets can now be found everywhere from skyscraper apartments and fenced suburban backyards to roadside petting zoos In Animal Traffic Rosemary Claire Collard investigates the multibillion dollar global exotic pet trade and the largely hidden processes through which exotic pets are produced and traded as lively capital Tracking the capture of animals in biosphere reserves in Mexico Guatemala and Belize their exchange at exotic animal auctions in the United States and the attempted rehabilitation of former exotic pets at a wildlife center in Guatemala Collard shows how exotic pets are fetishized both as commodities and as objects Their capture and sale sever their ties to complex socio ecological networks in ways that make them appear as if they do not have lives of their own Collard demonstrates that the enclosure of animals in the exotic pet trade is part of a bioeconomic trend in which life is increasingly commodified and objectified under capitalism Ultimately she calls for a wild life politics in which animals are no longer enclosed retain their autonomy and can live for the sake of themselves
