Equity and Excellence in American Higher Education William G. Bowen, Martin A. Kurzweil, Eugene M. Tobin, Susanne C. Pichler, 200? Thomas Jefferson once stated that the foremost goal of American education must be to nurture the natural aristocracy of talent and virtue Although in many ways American higher education has fulfilled Jefferson's vision by achieving a widespread level of excellence it has not achieved the objective of equity implicit in Jefferson's statement In Equity and Excellence in American Higher Education William G Bowen Martin A Kurzweil and Eugene M Tobin explore the cause for this divide Employing historical research examination of the most recent social science and public policy scholarship international comparisons and detailed empirical analysis of rich new data the authors study the intersection between excellence and equity objectives Beginning with a time line tracing efforts to achieve equity and excellence in higher education from the American Revolution to the early Cold War years this narrative reveals the halting episodic progress in broadening access across the dividing lines of gender race religion ethnicity and socioeconomic status The authors argue that despite our rhetoric of inclusiveness a significant number of youth from poor families do not share equal access to America's elite colleges and universities While America has achieved the highest level of educational attainment of any country it runs the risk of losing this position unless it can markedly improve the precollegiate preparation of students from racial minorities and lower income families After identifying the equity problem at the national level and studying nineteen selective colleges and universities the authors propose a set of potential actions to be taken at federal state local and institutional levels With recommendations ranging from reform of the admissions process to restructuring of federal financial aid and state support of public universities to addressing the various precollegiate obstacles that disadvantaged students face at home and in school the authors urge all selective colleges and universities to continue race sensitive admissions policies while urging the most selective and privileged institutions to enroll more well qualified students from families with low socioeconomic status
