Islam and the English Enlightenment, 1670-1840 Humberto Garcia, 2012-01-30 A corrective addendum to Edward Said's Orientalism this book examines how sympathetic representations of Islam contributed significantly to Protestant Britain's national and imperial identity in the eighteenth century. Taking a historical view Humberto Garcia combines a rereading of eighteenth century and Romantic era British literature with original research on Anglo Islamic relations. He finds that far from being considered foreign by the era's thinkers Islamic republicanism played a defining role in Radical Enlightenment debates most significantly during the Glorious Revolution French Revolution and other moments of acute constitutional crisis as well as in national and political debates about England and its overseas empire. Garcia shows that writers such as Edmund Burke, Lady Mary Wortley Montagu, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Robert Southey and Percy and Mary Shelley not only were influenced by international events in the Muslim world but also saw in that world and its history a viable path to interrogate, contest and redefine British concepts of liberty. This deft exploration of the forgotten moment in early modern history when intercultural exchange between the Muslim world and Christian West was common resituates English literary and intellectual history in the wider context of the global eighteenth century. The direct challenge it poses to the idea of an exclusionary Judeo Christian Enlightenment serves as an important revision to post 9/11 narratives about a historical clash between Western democratic values and Islam.

Elite-Led Mobilization and Gay Rights Benjamin George Bishin, Thomas Joseph Hayes, Matthew Benjamin Incantalupo, Charles Anthony Smith, 2021-09-14 Media and scholastic accounts describe a strong public opinion backlash a sharply negative and enduring opinion change against attempts to advance gay rights. Academic research however increasingly questions backlash as an explanation for opposition to LGBT rights. Elite Led Mobilization and Gay Rights argues that what appears to be public opinion backlash against gay rights is more consistent with elite led mobilization a strategy used by anti gay elites primarily white evangelicals seeking to prevent the full incorporation of LGBT Americans in the polity in order to achieve political objectives and increase political power. This book defines and tests the theory of Mass Opinion Backlash and develops and tests the theory of Elite Led Mobilization by employing a series of online and natural experiments surrounding the U S Supreme Court rulings in Obergefell v Hodges and United States v Windsor and President Obama s position change on gay marriage To evaluate these theories the authors employ extensive survey voting behavior and campaign finance data and examine the history of the LGBT movement and its opposition by religious conservatives from the Lavender Scare to the campaign against Trans Rights in the defeat of Houston s 2015 HERO ordinance Their evidence shows that opposition to LGBT rights is a top down process incited by anti gay elites rather than a bottom up reaction described by public opinion backlash
